HITCHCOCK MEETS LODGE

NINE MEN IN NEW EFFORT

Bryan Confers with Members and Defends His Proposal of Abstention.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Two events today marked the progress of treaty compromise efforts in the Senate. The first of these, in point of time, was a visit to the Capitol by William Jennings Bryan. The second was a bipartisan conference in Senator Lodge's office, attended by five Democrats and four Republicans.

The bipartisan conference was conceded to be the more important of the day's developments, although Mr. Bryan's visit created something of a stir, since it was taken to mean that he intends to push with vigor his campaign for the ratification of the treaty at once, even though that may call for a surrender by the Democrats to the Lodge reservations. Mr. Bryan, in the course of a forty-minute talk with correspondents, bore out this belief by stating that if no other method of ratification seemed feasible the Democrats should walk out of the Senate and leave the Republican majority to ratify the treaty with the Lodge reservations.

This proposal created some amusement among Senators, who were seriously impressed, however, with the conference in Senator Lodge's office. This meeting was arranged by Senator Owen of Oklahoma, who, on last Sunday, had a number of Democratic Senators at his home for a general discussion of ways and means of getting ratification. Since that time Senator Owen has been working with Senator Kenyon of Iowa, Republican, for the creation of a bipartisan committee of sixteen, eight Senators from each side of the Chamber.

Mr. Owen found it possible to obtain a conference with Senator Lodge without waiting for the bipartisan committee plan to bear fruit. He persuaded Senator Hitchcock, the acting Democratic leader, to go to the conference and to invite Senators McKellar, Simmons and Walsh of Montana to accompany him to Senator Lodge's office. There they were met by Senators Lodge, Lenroot, Kellogg and New.

To Resume Conference Tomorrow.

The nine Senators discussed reservations for nearly two hours. No definite program was submitted. The Lodge reservations were made the basis of discussion, and were taken up one by one. Suggestions were made for changes in the reservations, and these suggestions were noted.

When the conference ended it was with the understanding that the Republican Senators would sound opinion among their colleagues on the Democratic suggestions while the Democrats found how the Republican suggestions looked to those on the Democratic side. With the desired information in their possession, the same Senators are to meet again Saturday in Senator Lodge's office.

Senator Lodge, who by common consent was made the spokesman for the conferees, gave the impression in what little he had to say that the ice has been broken and that the conference was the first of a series which would continue until compromise had been arrived at or efforts in that direction had been found to be hopeless.

The conference marked the first meeting in this way of Senators Lodge and Hitchcock, the rival leaders, since the present session began. It marked also the first gathering of all groups, except the irreconcilables, in a round table discussion and exchange of views.

Viewed from this angle alone, the meeting was distinctly encouraging to those who want the treaty ratified. They expected nothing tangible from the first meeting. More may have been accomplished, however, than those outside the conference know, as the conferees agreed that the suggestions made and the conclusions reached should not be made public until a fairly complete compromise had been worked out. Those in the conference explained that they did not wish to give critics a chance to tear down the fabric they expected to build as fast as it was put together, and therefore they were pledged to withhold all details for the present.

"Encouraging," Says Lodge.

"We just talked," Senator Lodge said. "The conference was a beginning. It looks encouraging to me. There is nothing that can be given out at this

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Co.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 15.—A bill signed by the Cabinet proposing that Holland join the League of Nations has been hurriedly introduced in Parliament.

A memorial which sets forth the advantages and disadvantages of joining the League and is conspicuous for its length points out that while the League is not all that was expected or hoped, it would probably be to Holland's advantage to join as refusal would affect her international position.

There is a general opinion here that it would be better to wait and see what America does before making a decision.

Although the Government favors joining the league, there is likely to be a struggle over the bill in the lower House.

HOKE SMITH HOLDS KEY TO CAUCUS TIE

Refuses to Vote When Senate Democrats Reach Deadlock on Leadership.

UNDERWOOD BARS DISCORD

Declines to Accept Glass's Support in Johnson's Absence Without Being Paired.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The caucus of the Democratic Senators held today to elect a floor leader to succeed the late Senator Martin, of Virginia, ended in a deadlock, when Senator Hoke Smith, of Georgia, declined to vote for either Senator Underwood, of Alabama, or Senator Hitchcock, of Nebraska, the candidates.

As there was an actual tie of 19 to 19 in the voting, which the presence of absent Senators would not have changed, Senator Smith holds the situation in his hands for the present, at least. He declined to give any reason for his refusal to vote for either candidate, although Senators from both camps pressed him to declare himself.

The vote was:

For Hitchcock — Messrs. Ashurst, Chamberlain, Culberson, Henderson, Kendrick, King, Kirby, Myers, Nugent, Overman, Phelan, Pomerene, Robinson, Sheppard, Simmons, Thomas, Trammell, Walsh of Montana, and Wolcott.

For Underwood — Messrs. Bankhead, Dial, Fletcher, Gay, Gerry, Gore, Harris, Harrison, Jones of New Mexico, McKellar, Pittman, Ransdell, Reed, Shields, Smith of Maryland, Smith of South Carolina, Stanley, Walsh of Massachusetts, and Williams.

Senator Beckham, for Underwood, was paired with Senator Swanson, for Hitchcock; Senator Smith of Arizona, for Underwood, with Senator Owen, for Hitchcock, and Senators Underwood and Hitchcock were paired with each other. Senator Johnson, of South Dakota, was absent, but not paired.

Both the Hitchcock and Underwood managers knew when the caucus met that Senator Smith's vote was likely to prove decisive. For two weeks both sides have been trying to pledge him, and several times both have claimed him.

Underwood Wins Fight on Glass.

Three factors contributed to the deadlock. The first was the absence of Senator Johnson, without being paired. He is for Hitchcock. The second was the absence of Carter Glass, Senator designate from Virginia, whose resignation as Secretary of the Treasury has not yet been accepted, and who therefore cannot take his seat. The third was Senator Smith's position.

Senator Underwood appeared at one stage to have the battle won, when the caucus by a vote of 20 to 19 voted to invite Mr. Glass to attend and vote. This action was taken after long discussion, and the Underwood managers showed that there was ample precedent for allowing a Senator elect or a Senator designate to vote before he had actual-

CHARGE HUGE GRAFT IN COAST SHIPYARDS BY FALSE VOUCHERS

Federal Agents Unearth Alleged Frauds, Involving Millions, in Cost-Plus Contracts.

TIES UP $37,000,000 CLAIMS

LIMITED TO PACIFIC YARDS

Inquiry Was Started by Hurley Eight Months Ago and Later Turned Over to Palmer.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 15.—Frauds involving millions of dollars in connection with the building of ships for the Government in Oregon, Washington and California have been unearthed by Government investigators it became known today, when William H. Tidwell, special agent of the Treasury Department, was appointed chief assistant to Special Assistant Attorney General Bert Schlesinger here.

It is understood that Attorney General Palmer on the strength of the alleged discoveries, has ordered the United States Shipping Board to hold up claims approximating $37,000,000 to await the outcome of the investigation. The Government, according to information from authoritative sources, is alleged to have been defrauded of more than a billion dollars through payment of false vouchers.

A score of prominent shipbuilders are understood to be involved in the investigation, which is said to have reached the stage calling for special Grand Jury sessions in the cities of Oregon, Washington, and California, where big shipbuilding plants are located.

Schlesinger refused tonight to discuss the evidence of graft discovered, stating that he did not intend to make public the work of his department, which is necessarily of a secret nature. He denied himself to interviewers and made no effort to conceal his chagrin over rumors to the effect that the Government is close on the trail of men who are said to have amassed vast fortunes through conspiracies to defraud the Government.

Admits Getting Instructions.

Tidwell admitted that he had received telegraphic instructions from the Treasury Department to join Schlesinger immediately as his chief investigator, but he would not give any information of the results of the inquiry, conducted all over the Pacific Coast by Schlesinger and his aids.

Schlesinger and Tidwell held a long conference today, and it is known that a number of agents of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice were present.

The huge frauds are said to be in connections with the cost-plus contracts given by the Government, and which allowed 10 per cent. to the builders over what they claimed to be the cost of constructing the ships.

A Government official in close touch with the investigation when asked today as to what shipyards are involved in the scandal said that none of the big shipbuilding plants of the Pacific Coast which have been engaged in Government work will escape the inquiry.

It is known that Schlesinger is to leave here for Seattle tomorrow, where it is understood the first of the Federal Grand Jury sessions will be summoned. Other Grand Juries will be held in other large cities of the coast.

Schlesinger's investigations have been proceeding quietly for several weeks,

Swiss Bar Neutrality Limit in Negotiations on League

PARIS, Jan. 15.—The Swiss Federal Council has made public the latest negotiations between the Supreme Council and the Swiss Government concerning the entry of Switzerland into the League of Nations.

A memorandum requests the Supreme Council to allow sufficient time for the holding of a referendum, and also that precision be given concerning Swiss neutrality, whether it is absolute and without reservations according to the treaties of 1815.

Switzerland, it is added, could accept no reservations concerning its neutrality.

OLIVES KILL TWO; THREE ARE DYING

Mother and Son Blinded, Paralyzed, and Suffocated After Eating Bottled Fruit.

POISONING NOT SUSPECTED

Symptoms of Alimentary Illness Absent—Father, Brother, and Another Son Stricken.

The eating of bottled olives, which had developed bacteria, has caused the death of two persons and is certain to result in the death of three others in the Bronx, according to Dr. John A. Riegelman, Medical Examiner for the Bronx.

Mrs. Marie Deidene, thirty-three years old, of 2,328 Hughes Avenue, the Bronx, wife of Paul Deidene, proprietor of a shoe store, at 114 West Forty-eighth Street, was the first victim. She died on Jan. 10, six hours after her illness began. The first symptom was that she could not speak distinctly. A little later she complained of difficulty in seeing. Next her breathing muscles were affected. She died of suffocation, due to paralysis of the breathing muscles. The physician who was called in believed that she had died of ureal poisoning.

No one suspected that death was due to anything she had eaten, because there were no indications of digestive disturbance. The jar of olives was placed on the table at the family meals, and on Jan. 14 her son Dominick, 16 years old, fell ill, developed the same symptoms, and died within about six hours.

Yesterday the father, Paul Daidene, became ill and was removed to Fordham Hospital. His brother Angelo, who lived with the family, and his son Anthony were taken to Fordham Hospital with the same symptoms. Through the administration of stimulants, Paul lived yesterday and was alive last night, the progress of the disease being slower because of efforts to fight its effects. The death of the three in the hospital, however, is only a matter of time, it was said last night.

When the fourth and fifth patients, suffering from the same strange malady, arrived at Fordham Hospital yesterday, Dr. Reigelman and other specialists were called in. By questioning the patients they learned that they had eaten the bottled olives. Dr. Reigelman said that six persons had died recently in Detroit from poisoning due to the same cause. The bottle of olives was sent to Dr. A. O. Gettler for chemical examination. Concetta Deidene, 9 years old, was taken to Fordham Hospital for observation, although she said that she had not eaten of the olives.

Dr. Louis Ferrara, who attended the family, said last night that the specialists had diagnosed the disease as being produced by the bacillus bacilini, which multiplies in spoiled food. After such food is eaten, he said, the bacilli produce a brain lesion, first impairing control over the muscles used in articulation and then, as the infection spreads in the brain, paralyzing the muscles of the throat. He said that the resultant partial blindness was not due to impairment of the optic nerve, but to loss of control over the muscles of the eyelids, which caused them to droop over the pupil of the eye.

A somewhat similar case was reported in Northern California a few weeks ago, when a number of persons who partook of a home-made alcoholic drink, composed of several fruits, suffered paralysis of the brain centres controlling the muscles used in swallowing and died slowly from starvation.

FEDERAL STAGE SET FOR DRY LAW ENTRY TOMORROW

Forces of the Prohibition Commissioner Ready to Shut Lid Tight at Midnight.

WILL FOCUS ON BIG CITIES

150 OFFICERS READY HERE

Supervisor Not Yet Appointed for District in Which New York Is Included.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—One minute after midnight tomorrow night the United States becomes flesh and bone dry under the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution. Assistant Commissioner Gaylord of the Internal Revenue Department has stated that it would require six years to make the country absolutely "dry," but to all intents and purposes the Government's organization for the enforcement of national prohibition is already so well organized that there will be no alcoholic refreshment available for the ordinary wayfarer unless he wishes to dally with wood alcohol concoctions after Jan. 16.

The enforcement of the law is in the hands of a Prohibition Commissioner with headquarters at Washington, under whom will serve a number of Superintendents, with groups of States under their jurisdiction. Each State has a director who, in turn, has a number of subordinates scattered throughout the State whose duty it will be to enforce the law.

Detailed plans have been made to carry out the law in cities, such as New York, where it has been said, "oh, prohibition will never really be enforced here!"

Prohibition Commissioner Kremer has assigned extra agents to New York, Chicago, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and other large centres. Fifty men are said to have been assigned to New York.

Mr. Kremer has asked for an emergency appropriation of several millions to be immediately available for the enforcement of the law, but a few millions are only a drop in the bucket of what the law will need when the prohibition organization is complete. The Government will lose between $400,000,000 and $500,000,000 in revenue from fermented and distilled liquors and similarly States and cities will lose the huge sums they have heretofore collected from this source.

With the coming into force of the amendment the export of intoxicating liquors will cease. An enormous amount of whisky has been sent out of the country within the last few weeks, but large stocks still remain in bonded warehouses, and its disposition will be watched closely to prevent illegal sales. Liquor held in warehouses and elsewhere for private account must be moved to homes or other places of residence by the owners before midnight. Any remaining in storage will be subject to seizure.

Home brewing of beverages containing more than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol also will come under the ban.

The opening of the nation's first saloonless year will be celebrated tomorrow night in Washington. National reform associations, holding jubilee conventions here, will hold numerous meetings throughout the day and will watch the advent of constitutional prohibition at 12:01 A. M. Saturday with a dinner at which officers of the associations will tell of the progress of reform work. Attorney General Palmer will be a speaker.

A lighter side of the celebration will be portrayed at the National Press Club, with the chief feature of the evening a skit, written and produced by Washington correspondents, entitled "Water, Water Everywhere."

150 INSPECTORS NAMED.

No Assistant Commissioner for "Dry" Enforcement Here.

A minute after 12 o'clock tonight the machinery brought into being by the passage of the Eighteenth Amendment will begin operating. Only a decision from the United States Supreme Court favoring the "wets" can halt the process of trying to make the country "dry." The work will be directed by John F. Kramer, Commissioner of Prohibition, from his office in Washington.

Ten assistant Prohibition Commissioners will try to enforce the law in the ten departments into which the country has been divided. It is planned to have a State Director of Prohibition for administrative work in each State. The department chief in New York, whose district will include Long Island, Connecticut, and Rhode Island, has not been

Allies Frame Demand for Ex-Kaiser's Extradition; Note Is Expected to Be Sent to Holland Tomorrow

PARIS, Jan. 15 (Associated Press).—The Supreme Council has drafted a note to the Dutch Government asking for the extradition of the former German Emperor. It will probably be sent on Saturday.

The note refers to Article 227 of the treaty of Versailles and invites Holland to join the allied powers in the accomplishment of this act.

Besides taking up this morning the text of the demand on Holland, Premiers Clemenceau, Lloyd George and Nitti inspected the list of German officers and soldiers accused of violations of the laws of war and whose surrender will be demanded from the Berlin Government. This list is said to comprise about six hundred names.

Article 227 of the treaty of peace with Germany reads:

The allied and associated powers publicly arraign William II. of Hohenzollern, formerly German Emperor, for a supreme offense against international morality and the sanctity of treaties. A special tribunal will be constituted to try the accused, thereby assuring him the guarantees essential to the right of defense. It will be composed of five Judges, one appointed by each of the following powers, namely: The United States of America, Great Britain, France, Italy, and Japan.

In its decision the tribunal will be guided by the highest motives of international policy with a view to vindicating the solemn obligations of international undertakings and the validity of international morality. It will be its duty to fix the punishment which it considers should be imposed. The allied and associated powers will address a request to the Government of the Netherlands for the surrender to them of the ex-Emperor in order that he may be put on trial.

RIGA, Jan. 13.—The Lettish drive against the Bolsheviki has met with remarkable success. The northern half of Letgalen is already clear of the enemy, and the advance is still continuing. During the last four days I have accompanied an American officer on a visit to the extreme northeast sector, where the fighting is the fiercest. At one point we actually crossed the Letgalen frontier into Russia proper and watched the Letts attack from a vantage point commanding the hills overlooking the newly recovered stretch of railroad.

As a sequel to the recent attack which recovered Dvinsk, this offensive began on the northern sector on a front of eighty miles, at 4:30 A. M. on last Friday. The advance was fan-shaped with the left wing marching due east, the centre east by southeast and the right southeast toward Regisca. On the left the progress was very rapid. On the first day by afternoon the troops had marched twenty miles and occupied the town of Marienhausen—an important centre of the Bolshevist courier service—and were pushing on toward the Marienhausen station on a loop line five miles further east. On the right the advance was equally rapid.

The "Partisans," the volunteer local peasants, about 2,000 strong, who suffered so greatly from the Reds as to be their inveterate enemies, met serious opposition from a battalion of the famous Lett communists, holding a strong position on a range of low but steep hills. Unable to move up the artillery across the rough intervening ground, the Partisans attacked savagely all Saturday, but were unable to make progress. This held up the advance on both flanks, and so encouraged the rest of the enemy forces that a strong counterattack was delivered on Saturday afternoon against Marienhausen by the Second and Third Regiments of the Petrograd Division and one storm battalion, altogether about 2,500 men. The town was held by two echelons, say 500 men, of the Eighth Lettish Regiment, under command of a gallant officer, Colonel Krustin.

Bolshevist Force Trapped.

The Reds pushed the assault home to within 1,000 yards of the house where the Colonel with his staff was directing the operations.

"I let them get well into the trap," he told us, "before I sprung it."

Then when rifle bullets were already whistling about his ears the Colonel gave orders to two bodies of men, each about eighty strong, concealed in the woods on the flanks to act in aid of the hard pressed centre. Caught between three fires the Bolsheviki simply melted. The second regiment was practically annihilated, the third routed and the storm troops stormed hastily backward. Two hundred and fifty prisoners, including a Bolshevist Brigadier General and a commissar, were taken. About 200 Bolsheviks were killed and many wounded.

On Sunday morning the Partisans, aided on their left by an echelon of the Eighth Regiment, managed to work

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Military reasons make it imperative that the $150,000,000 loan for Poland, Austria and Armenia should be granted, Secretary of War Baker and General Tasker H. Bliss told the House Ways and Means Committee today. Both approved the loan, already recommended by Herbert Hoover and Secretary of the Treasury Glass.

"The situation is like firing a stubble field; you can't tell where it will extend," said Secretary Baker. "This war started in the Balkans. The situation in Armenia is very serious, and it vitally affects conditions in Turkey and Persia particularly."

"Without outside assistance," said General Bliss, "military observers believe it is practically certain that the Polish Army cannot withstand the force of the expected Bolshevist offensive, which, if successful, would probably mean a revival of the European war."

The committee was startled when General Bliss emphasized the menace of Bolshevism and the military strength of Lenin. He declared that the poorly equipped Polish Army of 710,000 men would be in fearful straits if faced by 1,200,000 trained well-equipped Bolsheviki, under skilful leadership. While urging the loan, General Bliss insisted that it should be made only upon condition that the Allies should furnish Poland with the necessary rifles, artillery and ammunition.

Most of Secretary Baker's testimony was not made public. He requested that it be regarded as having been made in executive session. However, he appeared to support in full the views of General Bliss as to the military urgency for granting the loan. The Secretary's remark about Armenia was made in open session, in response to a question from Representative Longworth, Republican, of Ohio, as to whether the loan should be made to that country as well as to Poland and Austria.

Bulwark Against Bolsheviki.

General Bliss declared that the Polish Army, now fighting on the Russian front, was the only bulwark standing between the Bolsheviki and Europe.

"If the Allies should refuse to help Poland, the Bolsheviki could sweep through that nation and the Balkans and swarm over Europe, could they not?" inquired Representative Garner, Democrat, of Texas.

"That is speculative, but very possible," replied General Bliss. "All the European nations are very wobbly and a revival of a general European war is not entirely improbable."

General Bliss called Poland "the storm centre" of Europe. "Through that country," he said, "great danger now threatens all other European nations. To understand this situation you have to know what is happening in Russia. The Government of Moscow will soon be in a position to take care of itself regardless of the economic blockade. The result depends upon the military activities of the Russians after they reach this point."

"Most of the military men believe that Russia will not bother about the terri-

Semi-Official Statement Warns Nation Near East Is Astir.

AFGHANISTAN RED ALLY

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—England was warned today to be prepared for new military operations of considerable importance.

The success of the Bolsheviki against Denikin and Kolchak and their efforts to spread revolutionary doctrines in Persia, the Caucasus, Mesopotamia, and India have caused the War Office to expect military commitments on a very large scale in the next few months in the Middle East.

Peace with Germany has been signed, but experts believe England must still be ready to meet her imperial responsibilities. Trouble seems to be coming to a head through the power the Bolsheviki have gained in the countries east of the Caspian Sea and north of Afghanistan and India. Tashkent is the new storm centre and has been occupied by cavalry, and as the Bolsheviki have seized large oil supplies from the volunteers, they are able to reinforce them by rail from Askahabad. The journey takes six days and troop trains are running at the rate of one daily.

The Bolshvist forces are commanded by officers of the old Regime, now turned into soldiers of fortune, whatever may be their attitude toward Leninism, and they find no lack of recruits from among the Hungarian prisoners of war oc active Communistic persuasion.

The Bolshevist detachments are marching on Khiva to deal with the remnants of Kolchak's forces, retreating south, and a party of the Bolsheviki and Turks have reached Herat with airplane parts, petrols, and a wireless outfit, and are proceeding toward Kabul, under escort of Afghan Cavalry. Meanwhile, at Tashkent, the Bolsheviki have established propaganda schools, where its agents, destined for India, China, and Moslem countries, are taught appropriate languages. The Soviet has decided to concentrate efforts on India first. This situation, serious enough in itself, is rendered still more serious by the belief among Oriental experts here that events in the Trans-Caspian region must be considered closely connected with the unrest in other directions of the Middle East, and the two anti-Bolshivist republics in the Caucasus.

Georgea and Azerbaijan have just been recognized at Paris, but their very existence is threatened by Red forces from the north and from across the Caspian on the east.

There is already a considerable Bolshevist element in Baku, and if their friends were to land there, they would have recruits ready to land. The coast district of Daghestan also is practically defenseless and numbers of Turks are threatening more trouble by invading the Caucasus from the south.

Meanwhile in Mesopotamia a chieftain called Ramadan Shalash is trying to rouse the tribes within the spheres of British occupation. He is telling them that Germany and Turkey have again declared war on England and has threatened to attack Albu-Kemal unless the British evacuate it. He is openly defiant of the local Arab Government, and General MacMunn, the British commander, has sent him an ultimatum and attacked and dispersed such of his forces as have entered the British territory.

These widespread disturbances are held to be connected with the unrest that had recently caused so much trouble in Egypt and India, and the British military authorities foresee difficult times ahead of them. They expect that an attack on Persia will be the first move in the Bolshevist game, but they are not sure how the danger will develop.

Officials Summoned to Paris.

LONDON, Jan. 15 (Associated Press).—Before peace with Germany is a week old the British public has been brought up sharply against the possibility of another war.

Winston Spencer Churchill, Secretary for War, Walter Hume Long, First Lord of the Admiralty, Earl Beatty, Commander of the Grand Fleet, and Field Marshal Sir Henry H. Wilson, Chief of the Imperial Staff, left London tonight, having been hurriedly summoned to Paris for a consultation with Premier Lloyd George and other British officials there on important military and naval matters.

This summons is connected in the public mind with a semi-official statement, published today calling attention to the threatening situation in the Middle East

Clemenceau Will Run for Presidency And Agrees to Accept Post if Elected

PARIS, Jan. 15.—Premier Clemenceau has accepted nomination for the Presidency of the republic, it was announced tonight.

M. Clemenceau formally authorized his supporters to place his name before the plenary caucus of the Congress of Versailles tomorrow, and promised that, if elected, he would accept the mandate entrusted to him.

Supporters of the Premier immediately decided to order ballots printed bearing M. Clemenceau's name. These will be distributed among the voters at Versailles on Saturday when the assembly convenes.

Tonight's announcement was the first definite information that Premier Clemenceau would stand as a candidate, although it had been assumed generally that he would run for the office, or at least would not refuse to serve if elected.

One of the supporters of M. Clemenceau told The Associated Press that the Premier would have refrained from a public declaration had there been no opposition to his candidacy.

A plenary caucus of Senators and Deputies has been called for tomorrow at 3 o'clock, in which the groups will choose Presidential candidates. Leon Bourgeois is looming up as a dangerous "dark horse" in case the voting is close as between Premier Clemenceau and M. Deschanel.

VERSAILLES, Jan. 15.—Order will be maintained here during the election of President on Saturday by 4,500 troops and 750 gendarmes. The square in front of the Versailles chateau will be kept absolutely free from spectators and streets leading to the chateau will be barred to the public.

ONE RUMELY SUIT ENDED.

Federal Case Dropped, but New York Proceedings Will Continue.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Prosecution of Dr. Edward A. Rumely of New York, charged with violation of the Trading with the Enemy act, was suspended today by United States Attorney John E. Laskey, in the District Supreme Court, under instructions from the Department of Justice.

Mr. Laskey said Dr. Rumely was under similar indictment in New York, where proceedings would continue.

as a result of Bolshevist military successes, which have given the Soviets virtual mastery of the whole of European Russia, for, although it is not yet confirmed that they have entered Odessa, it is believed it cannot be long before they are in full possession of these coast regions.

By their victories the Bolsheviki have secured command of enormous supplies of food, raw materials, coal and rolling stock and other means of transport which they formerly were in need of.

Reds Expected to Push Victory.

Speculation is active in the European capitals as to what will be the next move of the Bolsheviki. It is regarded as certain that, flushed with success, they will not be content with their present conquests, but will seek to extend Bolshevism either eastward or westward.

Expert military opinion inclines to the belief that their next move will be an attack on Poland and the Baltic States, and Warsaw dispatches to the London papers already indicate that the Poles are fully expecting such a move.

The Soviets now undoubtedly command formidable forces, but not sufficient to warrant an attempt to advance both east and west. Against the likelihood of an attack on Poland, which, it is said, will be popular with the Red Generals, is the fact that the Bolshevist flanks would be exposed on the north to an attack by the Letts and on the south to an attack by the Rumanians.

A long semi-official statement, issued here today, seems to indicate that the British Government is more apprehensive of a move eastward, threatening India.

Within the next three months, this statement says, Great Britain may be faced with a serious Bolshevist situation in the Near East, which would mean military commitments, according to expert opinion based on official advices from the theatres of war.

The Bolshevist occupation of Trans-Caspia may be regarded as virtually complete, which makes the position in the Caucasus most difficult from an anti-Red viewpoint. There is little hope of stopping the Bolsheviki from overrunning the Caucasus, and if they succeed they will be able to join Mustapha Kemal Pasha (head of the Turkish Nationalists) and other Turks for Mesopotamian aggression.

Likewise, Red occupation of Trans-Caspia gives the Bolsheviki a base for operations against Persia and extending to India, with the co-operation of Afghanistan. Georgia and Azerbaijan are anti-Bolshevist, but they are not strong enough to resist the invasion which threatens them from the north, where General Denikin's right wing is being pressed back, and from across the Caspian, where the Bolsheviki seem to be well established. There is a large Bolshevist element in Baku, and a Red landing there would probably result in the recruitment of these Bolsheviki immediately.

Daghestan is even more helpless than Georgia and Azerbaijan. Numerous Turks are also penetrating into the Caucasus from the south, with the object of fomenting trouble.

Difficulties in Mesopotamia.

The difficulties in Mesopotamia appear by no means to be finished. Ramadan Shalash, one of the leaders, continues his efforts to stir up the tribes in the British area, and has threatened an attack in case of noncompliance with his demands for evacuation of certain districts. The British General, Maomunn, commanding in Mesopotamia, has issued an ultimatum, ordering the cessation of this agitation, and has attacked and dispersed Ramadan's forces, which had crossed into British territory.

The Reds are pouring troops into Trans-Caspia by greatly improved railways. They have sent detachments toward Khiva, probably with the view of rounding up the scattered forces of the Siberian army. A party of Bolshevist Turks is reported to have arrived at Kabul, Afghanistan, with two parts containing airplane parts and wireless installation, and to have gone on by way of Kandahar and Kabul, escorted by Afghan cavalry.

The Reds have opened fifty propaganda schools at Tashkent, where Oriental languages will be taught, and from which Red agents will be sent to India and China and all the Moslem countries. The Tashkent Soviet recently determined to concentrate all its efforts first on India.

From Siberia comes the report that the remnants of the Siberian Army, numbering 15,000, have laid down their arms. General Semenoff, who was defeated in an attack on Irkutsk, is east of Baikal trying to consolidate his position supported by Japanese. Vladivostok appears to be quiet, although a general strike is in progress. It was preceded by a violent demonstration in which the Allies were bitterly assailed.

In South Russia the Reds are driving on toward Odessa, and the invasion of the Crimea is imminent. Possession of the Crimea, with Sebastopol, would give the Reds free access to the Black Sea.

All the possibilities of the situation will be discussed by the important conference assembling at Paris. It is perhaps significant in connection with possible Bolshevist activities in the Middle East and the attitude of the Moslem populations generally toward England that, whereas a fortnight ago it was stated that Premier Lloyd George had been victorious in carrying the British view in favor of excluding the Turks from Constantinople and removing the capital of the new Turkey to Asia Minor against the opposition of President Clemenceau and the French statesmen who wished to retain the Turks in Constantinople, it is said now that the French view is prevailing in the Paris Conference.

This may be explained as possibly due to the new turn in events, as removal of the caliphate from Constantinople would have produced a strong anti-British feeling through the Moslem world. It may be said that official circles here appear to be more impressed with the danger to British interests in the Near and Middle East through Bolshevist propaganda than with possible military developments.

British Press Divided.

The British press is sharply divided into two divergent lines in connection with the Government's treatment of the Bolshevist question. One section, strongly anti-Bolshevist, sharply attacks Premier Lloyd George, charging him with responsibility for the weakening of the causes of Denikin and Kolchak by dalliance with Prinkipo conference ideas and various Bolshevist overtures. These papers also take the line that Germany is behind and in conspiracy with the Bolshevist manoeuvres.

The other section, representing the policy of non-intervention in Russia, attributes all the trouble to Mr. Churchill, the Secretary for War, and military influences. It charges the Government with indulging in wholesale propaganda to misrepresent the Russian situation and argues that it has made a disastrous mistake in refusing to negotiate peace with the Soviets.

The Star, commenting on the statement regarding the Bolshevist activities, describes it as an ominous hint, indicating that the situation in the Middle East may be made an excuse by the British Government for new and extensive military adventures.

GENEVA, Jan. 15.—Enver Pasha, former Turkish Minister of War, who was recently elected King of Kurdistan, has started a Bolshevist revolution in Turkestan, Afghanistan, and Baluchistan, according to a telegram from Baku. Enver is said to have many followers, and is directing his energies against British prestige in Southwestern Asia, the ultimate aim being India.

Large sums of money, it is reported, have been furnished Enver by the Soviet Government in Moscow.

This is the first time on record that a Bolshevist movement has been started by a monarch.

WASHINGTON FORESAW CRISIS.

Lenin Seeking to Make Good Boast of Worldwide Revolution.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—A high official of the State Department stated late tonight that he had received no information concerning the Council of War for which the British Army and Navy have been summoned to Paris.

There is not the slightest doubt, however, in the minds of well-informed officials and diplomats here, that the Bolshevist menace is rapidly reaching the point where it may become necessary for the great powers to deal with the problem in a military way. The threat of a military invasion of Europe and the extension of the Bolshevist military lines into Eastern and Southern Asia have been constantly in the mind of well-informed diplomats here for several months, as has been made known in these dispatches.

The Bolshevist organization has been transformed in the last year from a political to a military machine, and it is known here that the program of Lenin and Trotsky has been to use this machine to hold them in power until they could carry forward plans for starting a worldwide revolution in 1920. In all his recent utterances, Lenin has been boasting that the year 1920 would witness the overthrow of the Governments of the world and the substitution of the rule of the proletariat.

Much that is happening now was also predicted by President Wilson when he returned with the Versailles treaty last year. One of the arguments that the President made in his round table conference with Senators of the Foreign Relations Committee some months ago at the White House in favor of immediate action on the treaty was that if peace were not soon declared and the League of Nations promptly set into operation there was danger of revolutionary outbreaks and upheavals in Europe taking place. The idea of the President was that the League of Nations would be able to make proposals for dealing with any menace to the peace of the world, even the menace of Bolshevist militarism.

All the communist literature seized in the recent raids against the Reds in this country was bitterly condemnatory of the League of Nations project, as it was regarded by the Soviet leaders as a plan that would aid in thwarting the Bolshevist movement.

The movement of the Bolsheviki toward India is intended, military experts here say, to create a situation that would render difficult for the British Government to send military forces to the European front for use against the Bolsheviki when they inaugurate their forward movement against Poland, Czechoslovakia and the Baltic States, for Czechoslovakia is being threatened as much as Poland, and explains the anxiety of the country to get its forces home from Siberia as rapidly as possible.

There are signs that the Bolsheviki will start their forward movement in the North this Spring. The Soviet leaders are understood to be counting upon their invasion of Europe to stir up the inflammable material of unrest in Germany, Hungary and Austria. Reactionary and militaristic influences in Germany are expected to make the most of any such situation, and this is another of the very real dangers of the situation.

DRIVE ON ODESSA HALTED BY DENIKIN

Moscow Claims Capture of Rostov and Other Towns, with Thousands of Prisoners.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The British Military Mission with General Denikin at the latter's headquarters in Ekaterinodar reports under today's date that the Caucasus Army, in the line behind the Aksai River, repulsed in heavy fighting five frontal attacks and an attempt to turn its left flank.

The report of the British Mission says the advance of the Bolsheviki on Odessa has been stopped.

It also states that the report that General Denikin has been superseded by General Wrangel or any other commander is untrue.

The statement says the Don army holds the line of the Don River from its junction with the Aksai to its mouth, and that the Reds failed to force the passage of the river at any of the five points where this was attempted. Crossing the river would be difficult, it is stated, except for small parties of cavalry, because the roads are deep in mud.

The volunteer army is said to be holding the line from Nikopol to Melitopol, north of the Crimea.

The Bolsheviki have captured Rostov-on-Don, according to a wireless dispatch from Moscow.

Ten thousand prisoners, thirty-two guns, nine tanks and an enormous amount of baggage were taken, the statement says.

"Street fighting started in Rostov on Jan. 9 and lasted the whole day," the communication continues. "The town was cleared on the 10th and the enemy driven back beyond Bataisk, Gerlio and Akasishal." The enemy destroyed the small bridges over the Don, but the large railway bridge was not damaged.

"A Revolutionary Committee has been formed at Rostov."

Further capture of prisoners on the Turkestan front is reported in another communiqué sent out by wireless from Moscow. Eastward of Guriev, eleven miles inland from the Caspian Sea, on the Ural River, the Red armies are reported to have taken the Fourth and Fifth Divisions of the Anti-Soviet forces, together with the commander-in-chief of the Fourth Division.

South of Chernyi Yar, 150 miles northwest of Astrakhan, on the Volga River, the Bolsheviki also claim to have captured 600 prisoners.

Bolshevist forces have also captured Nikopol (on the Dnieper River, seventy-five miles from its mouth) and Melitopol (in the Crimea). The statement says the Bolshevist troops have reached a line of villages fifty miles to the west and thirty miles to the southwest of Nikopol.

Yet another Moscow dispatch says that the reports of the capture of Admiral Kolchak, head of the All-Russian Government in Siberia, have been confirmed.

Sentence of death will be imposed on enemies of the Soviet Russian Government hereafter only when approved by the All-Russian Extraordinary Commission, the dispatch says, and that a return to methods of terrorism will be made necessary only by renewal of attempts on the part of the Entente to hinder the workers and peasants in establishing a system of Socialist economics.

Destruction of the counter-revolution and the annihilation of bandits, the Extraordinary Commission says, "affords us the possibility of abandoning the extremist measure of punishment, namely, the shooting of enemies of Soviet Russia. The Revolutionary government is glad to state that the fall of Rostov and the capture of Admiral Kolchak affords it the possibility of putting aside the weapon of terror."

MORGENTHAU REPORT URGES HELP TO POLAND

Says We Should Send Experts There to Formulate Means to Restore the Land.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Pressing necessity of the re-establishment of normal conditions in Poland and the creation of a stable Government through the League of Nations or on the initiative of the separate Powers, is recommended by the American commission, which spent two months in Poland dast Summer.

The report of the delegation, the personnel of which included Henry Morgenthau, Brigadier General Edgar Jadwin, and Homer H. Johnson, and which was sent to investigate conditions on authority of the American Peace Commission, was transmitted to the Senate today by the State Department in response to a Senate resolution.

The report is in two parts, one prepared by Mr. Morgenthau and the other by General Jadwin in collaboration with Mr. Johnson.

Mr. Morgenthau recommended that the League of Nations or the principal world powers should send immediately to Poland recognized industrial and economic experts to formulate measures needed to rehabilitate the country. One of the chief obstacles in the way of restoration mentioned by Mr. Morgenthau was the persistence of an internal strife which threatened to disrupt the body politic.

The report outlined the dangers from outside powers "to protect Poland from the menace of external interference by the application of Article X. of the Covenant of the League of Nations.

To further by means of judiciously administered external help the recovery of Poland from five years of war.

To study the question of overpopulation or underindustrialization.

The further the rapid development of Polish education.

To guarantee to Poland the disinterested counsel of the Allied democracies, based on their previous experience.

SPEED ON TREATY URGED.

Report of State Bar Committee to be Acted Upon Today.

The New York State Bar Association at its annual meeting today will act upon a resolution by its Committee on International Arbitration urging a speedy agreement between President Wilson and the Senate. The resolution reads:

Resolved, That this association respectfully urges the President and the Senate of the United States to consider the great importance of a speedy agreement upon the terms of peace between then ations which have recently been engaged in war, and upon such a covenant between them as may in the future make wars less probable, promote the settlement of international disputes by peaceful methods, and provide for annual conferences at which subjects of mutual interest may be deliberately considered. It respectfully recommends that the same method of mutual conciliation and concession which prevailed during the consideration by the plenipotentiaries of the different nations of the terms of the pending treaty between them should be continued so as to lead to an adjustment of present differences between the Executive and Senate, at whatever time, and that the Constitution on th one hand the Senate has no power to make a treaty and on the other hand that ratification by two-thirds of the Senators present is necessary to the validity of the treaty.

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted by the Secretary to the President and to each Senator of the United States.

BRITISH SCRAP 183 SHIPS.

More Than 100 Will Be Sold—Disposal of Others Undetermined.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The British Admiralty is disposing of 183 warships of various classes, including five obsolete battleships and fifteen cruisers. More than one hundred will be sold. The method if disposing of the remaining eventy-nine has not yet been determined.

The battleships are the Bellerophon, London, Albexarie, Exmouth and Jupiter.

COMMUNIST TERROR HOLDS RED ARMIES

Network of Spies Through All Ranks Makes Any Move to Revolt Impossible.

PRISONERS TELL OF SYSTEM

"Flying Tribunal" Quickly Disposes Of Men Accused of Coldness to Bolshevism.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

RIGA, Jan. 13.—An interrogation of Red prisoners in which THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent took part a couple of days ago reveals the Bolshevist system in its true light as one of the most damnable tyrannies in history. It is a pity some of the zealous advocates of Bolshevist theories were not present to learn how Bolshevism works in practice. Actually it is a compound of force, terror and espionage, utterly ruthless in conception and execution. The correspondent saw several dozen prisoners examined, varying in rank from brigadier general and commissar to newly drafted privates.

This was in the low-raftered living room of a house in Marienhausen, the headquarters of the Eighth Lettish Regiment, which two days before had been a Communist drug store. At least there was a sign to that effect about the entrance and neatly labelled bottles were ranged around the front of the room. But all were empty and the communist brother in charge of the establishment had been heard to declare it was no use wasting good medicine on peasants, and prescriptions were a lot of trouble to make up, so he had put the money for drugs in his own pocket.

The most important and interesting prisoners were later put through a more searching examination at Divisional Headquarters, to whose records the correspondent also has had access. The statements were checked and counterchecked so as to put their accuracy beyond question. What follows is a summary of the whole mass of information:

To begin with, it must be understood there is an enormous difference between the "Communists" and the rest of Soviet Russia. In a scriptural figure, the Communists are the leaven and the rest are the lump. The whole machinery of the Government and army is in the hands of the Communist minority, about 5 per cent. of the total, whose aims and aspirations are no less foreign to those of the great mass of the population than was the case with the imperialist policy of the Czarist régime. Everything—literally everything—is run by the Communists. Here is how the system works:

A Network of Espionage.

The civil administration is practically the same. To each regiment there is attached a commissar, who is really the civil authority appointed by the dreaded Extraordinary Commission of Moscow and responsible only thereto. In theory the commissar has no military standing and cannot give military orders, but he has power to dismiss, imprison or execute the regimental commander if he thinks fit to do so. Each battalion in the regiment has an assistant commissar attached to it. Each company has what is called an organizer, who is a sort of subordinate commissar. Naturally all these are Communists. Below organizers there are the Communist noncoms and the rank and file in the proportion of one to every half dozen men or so. These are really secret police or spies. No one is supposed to know they are Communist and they do their utmost to seem ordinary soldiers. Thus parallel to the military organization of the regiment or other unit there is a network of civilian control and an espionage system reaching right up from the platoon through the regimental, divisional and army staff to the Moscow headquarters of the Extraordinary Commission.

Through this network the Communists hold Russia in a grip of blood. The slightest incautious work is immediately reported, and drastic action follows. One boy of 18 told how somebody had grumbled about the worthlessness of Soviet money as compared with the Czar's rubles in the old days. A week later he disappeared, and it was learned later that he had been condemned to four years in a convict prison. Even though the soldiers gradually come to learn the identity of the majority of the Communist spies—and it is startling to see how very eager they are to denounced them when captured—they live in a continual atmosphere of espionage and terror.

The "Flying Tribunal" at Work.

Most feared of all is the "flying tribunal," a body delegated by the Extraordinary Commission to administer "justice" in the army with absolutely unlimited powers. This tribunal will descend suddenly upon a regiment, coming no one knows whence or when. Even the Commissars and Communists tremble while it is present, for they have many enemies, and they are well aware, and who can tell what secret influence, intrigue, or corruption may destroy him?

The tribunal's sittings are the merest farce. Death is the penalty in seven cases out of ten, for life in Russia, never very expensive, is cheaper than bread today. This is almost literally true. At least, in the Fourth Company of the Second Bolshevist Regiment a Sergeant was executed by the Flying Tribunal on the denunciation of an Assistant Commissar, to whom he had declined to sell half a pound of sugar. The terms of the denunciation ran: "This man spoke contemptuously of the Soviet currency, and declared he wished God would strike dead the whole pack of Communist spies and traitors." No witnesses were called. The Flying Tribunal doesn't bother about such trifles, and despite his denials the soldier was shot on the Commissar's unsupported testimony.

Not the least terrible part of the system is the appalling secrecy with which it works. Officers and men vanish one day from the midst of their comrades. Sometimes it is learned later that they have been shot or punished by order of the local commissar; sometimes they are held in prison until the arrival of the Flying Tribunal, but always the result is the same—death or a long term of imprisonment.

Against this system no revolt is possible. No man knows with whom he may safely speak, far less plot, to throw off the yoke. What is more, the commissars, who are generally workmen devoid of military knowledge, have the power to punish what they consider to be military faults or derelictions. Thus the company commander in the 3d Regiment was sent to the penitentiary for ten years by the Flying Tribunal on the report of an assistant commissar that he deliberately sacrificed Communist lives. What actually happened was that he ordered a platoon to outflank and attack a Lettish machine gun post. The Sergeant in charge of the platoon was known to be a Communist and declined to risk his skin. The Captain promptly put him under arrest and led the attack himself, saying, "If I'm shot trying to take the post it will save me from being shot by the Communists. But I take it they must admit I'm right."

He did take post with one man slightly wounded, but he had overestimated the generosity of the Flying Tribunal.

Of course a great majority of these officers and noncommunist troops are serving unwillingly. They are ordered into the army and know if they try to evade the draft or escape their families will pay the penalty with their lives. Neither women nor children are spared. One youngster—a Reval communist this —told the examining officer at headquarters that he found spy work too hateful, that he applied for a different job and was told that if he did not stick to the work or if there was any reason to doubt the genuineness of his activity not only he but his two young sisters in Petrograd would be shot.

The only people to whom any sort of rope is given are the specialists in certain branches of the military service who are greatly lacking in the Red Army. Thus a captured Brigadier had been an engineer Captain on the staff of one of the old Russian armies. For a time he managed to avoid serving the Bolsheviki, but was finally forced to take charge of the construction of a fortified the line near Dvinsk early last year. He deliberately bungled the work thinking it would pass without notice, but he was detected and brought before the Flying Tribunal. The latter promptly condemned him to death. To his surprise the next morning instead of an execution squad there came a commissar with a proposal that in return for his life he consent to command the Third Petrograd Brigade.

"Then I asked but how could they trust you and to make one worse mess of a brigade than you had done of the former job?" he replied simply: "They didn't." They attached a communist to my person who never left me night or day and kept the closest watch. They told me in time I would not have any such easy death as shooting if I played them false."

Under examination the commissar himself made no attempt to deny the facts regarding the Bolshevist system. He was sullen and defiant and boasted peace with England and America was certain in the near future, "because all these capitalist countries are afraid of us." He added that no one could ever break the communist hold on Russia. Perhaps he is right, but all powerful as the system is as a means of control of the army it has grave defects from the standpoint of morale and military efficiency.

GOODRICH TO GO ON BALLOT

Indiana Governor to Enter Preference Primary for Presidency.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 15.—It became known today that the name of Governor James P. Goodrich would be placed on the Presidential preference ballot, to be voted on at the primary in May.

No announcement has been made by the Governor relative to his candidacy for the Presidential nomination, and it is not expected that any formal announcement will be made.

Methodists Call for Treaty Action.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 15.—Immediate ratification of the Peace Treaty, including the League of Nations covenant, was asked in a telegram forwarded today to the United States Senate and to President Wilson by the Commission of Fifty of the Methodist Episcopal Churches, North and South, in convention here. "We hold it to be the imperative duty of any assembly of Christians at this critical juncture in the affairs of mankind both to think and speak for the peace of the world and the welfare of humanity," said the telegram.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS TO CONTROL FIUME

Nitti Says Italy, France, and Britain Have Agreed, and Hopes America Will Also.

MATTER UP TO JUGOSLAVS

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—Premier Nitti of Italy said tonight that he regarded the Adriatic problem as on the verge of settlement, and added that if it was not adjusted now it was not his fault, nor the fault of his country.

Previous to making this attempt the Italian Premier agreed to an important concession in the plan of settlement which has been sent to Belgrade—Italy would renounce sovereignty over Fiume, the city to be a free city, touching on Italian Istria, its Italian character to be recognized and its port and railroad facilities to be under the League of Nations. This represents the limit of Italian concessions, it is understood.

In an interview with English and American journalists Nitti placed the responsibility for further difficulties upon the Jugoslavs. He dwelt upon the concessions Italy had made in the Adriatic. "Incidentally it is known that Lloyd George and Clemenceau have let the Jugoslavs understand that if they do not accept the proposed settlement England and France will insist on the execution of the treaty of London.

Nitti began the interview by saying that the United States had placed entirely too much importance upon Fiume and the Adriatic. He said Italy, a nation of 40,000,000, had been made to look as if she had gone mad about the Adriatic, which he compared in size to Lake Michigan. He denied that the Adriatic problem had great political significance in Italy.

Nitti declined to go into the details of the proposed plan, saying someone else must talk about that, but in reply to a question a moment later he admitted the port and railroad of Fiume would go to the League of Nations.

"You see," he said, "Italy is frankly very anxious to settle this business. It has dragged out too long. We do not regard the Jugoslavs as enemies, we regard them as friends. I repeat we are reasonable. We entered the war with the treaty of London, and there has never been any question about its being carried out. But to promote friendship all around we began to make concessions to reach a compromise. England and France have tried to effect a friendly settlement, and you know the stage it has reached. I hope the Jugoslave will not stir up bad feeling by refusing to accept it at once."

Sees Us in Everything.

When asked if the United States will have a rôle to play in the settlement, Nitti threw up his hands and broke into a laugh.

"The United States," he said, "is in everything."

When he was asked if the proposed plan and its changes had been sent to Washington, he replied:

"Ask Ambassador Wallace."

As a matter of fact a copy has been handed to the American Ambassador.

Nitti added that if Italy and the Jugoslavs agreed on the plan proposed by England and France he did not for a moment consider the possibility of President Wilson objecting to it. "Emphasize in America," he said, "that this matter must be settled. It cannot go on as it has been, for it is dangerous to the peace of Europe. America loves peace, and should want it settled. Italy wants peace and she wants it settled. I feel it is better for us to give up some things now than to have to fight in a few years to keep them."

Nitti went on to defend his country against charges of imperialism. He said his country had a smaller percentage of its population living in colonies than any other European power.

Denies Charge of Imperialism.

"Tell that to the people of America," he said. "Italy is not imperialistic. And neither is Italy on the verge of revolution. In three hundred years we have had no revolution, unless you count the fight for liberation. We are a people of common sense, and we are getting down to work. Tell your Americans that our economic situation is good—the best in Europe.

"Tell them we have the smallest war debt of any of the Allies, and we know how we are going to take care of it. We opened a loan the other day so we could reduce the circulation of paper money. It was made necessary by the war, and our people, understanding it, have come forward nobly and the loan is an entire success. We are suffering from the exchange rate, it is true, but we have hopes for that. We are not a crazy people. We are about our business. We want to settle this Fiume business, which has been so much exaggerated in America, and we want to build up our national prosperity—and we will."

When he was asked how he intended to get d'Annunzio out of Fiume Nitti answered that that would be solved without trouble. He did not go into details.

Nitti was asked if Italy was considering opening relations with Soviet Russia. Like a shot he answered:

"Italy will do as the other Allies do. We must act together."

LETTS DRIVE REDS ON 80-MILE FRONT

By WALTER DURANTY.

around the Communist right while the rest of the Partisan force pressed home a frontal attack to keep the enemy where he was. This force drove on until it reached a village right behind the Communist rear, then they went forward all together. The Reds fought to the bitter end, but, taken in front and on the right flank and rear, their position was hopeless and hardly any escaped.

That was the situation when we arrived on Sunday noon at the headquarters of Colonel Berkins (his position is that of Divisional General), and he actually is commanding the whole eighty miles of active front, but in the Lettish Army there is none above the rank of Colonel), who explained to us the general outline of the operations.

On Sunday afternoon and night and on Monday the whole line made great progress. Once the Communists were broken there is no fight in the Bolshevist army, and only a terrific blizzard and natural difficulties of the terrain saved the Reds from utter rout. As it was the Letts on Monday morning at 2 o'clock took the town of Meny on the Riga-Rigsiza Railroad, some twelve miles west of the latter town—an advance in twenty-four hours of nearly seventeen miles. Here they captured a regimental staff and 180 men, also considerable supplies.

Railroad Line Is Cut.

Further north the Partisans and a force of the Second Lettish Regiment occupied the important depot of Kharashov on the main line of the Rigsiza-Pskov Railway, where they secured two locomotives and a quantity of rolling stock, thus cutting communication between Rigsiza and the north, though there is still another line open from Rigsiza due east to Moscow.

Still further northeast cavalry detachment under Colonel Krustin pushed forward and cut the same Rigsiza-Pskov Railroad at a point a few miles south of the town of Ostrov, where the Bolsheviki have concentrated large forces, brought from the Esthonian front—in defiance of the armistice conditions which stipulate that neither side shall move troops elsewhere. This operation had further value in that a Bolshevist armored train, carrying four field guns and many machine guns, was shut between the point cut and Kharashov. It is still able to operate on a piece of the loop line between Marienhausen Station and Pultowa junction, the latter being on the Rigsiza-Pskov main line. At Marienhausen the Letts have also an armored train, but armed only with two field guns.

To the eastward a battery of four English guns handled by Lettish gunners was firing upon the village of Gorki. Information from an observation post ahead was rather confused, so we moved forward to within half a mile of Gorki, which was about a mile across the fortified frontier, to see what was the matter. We found the observation officers trying to trace the shellbursts through the driving blizzard so thick that one could see nothing fifty yards away. The Colonel thought it best to wait for clearer weather. The village is known to be held by several machine guns and a considerable force.

Attack in Deep Snow.

The company commander on the spot and his men were so keen for the assault that the Colonel agreed to allow them to try a double move from either flank on condition they did not quite push the attack home if the enemy fire was still severe. This was perfectly amazed by the spirit of the Lettish troops. The snow was knee deep already and was driven full in their faces by a hurricane, but off they went, half a company on the left, with two light and two heavy machine guns. The latter were carried on sledges and fired from small sledges, but the former were lifted through the snowdrifts by main force by two men.

When the time came to fire them the snow was too deep for their short tripods, so one man lay down flat on his stomach holding the gun steady on his back while the loaders, while the other fired it over his head. But the Bolsheviki, with machine guns comfortably ensconced in the sheltered huts, had too much the best of the game. They had previously determined the range of the fire against the assaults, pounding up to the walls in the night, and after half an hour the Captain was forced to call the attack off for the moment, though his casualties were not serious. When we left the gunners, ponies, and a few enthusiastic local divisions, including a woman and a small boy of 13, were all tugging and hauling one of the guns of the battery on a sleigh along a narrow track up to the observation post to get that when the weather cleared it could bombard the village "with open sights," that is, point blank at range which in a big war would have meant certain death for all concerned.

At the moment of cabling, the Letts are in firm possession of all points taken and still pushing on toward Rigsiza. Yesterday they beat off a heavy counterattack at Kharashov, as they had the previous one at Marienhausen. They have taken upwards of 1,000 prisoners, and killed at least as many more, and smashed three Bolshevist divisions.

The only danger spot is on the extreme left, owing to the Bolshevist concentration at Ostrow, in view of which Colonel Krustin has swung the left half of his forces around until they face northeast, instead of southeast. It is doubtful whether the Reds, despite their great numerical superiority, are in a state to dare such an attack. Anyhow, the Letts are ready for them.

When the soldiers came back disappointed from the assault on Gorki, one of them shouted cheerfully to Colonel Porok, "You're driving them too hard, Sir. This is no weather to hunt rats out of their holes. If only you would let them counterattack, then we'd show them—we'd let them come and smash them, as we did at Marienhausen."

LEAGUE OF NATIONS ORGANIZES TODAY

Bourgeois to Preside at First Session and May Be Permanent Chairman.

FRENCH PRESS MORE KINDLY

Chance Seen for Influencing the League's Character Until America Comes In.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—The press today gave much attention to the first meeting of the Council of the League of Nations which will take place tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock at the French Ministry of Foreign Affairs. The tone of the editorials is distinctly more favorable than were previous comments on the prospects of the league. Apparently every one wishes to give the league a chance.

At tomorrow's meeting M. Bourgeois, representing France, will preside. Lord Curzon will represent England, Minister Sisoioja, Italy; Ambassador Matsu, Japan; Premier Venezilos, Greece; Minister Hymans, Belgium; Ambassador Quinones de Leon, Spain, and Ruy Barbosa, Brazil. Addresses will be made by Messrs. Bourgeois, Curzon, and Hymans.

Representatives of the press of the world will be admitted to the meeting, which will be held in the Clock Hall."

It is understood that the Council will elect a permanent Chairman, and it is believed that Bourgeois will be named.

The Midi warns that the beginning of the League of Nations is ging to be beset by plaints of pessimists, who will talk about America's absence. It adds:

"This absence is only temporary, and that gives France opportunity to put her mark upon the league."

The editor complains about the prevailing pessimism in France about the league as opposed to the optimism of the British, and says:

"The English do not fool themselves. They know that sooner or later America will come into the league, and they know that this would now be an accomplished fact were it not that 1920 is Presidential year over there. At the worst we will have America's adhesion after next November's election.

"If France has vision she will profit by this delay by imposing her stamp on the League of Nations. The ideas is of French origin, and it is regretable that French logic and common sense did not give it a more concrete form. But the thing is not lost, since in the new organization France is represented by men who will not allow themselves to go to sleep in the armchairs of the old diplomacy."

The Temps tonight pleads for a fair deal for the League, saying:

"On the threshold of this new era some of our confreres persist in criticising the League of Nations. We do not reproach them for expressing their convictions. Perhaps they render aid to the cause which they attack, for criticism is always helpful. However, criticisms should have some foundation. If such attributes to the League imaginary wrongs, the best wishes of the world will not be able to correct them.

"One hears at this time two contradictory complaints. One charges it with having become simply an administrative commission for the enforcement of certain clauses of the treaty. The other accuses it of ambition to become a super-State which can intervene in the affairs of every country.

"We do not see how the league can deserve at one time two such accusations, and we believe that it merits neither the indignity of the one nor the excessive honor of the other.

It is not reduced to the rôle of an administrative commission. Neither is the League of Nations constituted as a superstate. Aside from creating an organization to supervise the work of the governments of the world, it tends, on the contrary, to draw from each country the elements of its existence. It tries to unite and co-ordinate the services that each Government offers or will offer, according to its own plans.

"Of all the nations France is probably the most advanced in this work. It already possesses machinery for coordinating the machinery of its Government with that of the League of Nations. We have special services ready in each Ministry to work with the League of Nations.

"As we see it, the rôle of the League will be above all to co-ordinate the services, thus established in the different countries, to supply the means of conferring together and to bring about under the direction of the council and of the assembly by natural methods which respect independence and defy all obstacles, an international organization which will try to eliminate, little by little, the causes of suffering and the chances of conflict in the world.

This is the work which begins tomorrow. Be glad that it begins at Paris. Hope that it will succeed.

This is a new view of the League of Nations for the French Government. It means that not having obtained the league of great power France wanted she hopes yet to see something built out of the present organization.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—While the League of Nations will come into being tomorrow morning at a public ceremony Hugh C. Wallace, American Ambassador to France and representative at the Peace Conference, will not attend.

BRYAN TREATY PLEA FAILS

time. We must have something definite done before we can give out anything."

Senator Lodge said that the Democrats present were unanimous concerning their desires in the way of changes in the Lodge reservations. It was considered significant that the original Lodge reservations, and not some compromise plan, such as the McKellar-Kendrick reservation program, was used as the basis of discussion.

Mr. Lodge refused to say what turn the discussion took on Article X., the chief point in controversy. He expects a further interchange of views on that subject.

Senator Hitchcock, though declining, as did all the other Senators, to go into details, said he regarded it as the duty of the Democrats to enter today's conference. Mr. Hitchcock said, however, that it was one of the hardest things he ever did. He has heretofore held aloof from conferences, except for talks with individual Senators.

Bryan Suggests Party Abstention.

While this conference was going on, Mr. Bryan, who arrived at the Capitol shortly before it began, circulated among Senators. He first saw Senator McKellar, who helped write the McKellar-Kendrick reservations, known as the Bryan reservations. Mr. Bryan also saw Senator Kenyon, another worker for compromise, and Senator Kendrick. He expects to see other Senators tomorrow in the interval between ceremonies celebrating the death of John Barleycorn, which he is here to attend.

Mr. Bryan made no secret of his mission. He said he came to the Capitol to see what could be done to hasten ratification. He had a concrete plan to present, and he presented it. It was the same he had suggested earlier in the week in a speech at Chicago.

"I have been asked," Mr. Bryan said, "how the Democratic Party could enable the majority in the Senate to cast the two-thirds vote necessary for ratification." The answer is that two-thirds of a quorum can ratify a quorum is present. In other words, a two-thirds vote is two-thirds of those present and voting. The Democrats by simply refusing to vote would make it possible for a majority of the whole Senate to cast the two-thirds vote necessary to ratification.

Mr. Bryan explained that this course was suggested as a last resort, and that he hoped a compromise would be possible, giving a larger vote for ratification and thus adding weight to it, but if such an agreement could not be reached the Democrats, he maintained, could not afford to share with the Republicans the responsibility.

Sees Great Demand for Action.

"I believe," he continued, "that an overwhelming majority of the American people want the treaty ratified right away. There is a great deal more interest in speedy ratification than there is in phraseology. That is, the public will indorse any arrangement that is made here if the arrangement hastens ratification, and takes this issue out of the way. An agreement is infinitely better than any other settlement for two reasons:

"First—It takes the question out of politics and permits both parties to turn their attention to very important domestic issues.

"Second—It permits ratification by a larger majority than would be possible under any other plans. That gives the greatest possible weight to our action and has a tremendous influence abroad.

"These two reasons help us at home as well as abroad, and ought to be sufficient to compel an agreement. I feel sure that the expressions from the public constantly growing in number and force will compel an agreement among the eighty-one Senators who voted for ratification in some form—at least an agreement among enough to furnish the necessary two-thirds majority.

"In my speech at the Jackson Day dinner I went further and suggested a way by which the Democrats could compel a settlement; namely, by letting a majority of the Senate take the responsibility for action if an agreement is found impossible. I said that the Democratic Party could not afford to go before the country on the issue that a minority of the Senate had a right to dictate the policy in case of a disagreement. The party could not afford to take advantage of a Constitutional provision requiring a two-thirds majority to ratify because that would simply mean a filibuster against a majority, and in this way we could not defend a course which would make it harder to ratify a treaty and on a war than to declare war, which can be done by a majority.

"If the Constitution were being rewritten in the light of present-day sentiment, I think that a majority would be able to terminate a war.

"If any one thinks that this plan I have outlined is a concession to the Republican Party he hasn't thought the matter out. Yielding to the majority in this country does not mean either approval of what the majority does or the ending of the contest. It is simply the acquiescence in the will of the majority, which Jefferson says is the first rule of a republic, from which there is no appeal except to force.

"An appeal can be made to the country to reverse in the League of Nations any action taken by the Senate and to authorize the restoration of any provision stricken out. My opinion is that the Democratic Party can make a much more successful fight before the people for authority to restore than it can for authority to retain, if it must share responsibility with the Republicans for fourteen months' delay.

"The world is in a chaotic condition. Yesterday's papers recorded a mob of 30,000 people before the Reichstag in Berlin.

"We have proclaimed the benefits of a democracy in which the people rule and in a number of countries the people have accepted our invitation or advice and are trying to frame Governments like ours. We are not strengthening those Governments when we allow less democratic

HUNGARIANS HAVE PEACE TREATY TERMS

Dutasta Tells Apponyi He Need Not Concern Himself About America's Attitude.

FIFTEEN DAYS FOR REPLY

Hungary Is Required to Recognize Annexations and Adhere to Austrian Treaty.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—The Hungarian Treaty was handed to Count Apponyi, head of the Budapest delegation, this afternoon. Hungary is accorded fifteen days to consider the treaty and send its reply to Paris.

Yesterday Count Apponyi sent a rather offensive letter to Paul Dutasta, Secretary General of the Peace Conference, demanding to know where America stood with regard to the Hungarian Treaty. Dutasta sent a reply saying that Ambassador Wallace would represent the United States at the Supreme Council meeting when the treaty would be handed over, and that that was as far as Count Apponyi need concern himself about America's standing in the matter.

This afternoon's meeting of the Supreme Council was perhaps the last that body will hold. Its work will be turned over to a committee of Ambassadors. A proposal was referred two days ago to the three Premiers to formulate conditions for the transfer of their duties. While no official announcement has been made, it is understood that the Supreme Council, as it has been constituted, is through. The committee of Ambassadors, on which it is said Mr. Wallace will sit, will refer to the respective Governments all question arising from time to time. The Secretary of this committee probably will receive any communication which Germany or other former enemy States might care to make, and refer them to the proper authorities, either the Treaty Commission or the foreign offices.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—The terms of peace for Hungary framed by the Peace Conference were handed to the Hungarian delegation here this afternoon. The Hungarians have fifteen days in which to present their observations.

The treaty was received by Count Albert Apponyi, head of the delegation, from the hands of Paul Dutasta, General Secretary of the Peace Conference, in the presence of Premiers Clemenceau, Lloyd George and Nitti, who were conferring in the office of the French Foreign Ministry, and Hugh C. Wallace, the American Ambassador, and Baron Matsui, the Japanese Ambassador, who entered the office shortly before the Hungarian plenipotentiaries.

Premier Clemenceau made a short address in the course of which he specified the time allowed Hungary to reply. He added that the council had decided unanimously to grant the request of Count Apponyi that he be permitted to explain verbally before the Allied Council the present situation of the Hungarian Government. M. Clemenceau said this would be allowed, provided that no discussion should follow. The council will hear Count Apponyi tomorrow.

The entire ceremony of the presentation lasted barely five minutes.

The Hungarian peace treaty provides that Hungary shall formally waive claim to Fiume and all the former Austro-Hungarian territories awarded to Italy, Rumania, Jugoslavia and Czechoslovakia. Hungary must adhere to the clauses of the treaty with Austria, signed at St. Germain, concerning national minorities.

Under the terms of the treaty the Hungarian army must not exceed 35,000 men, with guns of not more than ten centimetre calibre. Hungary assumes a proportional share of the Austrian debt.

Most of the remaining clauses of the treaty are similar to those of the treaty of St. Germain.

A special economic clause provides that an arrangement shall be made for the exchange of foodstuffs, raw materials and manufactured goods between Austria and Hungary. By the provision of this clause Hungary undertakes not to restrict the export of foodstuffs to Austria, and insures to Austrian purchasers terms as favorable as those given to the Hungarians.

CHARGE HUGE GRAFT IN COAST SHIPYARDS

and it is known that a mass of evidence has been gathered.

Special Agent Tidwell left his treasury post today to give his entire attention to the shipyards investigation. He handled the prosecution of the western fuel cases here, through which several prominent San Francisco capitalists were convicted, and through which the Government recovered nearly a million dollars in customs duties on coal.

Schlesinger, at the request of Attorney General Palmer, two months ago, left his private law practice to devote his entire time to the shipyard investigation.

Schlesinger will personally handle the trials expected to grow out of the investigation.

Washington Silent on Evidence.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Department of Justice officials admitted tonight that an investigation of financial transactions in Pacific Coast shipbuilding had been ordered, but declined to indicate the nature of the evidence obtained. Officials of the Shipping Board likewise were silent on the reported disclosures of fraud.

The investigation, it was recalled, was instigated by former Chairman Hurley of the Shipping Board. It was on the attention of the Board about eight months ago to go into the books of the shipbuilding companies itself but plans later were changed and the whole matter turned over to Attorney General Palmer. There was no intimation at that time, however, that the alleged fraud would attain any such proportions as Government agents now believe they have uncovered.

Information which came out piecemeal here tended to show that at least seven large shipbuilding corporations are involved in the alleged fraud. Their identity was not disclosed and probably will not be until Federal indictments have been obtained and executed. The Government was said to be preparing its case with a view to avoiding certain legal technicalities which have led to long-drawn out fights in attempts to recover illegally paid funds on certain other wartime contracts.

The opinion among officials here seemed to be that the alleged fraudulent transactions were limited to yards on the Pacific Coast. It was said that no reasons for investigating Atlantic and Gulf Coast yards had been presented thus far. Although several illegal transactions were discovered in some of the Eastern yards shortly after the signing of the armistice they were cleared up without resort to courts.

GERMANY WILL OBEY TREATY, SAYS BAUER

But Chancellor Expects Entente Will Permit Mitigations if Fulfillments Prove Impossible.

LONDON, Jan. 15 (Associated Press).—The German Chancellor, Gustav Bauer, has declared in a statement to the press that Germany intends to carry out the terms of the Peace Treaty. A wireless message from Berlin quotes him as follows:

"We are resolved to carry out the Versailles Treaty, however difficult, for we have no desire to pursue a policy of revenge. But we also expect that the Entente will be prepared to permit mitigations when it has been proved that fulfillment of the treaty in its present form is impossible. For if the treaty is to be carried out in the same spirit as the armistice, it will not mean the commencement of a state of peace, but the continuation of war by political means.

"I trust that the Entente will soon realise that it lies in its own interests to alleviate the peace conditions, first in practice, then in form."

Complaining of the regulations of the Inter-Allied Rhineland Commission, as reminiscent of "Czarist Russia," the Chancellor continued:

"I hope the Entente will soon appreciate that in this way it is impossible to create stable conditions, not only on general juridical principles, but also for reasons of real policy."

PARIS, Jan. 15.—The German Commissioner in the Memel territory has issued a proclamation, announcing the transfer of sovereignty over the region to the Allied and Associated Powers, according to a dispatch from Koenigsberg.

The German troops began to evacuate Silesia yesterday.

Admiral Koontz Says Lack of Men Keeps Four Dreadnoughts from Pacific Fleet.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—A naval force of 638 ships, as compared to 231 in 1916, was recommended to the House Naval Committee today by Admiral Koontz, Chief of Operations, who based his proposals, he said, on "world conditions, the economic situation and diplomatic advices."

Appropriations for 1921 were estimated at $573,000,000, as compared with $613,000,000 in 1920.

The navy still has 261 vessels to sell, Admiral Koontz said, mostly submarine chasers, but including several pre-dreadnought battleships, old cruisers, gunboats and monitors, in order to get down to the strength estimated to be necessary. A general "housecleaning" of ships of doubtful military value is in progress, he added, the force to be retained including 17 dreadnoughts, 13 pre-dreadnoughts, 8 armored cruisers, 18 cruisers, 14 gunboats, 299 destroyers, 141 submarines, 11 destroyers' tenders, 55 Eagle boats, 16 minesweepers, 2 minelayers, 5 submarine tenders, 4 hospital ships, 3 fleet repair ships and a number of auxiliary vessels.

To keep this force at sea or ready to go, with only 65 per cent. complements, would require 71,000 men, Admiral Koontz said. Great efforts are now required to keep going no less than half complements for all ships, he added.

"There are ships that on paper are part of the Pacific fleet that are still on the Atlantic coast because we simply cannot get men enough to send them to sea," Admiral Koontz said, adding that the navy was unable to bid against the shipping board and private companies.

Assembling of the Atlantic and Pacific fleets in the Atlantic next September, under manoeuvre plans already worked out, depends entirely on enlistments, the Operations chief said. No crews are available for four dreadnoughts of the Pacific fleet now undergoing repairs.

STERLING BILL FAILS IN HOUSE COMMITTEE

Palmer's Measure Is Substituted —May Necessitate Long Conference on Sedition Penalties.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The Sterling Anti-Sedition bill, passed by the Senate on Saturday, was set aside today by the House Judiciary Committee, which substituted for it the House measure originally drawn by Attorney General Palmer. Members said the Senate bill was too drastic in some of its provisions.

Action of the committee forecasts extended conference discussion, should the House uphold it, before final enactment of a sedition measure. Discussion in the House is expected to begin this week.

During Senate discussion of the Sterling bill, attack was directed chiefly against sections authorizing the Postmaster General to bar from the mails publications violating the terms of the act. It was contended that this would set up a degree of peace-time censorship.

The House bill provides for the death penalty in cases where agitation against the Government has resulted in loss of life.

Brings Suit Against d'Annunzio.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—Suit has been brought here against Captain Gabriele d'Annunzio, the Italian dictator of Fiume, by a maker of theatrical costumes. The costumes, it is alleged, were ordered for actors who appeared in d'Annunzio's play, "La Chevrefeuille," which was given here and which proved a failure. When the case was called yesterday the defendant was not present, and the case was postponed for two weeks to give him a chance to appear.

SWEET DEFENDS BAN ON SOCIALISTS

Says Legislative Acts and Lusk Committee Evidence Caused Their Suspension.

EXPLAINS SCOPE OF TRIAL

Speaker Cites Refusal of Congress to Seat Brigham Roberts in Support of Assembly.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 15.—Speaker Thaddeus C. Sweet of the Assembly today issued another statement in defense of the Assembly's action in suspending the five Socialist members who are to be tried next Tuesday.

"The remarks made in debate by certain members of the Assembly during the sessions of 1918 and 1919 upon legislation then pending pertaining to the successful prosecution of the war had attracted my attention," said the statement. "This attitude upon their part, together with information which came to me from Federal intelligence officers, led to the adoption of the resolution which created the legislative committee known as the Lusk Investigating Committee, of which I, as Speaker of the Assembly, am ex officio a member. My observation of these members in legislative action, together with evidence presented to the Lusk Committee and other information, convinced me, as it has others, that my duty to the State and to the nation demanded that before these five members should be permitted to participate in the deliberations of the State Assembly their eligibility and qualifications so to sit should be passed upon by the Assembly.

"The resolution introduced by Mr. Adler on the first day of the session did not expel these five members from their seats. It empowered the Judiciary Committee to investigate their qualifications and eligibility to sit as members, and suspended them until the committee should report upon the subject.

"The impropriety of a member sitting in a legislative body and voting upon the adoption or rejection of a report in respect of his conduct would seem to be manifest and to justify his temporary suspension. This is all that has been done.

"In the case of Brigham H. Roberts, a Representative elected from the State of Utah to the Sixty-sixth Congress, his right to sit was challenged by an individual member of that body on the ground that his conduct had rendered him ineligible. A resolution was adopted by the House denying him the right to a seat until after the report of the committee appointed to investigate as to his qualifications. The question of procedure was sharply raised by an amendment offered to the resolution which would have permitted Mr. Roberts to take and occupy his seat until the final determination by the committee. The amendment was defeated and the original resolution adopted by an overwhelming vote.

"In its final report the committee reviewed not only the facts brought to the attention of the committee but the precedents bearing upon the procedure followed. Speaking upon this point they said: 'Both houses of Congress have in innumerable instances exercised the right to stop a member-elect at the threshhold and refuse to permit him to be sworn in until an investigation has been made as to his right to a seat.'

"The report of the committee was adopted by the House by a vote of 268 to 50.

"While the preamble of the resolution adopted by the Assembly suggests certain lines of investigation which might be followed and certain associations and connections of the suspended members which might indicate their disqualification, the committee is in no wise confined in the scope of its investigation. It is not directed primarily to investigate the principles of any political party or any other organization except as they have a bearing upon individual qualifications of a suspended man. Nor is the committee directed or required to investigate any specific charges whatever. It is a very different proceeding from the case of any impeachment upon formulated charges. The committee is required to investigate and ascertain whether, in its opinion, the suspended members, separately and individually, have been guilty of such conduct, have expressed such opinions, have associated themselves in such relationships as render them unfit to sit in an American legislative assembly. If any such member has been guilty of disloyal, criminal, vicious or immoral conduct or utterances or has associated himself with any organization, the principles, tenets or practices of which are disloyal, criminal, vicious or immoral, he is manifestly disqualified.

"The suggestion which is being actively and insidiously promulgated that these men have been suspended by reason of political opinions or primarily because they are members of a political party as such, or that the action of the Assembly in suspending them constitutes any finality of judgment, is utterly false. They will have every opportunity before the Judiciary Committee in person or by counsel to refute or explain any testimony that may be adduced as tending to indicate their disqualification for office. The testimony will be furnished to every member of the Assembly, so that when the committee reports every member will be in a position individually to form his own opinion upon such testimony and act accordingly."

Speaker Sweet and Attorney General Newton left Albany for New York tonight. The Attorney General will decide there who will assist him in the trial of the Socialists. Chairman Martin of the Judiciary Committee intimated that the Lusk Committee, which is scheduled to meet in New York City tomorrow, will direct the serving of all subpoenas for the Judiciary Committee.

Protests from Labor and Vassar.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Jan. 15.—The Trade and Labor Council, representing the union labor organizations of this city, has sent resolutions to Albany protesting against the suspension of the five Socialists. Eighty-five members of the Vassar College faculty have sent a letter of protest to Assemblyman Gardner of this district.

NEWTON SEEKS AID TO TRY SOCIALISTS

Neither Guthrie Nor Root Will Be Associated with Attorney General in Case.

40 SUBPOENAS ARE ISSUED

Suspended Assemblymen Complain That Summons Does Not Specify Charges Against Them.

Attorney General Charles D. Newton came to this city from Albany last night to arrange for the presentation before the Assembly Judiciary Committee of the charges against the five suspended Socialist Assemblymen. His chief mission is to obtain the services of a prominent constitutional lawyer to aid the State's attorneys; his other purpose in coming here is to prepare the evidence against the Socialists.

Between forty and fifty subpoenas for persons wanted as witnesses in the inquiry were received here yesterday by Deputy Attorney General Samual A. Berger. Most of these subpoenas were for persons identified with socialistic and other radical movements. The Attorney General will confer today with Mr. Berger and, it is probable, will examine some of the witnesses.

William D. Guthrie, who, at a meeting of the Bar Association on Tuesday night spoke against the resolution offered by Charles E. Hughes in aid of the Socialists, will not be associated with the Attorney General in the inquiry, it was learned yesterday. Neither will Elihu Root, whose name has been mentioned as a possible special counsel. The Attorney General has been in communication with several constitutional lawyers in this city, but he declined to give any indication as to his possible associates.

Seymour Stedman, the Chicago attorney who has figured prominently in the defense of radicals, will arrive here today to aid Morris Hillquit and the other Socialist lawyers. Mr. Stedman was counsel for Professor Scott Nearing, Eugene V. Debs, and the publication The Masses in actions brought by the Government for alleged seditious acts.

Socialists Receive Summons.

The suspended Assemblymen received yesterday copies of the summons directing them to appear Tuesday before the Assembly Judiciary Committee. The summons included a copy of the resolutions passed at the opening session when the five members were suspended, but did not enumerate the charges against them. The Assemblymen complained of the lack of information in the summons, asserted that they contained only "inferences and generalizations" and that they were being kept in ignorance of the accusations against which they must defend themselves.

The summons said:

"Sir: Please take notice that pursuant to a resolution adopted by the Assembly of the State of New York on Jan. 7, 1920, a certified copy of which you are hereby served, the Judiciary Committee of the Assembly of the State of New York will proceed in the investigation of your qualifications and eligibility to a seat in the Assembly Chamber, Capitol Building, Albany, N. Y., on Jan. 20, 1920, at 11 A. M.

"Take further notice that the Judiciary Committee of the Assembly has formulated rules of procedure for such investigation, a copy of which is also herewith served upon you. Yours, &c.,

"The Judiciary Committee of the Assembly.

"By LOUIS M. MARTIN, Chairman.

"Dated Jan. 14, 1920."

"Speaker Sweet has changed his mind again," said a statement issued last night by the Socialists. "After our forcible ejection from the Chamber the Speaker had given the people to understand that specific charges would be made against each of us to 'determine' our qualifications and fitness to be members of the Assembly. This morning Sergeant at Arms Kines served us with a copy of the charges containing generalizations and inferences.

"It is an exact copy of the resolution originally passed. A criminal before the bar is at least permitted to know with what he is charged. We are not afforded even this right. We are as much in the dark today as against what we must defend ourselves as we were when the precipitate action of the Speaker was sprung upon us Monday a week ago. We demand specific charges alleging specific offenses.

"The Speaker seeks to justify his unlawful action by offering a precedent which he knows does not apply. He cites 'Roberts's case' (of Utah), knowing full well that Roberts was never permitted to take oath and become a member of Congress. In our case we had taken our oath. We participated in the election of Speaker and other legislative matters for two and one-half hours and were even asked to vote on the resolution of suspension itself—which four out of the five did. No misapplication of precedent will clear the autocratic actions of Speaker Sweet from the crime of stabbing representative government in the back.

"The Speaker becomes ridiculous when he says in his statement that his observation of our activity in the Legislature of 1918-1919 impelled him to sponsor the resolution of suspension. We wish to return the compliment. Our observation of Speaker Sweet's activity in the Assembly during the same period convinces us that he ought to be investigated and his qualification determined to be a member of a representative body."

Warning by National Committee.

The National Executive Committee of the Socialist Party issued a statement yesterday in which they said in part:

"The astounding doctrine is promulgated that controlling groups in a legislative assembly have power to determine whether a rival party's program is such that its elected candidates may be seated. Never in the history of parliamentary institutions has that claim ever been presented before. Even in the old despotic States of Russia and Prussia that power has never been claimed by any of the controlling groups in the Parliaments of these countries.

"The mere claim of this power is so absurd that only the insanity of a war-mad period can be responsible for it. It does not require the solemn farce of a 'trial' by our political enemies for them to determine whether the principles of the Socialist Party are 'inimical' to the State and nation. They have believed this—and have a right to believe it—for many years before the war. Each of the two dominant parties opposed to us in every campaign have charged each other with being 'inimical' to the welfare of the State and nation.

"We warn those guilty of this treason to representative institutions that their success would be a direct invitation to force and violence, and that their treachery is inimical to the people of this country.

"We appeal from this attempted usurption to the reason, the intelligence and the fair play of the masses of the country that this foul deed, this blow struck at the civil rights of every voter in the country, shall be rebuked as the work of stupid bureaucrats, unfit themselves to be trusted with any public office."

Charles Solomon, one of the suspended Assemblymen, said yesterday that he had received notice prohibiting him from continuing a course of lectures on history at Public School No. 147, Bushwick and Siegel Streets, Brooklyn. According to Assemblyman Solomon, the pupils in the school "went on strike" because he was not allowed to appear.

SAYS SOVIET AGENTS TRY TO CORRUPT NAVY

Captain J. L. P. Stone Says Red Literature Has Been Sent to Men.

Enlisted men of the United States Navy at the Bay Ridge Naval Station and elsewhere have been asked to form themselves into Soviets and have been fully instructed by agents of the Bolsheviki as to the method of procedure, Captain J. L. P. Stone, commandant of the Bay Ridge Station, told more than 100 prominent women who met at the Navy Club, 15 East Forty-first Street, yesterday afternoon.

Literature of the Reds has been scattered throughout the station, he said, and many of the men had been found reading it.

"We attempted to check the movement in two ways," Captain Stone added. "First we confiscated all the literature we could find, and then we appealed to the intelligence of the men. But the fact cannot be dodged that agents of the Reds have attemped to spread the seeds of Bolshevism among the enlisted men of the navy. Commanders of other stations have told me of similar experiences.

"This attempt to disrupt the morale of the American navy makes a permanent navy club an absolute necessity. If the men have no home to which they can go when in New York they will be picked up by the Reds, made a fuss over and filled with discordant doctrines, and I can say positively that in New York is to have a permanent navy club it must be furnished by you, for I know the Government will not furnish such an institution."

The purpose of the meeting addressed by Captain Stone was to further plans for the drive for $700,000 needed to perpetuate the Navy Club.

Captain Stone also emphasized the danger to the navy of failing to check the traffickers in vice who prey on the enlisted men of the fleets.

Mrs. Barton Hepburn presided over the meeting. Among those present were: Mrs. E. H. York, Secretary; Mrs. J. L. P. Stone, Treasurer; Mrs. J. Lee Finney, Miss J. M. Roberts, Miss Hart, Miss Doyle, Miss Eva McAdoo, Mrs. M. M. Alexander, Miss Burnett, Mrs. Mabel Beardsley, Mrs. Myron Hill, Mrs. Putnam, Mrs. James Roosevelt, Mrs. McDougall Hawkes, Mrs. John W. Edmunds, Mrs. L. Barton Keen, Miss Marie C. Despard, Mrs. Edward Robbins, Mrs. Luther Billings, Mrs. Langdon Geer, Mrs. E. C. Potter, Mrs. Marshall Orme, Mrs. H. P. Plan, Mrs. Charles S. Bentley, Miss Annie Miller, Mrs. Robert Waller, Mrs. W. G. Nichols, Miss H. M. Husted, Miss Sanford, Miss Lusk, Mrs. Edward Robinson, Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Foxhall Keene.

SWANN OFFERED JURY AID.

Suggested Whitman and Several Others as Special Counsel.

District Attorney Swann, who had no comment to make on the action of the Extraordinary Grand Jury in dismissing his and Mayor Hylan's charges against officials and employes of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, concerning the subway strike and the question of increased fares, asserted yesterday that instead of impeding the work of the Grand Jury he had sought to further its investigations, even to the extent of aiding in an inquiry of anything affecting his own office. He said he had notified the jury, in a letter on Jan. 9, to which he had received no reply, that he was willing to appoint ex-Governor Charles S. Whitman or any one of several other attorneys to act as legal advisers to the jury.

Others whom Mr. Swann named for the jury to chose from were ex-District Attorneys William M. K. Olcott and Charles C. Perkins, ex-Supreme Court Justice John W. Goff, ex-Judge Warren W. Foster of General Sessions, ex-Assistant District Attorney and City Magistrate Charles W. Appleton, and William Dean Embree, attorney for the Public Defenders' Committee, of which John D. Rockefeller is the chief director.

In his letter to the jury, made public last night, Mr. Swann added:

"I do not know of any lawyers more capable of aiding you to become correctly informed on any subject in the District Attorney's office. Whichever gentleman you may select, who will accept the retainer, I will immediately appoint as special counsel to the Grand Jury, and will expect him to spare no effort to satisfy you in regard to any matter, case or person in the District Attorney's office. The records will be open to him."

Mr. Swann told the jury that while he was willing to meet its needs in any respect at his disposal a special appropriation would necessarily be required to pay the fee of a special counsel, and in the thought would be a useless expense on the taxpayers. He said he did not believe the jury required the aid of outside counsel, because its Secretary was a practicing attorney, who might function as legal adviser.

"Delegate your Secretary as your legal adviser and relieve the city treasury of the burden of paying for a special counsel," suggested Mr. Swann.

JUDGE KNOX'S ORDER FREES 9 RADICALS

Sixty-five More on Ellis Island Will Be Released on Bail Today.

OFFICIALS FEAR RESULTS

By Refusing to Answer Questions They Can Escape Deportation, Government Representative Says.

Gregory Weinstein, friend of Trotsky and counselor of the Soviet Bureau, got off Ellis Island last night and said he was going to Washington to help Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, the Soviet representative, appear before the Senate committee investigating Russian propaganda. Gregory and eight others quit the Red colony in $1,000 bail each, by virtue of Federal Judge John C. Knox's ruling of writs of bail for Ellis Islanders.

Rose Weiss, Charles Recht, and Harry Weinberger, attorneys for hundreds of those in Commissioner Uhl's custody, said that sixty-five others would have been freed last night, only the clerks at the island were not up to the big task of filling out the papers. Today the three lawyers will return to Commissioner Uhl with a bag of $60,000 in cash and Liberty bonds, and the crimson exodus will start.

In addition to Weinstein, those released were Isaac Borgopolsky, Eugene Newald, Nathan Shub, William Radin, Morris Schneidermann, Max Gendlin, Stephen Orlick, and Rose Barron. When they arrived at the Barge Office there was only one person to greet them, the wife of Radin. None of them had any complaints to make of their treatment at the island.

In telling of the releases Miss Weiss declared that nine-tenths of the original 155 detained on the island would never be deported. She based this remark on her assertion that the Department of Justice agents have no evidence against the radicals under arrest. She stated that the Reds were being held and questioned in the hope that they would supply the evidence themselves.

Fear that Judge Knox's ruling would interefere with their deportation hearings caused the immigration officials to consult United States District Attorney Caffey. His advice to the officials was not disclosed. At Ellis Island the belief was expressed that if aliens were released before they had been examined by immigration inspectors it would be impossible to prove in many cases that they should be deported and consequently many taken in recent raids would have to be released.

In behalf of Acting Commissioner Uhl it was explained that he had not failed to obey the orders of his superiors in regard to admitting radicals to bail. Percy A. Baker, Superintendent, said that deportation warrants provided that aliens "may be admitted to bail," but that the court had interpreted this as mandatory. Throughout the deportation proceedings Mr. Baker, Commissioner Uhl had followed the orders of the Department of Labor and the practice of years.

"The burden of proof is upon aliens held in deportation proceedings," he said, "and the deportation warrants recite that the aliens must show cause why they should not be deported. The assumption is that they are aliens in the United States in violation of law. It will be almost impossible to get a case against these people if they are let out on bail immediately. They can refuse to answer questions, and the Government will be balked."

John Johnson, a native of Ireland, who was arrested June last at Pittsburgh and is now on Ellis Island awaiting deportation as an undesirable, obtained a writ of habeas corpus in the Federal District Court. In his petition, filed by Recht, Johnson alleged that his deportation would be illegal. According to the Government record, Johnson, a member of the steamfitters' union, denied being an anarchist, and said that he agreed with organized government, and declared his opposition to the assassination of public officials. He admitted that at one time he attended anarchist meetings and had sold I. W. W. song books. The Government officials, in the report, admitted that they had been unable to connect Johnson with an attempt made by unknown persons on June 2, 1919, to bomb two residences in Pittsburgh. It was because of this outrage, the record stated, that Federal agents watched the headquarters of the Mutual Benefit Association, where Johnson was arrested. The writ is returnable on Wednesday.

The trials of Jim Larkin and Benjamin Gitlow, indicted on allegation of criminal anarchy, came up in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, and were postponed, separate trials being ordered. Gitlow will go to trial on Jan. 21, while Larkin's trial date was not set.

Gustav Wolf of 523 Main Street, Union Hill, N. J., and Henry Petzold of 1,005 Willow Avenue, Weehawken, who were arrested in the Communist raids on Jan. 2 and were indicted under the New Jersey sedition act, pleaded not guilty before Judge James W. McCarthy in the Court of Common Pleas, Jersey City. They were released in $500 bail each. Both are citizens.

LAGUARDIA FOR PAY RISE.

Urges Minimum of $1,500 in Police and Fire Departments.

President F. H. LaGuardia of the Board of Aldermen announced yesterday that he is in favor of a still further increase in the salaries of the policemen and firemen and that he would request the Board of Estimate in the near future to grant a rise to the men. Mr. LaGuardia said he believed the maximum pay of the men in both departments should be $2,400 a year and the minimum $1,500.

The 1920 budget contained an increase in the pay of both firemen and policemen from $1,650 to $1,900 a year. The Mayor and Controller Craig are opposed to any further increases at this time.

"I think the pay of the policemen should be sufficient to free him from all suspicion," said President LaGuardia. "The city should furnish the policemen with their revolvers and night sticks. The only thing a policemen receives now from the city is his shield. I want to make it clear that special revenue bonds for increasing the pay of policemen and firemen are the only bonds of that character I will vote for."

CALLS HEARING ON REDS.

Senator Moses Fixes First Meeting for Monday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Senator Moses, Chairman of the Foreign Relations sub-committee of the Senate investigating radical activity, sent out a call today for a meeting of the committee Monday. The choice of counsel for the committee and the order of procedure will not be determined until after a conference between Chairman Moses and Senator Knox.

Whether Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, self-styled Russian Soviet Ambassador, will be the first witness will not be decided until after appointment of counsel, Senator Moses said.

ly become a member of the body. The margin of one vote was taken to indicate that Mr. Underwood would win by that much if Mr. Glass did not attend, and by two votes if he did.

After the vote was taken, however, some Senators called attention to the absence of Senator Johnson. They said that if he were present, his vote would counterbalance that of Mr. Glass.

Senator Underwood then stated that he did not want the leadership if it meant discord in the party, and that he would not ask that Mr. Glass be invited. The invitation was then withdrawn.

Next the question of leadership in the treaty fight was brought up, and Senator Underwood assured his colleagues that if he were elected he would leave the treaty in the hands of Mr. Hitchcock, who as ranking minority member of the Foreign Relations Committee has taken charge of it on the floor for the Democrats.

Rivalry for Smith's Vote Continues.

When it became apparent that no election was possible, a motion to adjourn subject to the call of Senators Hitchcock and Underwood was carried. The conference broke up with no definite time fixed for another effort to name a leader.

Senator Underwood said that there would be no more caucusing until Mr. Glass had taken his seat in the Senate. Meantime both factions will make the strongest efforts to find how they can induce Senator Smith to join them.

Neither Senator Hitchcock nor Senator Underwood, it is announced, has the slightest intention of withdrawing. Mr. Underwood emerged from the conference apparently much more cheerful than his rival, who had counted on victory by a close margin.

There was much discussion afterward concerning President Wilson's position on the leadership. He has not openly favored either side, although the Underwood partisans have sought to create the impression that Mr. Wilson was for their man. It was reported today that the President had sent word to several Democrats that he would like to see Mr. Underwood chosen, but those who were said to have received such messages denied that they had even a hint from the White House.

It was also suggested that the delay in accepting Mr. Glass's resignation might be the President's way of influencing the fight, but this also was speculation for which no foundation could be found.

Following the conference Mr. Underwood said:

"The vote today does not in the slightest affect Mr. Hitchcock's leadership in the treaty fight. If I had been elected leader and if I am elected, I shall leave the treaty matter entirely in his hands. He has had my loyal support, and will continue to have it. Should I become leader, his conduct of the treaty fight would continue with my heartiest concurrence and approval."

Senator Simmons, speaking for Senator Hitchcock, said that there was "nothing in today's vote to indicate that Senator Hitchcock will not be elected."

GRAHAM RICE ASSAILS PROSECUTOR

Defending Himself in Larceny Case, He Tells Jury Bucket Shops Are Protected.

SAYS HE WAS PERSECUTED

Admits Terms in Prison and Tells of $65,000,000 Business in Last Two Years.

George Graham Rice, whose active career as a stock promoter has resulted in terms of imprisonment, defended himself yesterday before Judge Malone and a jury in General Sessions against a charge of grand larceny. This complaint, said to be one of several pending, has to do with unpaid profits of $700 on a stock purchase, which is only one-quarter of the amount of Rice's former weekly pay roll when he had 125 employes in his William Street office.

Rice told on the stand why he had dropped his family name of Jacob Simon Herzig. It came about, he said, after he had used the name of "George Graham Rice" as the author of a prize-winning story for a Boston newspaper. He admitted that his first offense in 1895, the complainant being his father, resulted in a sentence to the Elmira Reformatory. Afterward he served a term in the Blackwell's Island Penitentiary and a term in a State prison. Rice declared that these were "early mistakes," which he had fully realized and which he had sought to live down.

As to the little amount involved in the present complaint, Rice said he had done a business of $65,000,000 during two years at 27 William Street. A clerk, he said, must have handled this order to buy, and the customer had lost his profit when the order was mislaid or lost. Personally, Rice said, he had no time to give attention to matters that did not amount to $40,000 or more.

He had nearly 200 employes, and a directing staff, he asserted, that included Trumbull White, formerly an editor of Everybody's Magazine; Frank Stockbridge, formerly managing editor of The Evening Mail, whom he had induced to enter his employ at a big salary, and William B. Ridgely, who was Controller of the Currency in President Roosevelt's Administration.

When Assistant District Attorney John T. Dooling, the prosecutor, began cross-examining Rice regarding a statement he had made to Nathaniel Bowen, a previous witness for the defense, and asked him what he had said, Rice replied:

"I told him to tell Mr. Hartman (the complainant) that I believed Mr. Dooling was crooked, and he was knowingly doing unfair work for that gang of bucket-shoppers, who were mulcting the public of one to two millions a year. I told him I knew Dooling had acted very differently in other cases, and that I was being prosecuted to protect this gang. I told him Dooling had plenty of evidence against another broker, but never indicted him. Mr. Dooling was dishonest, and didn't give me a white man's chance.

"I told Bowes that J. F. Lilly & Co., a notorious bucket-shop concern, was allowed to operate month after month, while complaints poured into the District Attorney's office, and no action was taken, although half Wall Street knew about it. I was told that some one in the District Attorney's office telephoned Lilly an hour before the raid to skip. I am confident that he couldn't have got by with it unless protected by the District Attorney's office."

Dooling permitted Rice to say all he desired. The trial will continue today and also the cross-examination.

FEDERAL STAGE SET FOR DRY LAW ENTRY

appointed. One hundred and fifty inspectors have been named. Colonel Daniel L. Porter, Chief Supervising Revenue Agent in New York, will direct the work until the appointment of the department head in this district. Last night Colonel Porter reported that the enforcement machinery was ready to start "at the touch of a button."

Daniel Roper, head of the Department of Internal Revenue, has assigned fifty additional Inspectors to New York. The Police Department will co-operate with Federal officials in enforcing the law. Francis G. Caffey, United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York, issued a statement yesterday summarizing the chief features of that part of the Volstead act designed to enforce the Eighteenth Amendment. Mr. Caffey asked to be excused from preparing a list of "dont's" for prospective drinkers because many points in the law still were in controversial stage.

Years of Litigation Anticipated.

"It will take many years before some of the questions arising under the amendment will be finally passed on by the courts," he continued. "There will be much litigation before possible questions are finally determined. Legislators would have to have extraordinary imaginations to be able to picture all cases that might arise under the new amendment. Our Constitution was adopted many years ago, and the courts are still being called upon to interpret it."

Richard J. McElligott, Acting Collector of Internal Revenue for the Third New York District, issued the following guide to indicate the law's requirements:

"The National Prohibition act provides that every person legally permitted to have liquor must report on or before Jan. 17, 1920, the kind and amount of intoxicating liquors in his possession on Jan. 17, 1920. This means that wines, beers, whisky, brandy, cordials, &c., must be specifically shown, and the quantity of each kind indicated.

"Form for inventory on which to report the possession of liquors will be ready for distribution within a few days. The report must be made in duplicate, one copy to be retained by the party making the report, and one copy to be forwarded to the Collector of Internal Revenue.

No Reports on "Home" Liquor.

"All parties holding permits to use or sell spirits or wines for non-beverage purposes, all distillers having spirits in their free warehouses, all hospitals and educational institutions, all parties having in their possession wines for sacramental purposes, as well as any other parties who have liquor or wines in possession or in storage, are required to make a report.

"In cases where liquors or wines are stored in a public warehouse or other place of storage, subject to the orders of the owners thereof, the proprietor of such warehouse or place of deposit must make a full report of all such liquors or wines.

"Persons who have intoxicating liquors in their private dwellings for personal consumption of their families and bona fide guests when entertained by them therein, are not required to make a report.

"The term 'private dwelling' is construed to include the room or rooms used and occupied, not transiently, but solely as a residence in an apartment house, hotel, club or boarding house. Distilled spirits in distillery bonded warehouses, general bonded warehouses, special bonded warehouses, liquors in customs bonded warehouses, and wines at bonded wineries and in bonded storerooms are not required to be reported. Heavy penalties are prescribed for failure to make a report or for making a false report, and any liquor required to be reported and which is not included in the inventory and report is subject to seizure."

"On the Hip" Flasks Prohibited.

Books on the manufacture of alcoholic liquors will continue to be available in the reference department of the New York Public Library, it was announced yesterday by Edwin H. Anderson, the librarian. He said he would no more think of forbidding readers to consult such books in the reference department than he would forbid books on flying, and declared that after the amendment goes into effect the books will partake of the nature of histories.

Under the amendment it is unlawful to drink anywhere except in one's own home. Carrying a flask of liquor "on the hip" is forbidden. Liquor acquired since war time prohibition is subject to confiscation. In moving one's residence a permit will be needed to transport liquor to the new place of abode. It is also unlawful to manufacture one's own liquor or to buy or sell a formula for the making of liquor.

Two main points of attack on the prohibition amendment still remain to be made by the anti-prohibition forces, according to Hugh Fox, Secretary of the United States Brewers' Association. These are: First, whether Congress has the right to define an "intoxicating beverage," and, second, a decision as to the scope and meaning of the provision that "Congress and the several States shall have concurrent power to pass appropriate legislation for enforcement."

A guest at the Hotel McAlpin yesterday dictated to the hotel stenographer his last will and testament, in which he said: "And further give and bequeath to my three sons and two daughters equal portions and shares of my valued stock of champagnes, whiskies and cordials now contained in the wine cellar of my country home at York Harbor, Maine."

It was denied yesterday that some of the whisky firms have liquidated their assets by dividing their stocks of liquor with the stockholders.

DR. GRANT UPHELD, BUT MAY BE TRIED

Vestry Exonerates Him, but Regrets Mayflower Speech and 'Unwise' Use of Parish House.

DR. CARSTENSEN TO ACT

Says Charges of Marrying Divorced Persons and Withholding Sacramental Wine Will Be Made.

The report of the vestry of the Church of the Ascension on the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant, which was made public yesterday, exonerates the minister, but calls "unwise" the use of the parish house as the headquarters for the amnesty parade on Christmas Day and expresses regret at his mention of the Mayflower in connection with the Soviet Ark Buford.

Bishop Charles Sumner Burch, who received the report and made it public yesterday, declined to comment on it or to intimate what his action would be. The report is not satisfactory to the critics of the Rev. Dr. Grant, and his trial on charges of violating the laws of the Church will be sought without delay, according to Dr. G. A. Carstensen, rector of the Church of the Holy Rood.

"I do not regard the report as cogent or conclusive," said Dr. Carstensen. "It doesn't settle anything. Nothing will be done until the Bishop has spoken, but if the report is all the defense they have I do not think it will stop proceedings. If Dr. Grant had acknowledged any impropriety there would have been a disposition, I think, to be satisfied with a reprimand. But this seems to be an attempt at justification."

Charge of Marrying Divorced Persons.

The principal charge, Dr. Carstensen said, would be that of marrying divorced persons. Two other charges, he said, would be that of misusing church property in some of the Forum meetings held there and the withholding of the sacramental wine in the administration of Holy Communion.

Dr. Carstensen said that this marriage had occurred within a year. He added that, while proof existed on only one case there were indications that this was not the only case.

Dr. Carstensen was asked if a minister could not marry divorced persons improperly without being aware of the fact.

"If he did not do it wilfully it was unpardonable carelessness," he said, "because a minister is required to ask questions and ascertain the facts about those whom he is marrying. He might say that he had been deceived but that would be to plead the baby act, as he did in saying that, when he championed the anarchists who were deported he understood that they were innocent idealists."

Dr. Carstensen said that the charges had not yet been formally drawn and that it had not been decided who the three presbyters would be who would sign them. He added that a group of clergymen were co-operating in this matter and that any three men in the group might be selected to present the charges.

Dr. Carstensen said that he had been told that Dr. Grant said that the practice of serving sacramental wine was unsanitary and that it resulted in an unnecessary waste of time. Regarding the alleged misuse of church property, Dr. Carstensen said there was evidence that the Rev. Dr. Grant had allowed the Church of the Ascension to be used for "unhallowed and profane purposes."

Vestry's Report on Dr. Grant.

The report of the vestry follows:

"We, the members of a committee appointed at a conference of the rector, wardens, and vestrymen of the Church of the Ascension, for the purpose of continuing the consideration of the matters discussed at such conference, and making a report thereon to you, do hereby respectfully report as follows:

"I. The matters which were under consideration at the conference were two in number: First, the action of the rector in allowing a certain parade or procession to assemble at the Parish House on Christmas Day last, and thence to parade up Fifth Avenue, such parade being in support of an amnesty for all so-called political prisoners in this country; second, an address of the rector delivered at the forum meeting in the Church of the Ascension on the evening of the Sunday before Christmas Day last, in which he declared his disapproval of the practice of deporting aliens from this country, and mentioned the arrival of the Mayflower with the Pilgrim fathers in connection with the sailing from our shores of the transport Buford carrying a number of aliens deported by due process of law.

The Amnesty Parade.

"2. As to the parade or procession, we have been informed by the rector that either the Captain or the Acting Captain of the precinct in which the church is situated called at the Parish House on Christmas morning, examined the placards which were to be worn by the paraders, and stated that so long as the parade was to be single file no police permits would be required, and further stated that he saw no objection to the parade. It appeared that the police of another precinct must have had a different view, or else there was some confusion, because some of these paraders were subsequently arrested on Fifth Avenue after leaving the church. These were afterward discharged by City Magistrate Corrigan, who stated that the placards were unobjectionable, and that the persons arrested in each case were entirely within their legal rights. From these facts we conclude that the parade was legal. We further find that the rector had the necessary authority to allow the use of the Parish House as an assembly and starting point for this procession.

"Unwise" Use of Forum.

Our personal opinion, however, is that in view of the circumstances, it was unwise to permit the use of the church buildings for this purpose. The result of such permission was to produce the impression upon the minds of many persons that the members of the Church of the Ascension favored immediate amnesty for all so-called political prisoners—all of whom have been convicted under due process of law, and many of whom have been convicted of crimes against the statutes of the United States after a trial by court and jury. The circumstances vary in the different cases. The method of applying for executive clemency is duly prescribed by law, and can be followed by or on behalf of any of these prisoners. It may well be that in some cases pardon should be granted, while in others it should be refused. We recognize that the general purpose of the parade was humanitarian and that the motives of those engaged in it were most excellent, but on a subject so controversial, and as to which opinions may differ, it would have been wiser, in our opinion, for the rector to have consulted with the vestrymen, or with some committee of the vestry, and we suggest that when similar occasions arise in the future, that course be pursued.

The Mayflower Reference Explained.

"III. As to the address of the rector in regard to deportation of aliens, he has informed us that he spoke from notes and not from manuscript. He has told us his recollection of the subject matter of the address, which is confirmed by the vestrymen who heard it. The rector states that his allusion to the landing of the Pilgrims was merely a comment upon the historical coincidence that a period of 299 years had elapsed between that event and the sailing of the Buford.

"He intended to comment merely upon the fact that the Mayflower brought the Pilgrim Fathers to this country as a political asylum, while the Buford carried away from these shores those who had sought asylums here. He expressly and positively disclaimed any intention of comparing the Pilgrim Fathers in any way with these deported aliens. He stated that he disapproved of the principle of deportation, regarding it as un-American, and holding the view that if any person has committed an offense in this country he should be punished by prosecution here and not by deportation.

"He further called attention to the fact that he is not a Socialist and that he believes firmly in the rights of property. He mentioned by way of illustration that in his judgment the owners of the slaves freed during the civil war should have been compensated, and, although he is himself a strong prohibitionist, he believes that the owners of breweries and distilleries should also receive due compensation for the value of their plants. He stated in effect that it was furthest from his mind to say anything which could have been reasonably construed as an encouragement to any person who countenances violence or disorder or otherwise runs counter to our laws.

Freedom of Speech Upheld.

"The members of this committee personally approve of the practice of deportation in proper cases with due legal process, but they also fully appreciate and prize the great principles of freedom of speech and of discussion and of thought which are fundamental to all just governments. Whether our views are in accord with those of the rector or not, he should be allowed to express his own opinions freely and fearlessly, the only limitation being such as are imposed by law and the proprieties on every person. We conclude, therefore, that it was the undoubted right of the rector to express an opinion adverse to the law of deportation or to the manner in which that law is administered.

"However, we regret the mention of the arrival of the Mayflower and the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers in connection with the sailing of the Buford carrying the deported aliens, as having been highly unfortunate. The misunderstanding and the misinterpretation of the allusion was easy and not unnatural.

"IV. The rector had general authority from the vestrymen to permit the use of the parish house for any purpose which he might think proper. Under this authority he had allowed the use of the parish house as the headquarters for the local draft board of the district during the great war. He had allowed its use for very many patriotic enterprises in which both the rector and the congregation were engaged during the war. Consequently, the rector had, as we have stated, the full authority to allow the parish house to be used for the parade which we have mentioned.

"V. Finally, we wish to repeat our belief in the importance of preserving a free pulpit. Our rector has often expressed views with which all the members of this committee and many, if not all of his vestrymen, have disagreed. This has not prevented us from recognizing and valuing his sincerity, his courage, his earnestness and his devotion to humanity.

"We are informed that he is preparing or has prepared a statement which will clarify his attitude in regard to the two matters which we have mentioned and we assume, in regard to others of like nature. We hope and believe that this statement will suffice to clear up any misunderstandings which have arisen."

Dr. Grant Condemns Deportations.

Dr. Grant set forth his views in a statement in The Evening Post on the question of deportation, without touching specifically on the two subjects investigated by the vestry—the alleged coupling of the Pilgrim Fathers with the Russian anarchists of the "Soviet Ark" and the use of the parish house as the headquarters for the parade in behalf of "political prisoners." In this statement he said:

"I cannot believe that those who arranged the deportation of Sunday, Dec. 21, 1919, remembered that it was Mayflower Day (almost the three hundredth anniversary), or recalled the traditions of emigrant, of Colonial, of United States history associated with Plymouth and Boston, summed up in their patriotic leaders and successful pleaders for human liberty. Otherwise they would not have denied asylum on a day framed for granting it."

Dr. Grant said that he was not concerned with the character or conduct of the men who were deported, but that he objected to the principle of deportation. He continued:

"Confidnce in deportation to settle industrial unrest is based upon the theory that this unrest has no deep causes, is only temporary in its appearance and has been brought about by agitation. In a word, the unrest can be allayed if the speakers can be silenced by arrests and deportation or by military force. This theory displays a dangerous ignorance of the history of the labor movement.

"The early condition of English labor was servile. For at least 500 years English workers struggled to become free. Such is the push behind the unrest in England and America. Steam and the industrial revolution threw labor out of any partnership relation to capital. Unrest is the evidence of a determination to come into a new partnership where labor shall have a 'say.' Only intelligence, information, patient discussion and good will can solve our labor problem. Its roots are too deep for hasty and impetuous methods.

"Deportation is repugnant to the democratic ideal, which is the protection of minorities. It contradicts the invitation of this country to the oppressed of the world and its welcome in the past to the champions of liberty."

JAMES McLEAN WILL FILED.

Estate Believed to Exceed $15,000,000 Goes to Widow and Daughters.

The will of James McLean of Phelps, Dodge & Co., who died Jan. 7 at 907 Fifth Avenue, leaves his entire estate to his family. The petition for the probate of the will filed yesterday states that Mr. McLean left more than $10,000 in real estate and more than $100,000 in personal property, but it is believed the value of the estate is more than $15,000,000.

Mr. McLean left 3,000 shares of Phelps, Dodge & Co. stock to each of his daughters, Ethel and Alice McLean of New York and Helen McLean Ravenscroft of London. The remainder of the estate goes to his wife, Sarah McLean. Mrs. McLean, Mrs. Ravenscroft and M. Linn Bruce are named as executors.

Mr. McLean made no public bequests, but in his will he said:

"As I have been in the habit of contributing to the different charities during my life, I trust that those who come after me and inherit my property may freely give to good works as they have the means and opportunity to do."

WARNS CLOTHES GOUGERS.

Palmer's Assistant Finds 100 Per Cent. Profit in Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—A general profit to retailers of $30 on a $60 suit of clothes was revealed today when the National Association of Retail Clothiers was interrogated by Howard R. Figg, Special Assistant to Attorney General Palmer, in fighting the high cost of living.

An ultimatum was served on the clothiers by Mr. Figg that high-price profiteering must stop immediately. He predicted a decrease of 25 per cent. in the clothing cost, if all business agencies would co-operate with the Government.

The Department of Justice, through Mr. Figg, requested the assembled clothiers to outline a policy for their business looking to a general reduction in clothing prices which could be adopted by the department and enforced by the Government. A committee will be appointed in each city or in each district of every State in the Union to co-operate with the Government, excepting in North Carolina, which is not a member of the association.

De Vinne Library Sale Ends Today.

The sale of the late Theodore Low De Vinne's library will be concluded today at the Anderson Galleries. HERE IS AN UNUSUAL OPPORTUNITY for the manufacturer of an established product to locate his plant or branch factory near New York for Eastern distribution and export.

The owners of a modern brewery plant will entertain a proposition whereby they can participate in a manufacturing enterprise of a different nature to make this holding productive under a mutual arrangement.

Or might consider leasing for reasonable period of years.

The plant consists of several substantial buildings on the main highway in Newark, N. J. Equipment includes railroad siding, refrigerating plant, individual steam and electric plants for light and power, additional room for expansion.

The owners are young men of the highest standing and will welcome the most searching investigation as to their character and reputation.

Full particulars exchanged in strict confidence. M. B. Plant, 596 Market St., Newark, N. J.

MISSES' SUITS

Seasonable in Style
Reasonable in Price

THE Misses' Suit Shop attributes its style supremacy pre-eminently to the spirit of its suits. Quality of fabric, excellence of tailoring, up-to-dateness of style, to be sure, but then, a psychological something—the youthful spirit. This duvet de laine suit sounds the keynote of youth in fashion. The coat flares jauntily, the fur collar muffles cozily, the interlining protects warmly. It is well tailored, from the hand-bound buttonholes to the silk lining. Sizes 14 to 20 years.

WOULD BIND MINERS TO KEEP CONTRACTS

Operators Ask That Unions Qualify as to Intent and Ability in This Regard.

DENY WORK IS UNHEALTHY

Owners' Counsel Also Contends That Miners Live in Comfort—Commission Adjourns.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Unusual interest was aroused at the meeting of the President's Coal Commission today, when the operators of the central competitive field asked that the commission recommend to Congress, in the interest of collective bargaining, the adoption of legislation which would require that "people and associations, organized for such purposes, and entering into such pursuits," qualify as to their intent and ability to carry out contracts entered into by them.

This request, which will later be put into writing, was made by Phil H. Penna, Secretary of the Indiana Coal Operators' Association, who charged that the miners deliberately flouted contracts. Mr. Penna formerly was a miner.

"Collective bargaining with responsibility on one side and irresponsibility the greatest asset of the other party to that collective bargaining is a farce," he said. "As a mere statement, it would be self-evident. In practice, we know that it is true.

"Our contracts are not respected, neither generally nor locally, and the reason they are not respected is because the mine workers are irresponsible as an association. The mine worker at home, who is supposed to be less familiar with the principles underlying our contracts, and who might be excused for failure to observe his contract provisions and obligations, is supported, in many instances directly and in some instances indirectly, by the mine workers' officials of their official districts, who for some reason fail to enforce our contracts."

Mr. Penna, who made the principal address for the operators, also protested against the request of the miners for the abolition of the automatic penalty clause which provides for the levying of fines in the event of strikes in violation of contracts. Mr. Penna referred to this clause in existing contracts as "the only semblance of liability with which they (the miners) have to contend—the only suggestion of responsibility that they have accepted, the only little bit of evidence that they have given of their desire and their willingness to be bound by contract provisions."

On the other hand, Mr. Penna asked, in behalf of the operators, that the "check-off system" now in effect, by which the operators, under agreement with the miners' officials, deduct from the miners' pay the money which is paid into the workers' union, be abandoned.

"This system was introduced," said Mr. Penna, "for the purpose of enabling the mine workers' officials to unionize their forces to the end that they would be able to enforce contracts when they make them. The very purpose for which the institution was created having failed and disappeared entirely, there is no necessity longer for the system."

The demand of the miners for less than an eight-hour working day, if granted, Mr. Penna contended, would cause decrease in production. He went in detail into many phases of the relations of miners and operators, which later will be placed before the commission in the form of a brief.

Denying that present wages forced the miners to live in squalor, Mr. Penna said: "We believe that the present schedule of wages, as to Nov. 1, 1919, is adequate and sufficient to a respectable standard of life as an American citizen in the central competitive field, and the best evidence that we have in support of that attitude, transcending in conclusiveness any other data that may be submitted, is the fact that the coal miners maintain that standard of living that becomes American citizenship.

"Let me say that the miners do not live in squalor. They are not a race of people that require the sympathy of anybody. They are a class of men who stand erect, with confidence in their own manhood, and maintain good homes—homes that they own—bought and paid for. Their children go to the schools of our cities and our States, the high schools and the common schools and the colleges. They are educating their children and they are living in comparative comfort. I say to you that there is not a mining community anywhere in this country, in the jurisdiction which is involved here, where this thing does not obtain, as stated, and the potentiality of the one man is about on an equality with the other."

Ralph Crews, counsel for the operators of the central competitive field, asserted that the charge that the health of the miners was broken by the nature of their work was not founded on fact, and he pointed to John R. White, a member of the commission; Acting President Lewis, and Secretary Green of the United Mine Workers, and Frank Farrington, and others miners present, all men of husky build, as proof of his contention.

The commission voted for an adjournment until Monday, when briefs will be received from miners and operators.

TEACHERS QUITTING FAST.

Defections Increase 40 Per Cent. in Three Years in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—The number of school teachers who have abandoned the profession because of low wages has increased 40 per cent. in the last three years, according to a survey of trade conditions in Chicago by teachers, made public today.

"School teachers work under a twenty-five year handicap, on the basis of a lifetime's earnings," the report says.

"The average teacher will have to live to be 70 before her total earnings amount to as much as a plumber can make by the time he is 40. She will have to teach until she is 58 to earn as much as the pattern maker, electrician, or pressman has earned at 40.

"Blacksmiths, butchers, soda clerks, shoe clerks, and chauffeurs would, under their present wages, have earned as much at 40 as the school teacher would have earned at 52.

"The teacher's salary is almost equal to that of janitors, teamsters, and laundresses."

BRITISH RAIL MEN ACCEPT WAGE OFFER

Thomas Declares That the Settlement Marks a Departure in Industrial Questions.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Delegates of railwaymen's unions have accepted the Government's offer in settlement of wage demands made by employes in the lower grades of the service.

The offer which is accepted maintains the sliding scale, and the wage is fixed on the average, not the maximum, pay. It makes, however, further concessions in the form of bonuses for women and some men, with an increase of a half crown in a bonus to workers under 18 years old. The Government offers to extend the plan to Ireland and to reconsider individual cases where the adjustment works hardship.

The men agreed to drop their demand that the plan be made retroactive to August last.

After the close of a meeting of the delegates this morning J. H. Thomas, General Secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, said:

"The conference has decided by a very narrow majority to accept the Government's offer. It has been a very difficult job, probably the most difficult of all our tasks.

"There was a considerable difference of opinion among the delegates until the last moment and the result was doubtful, but I hope the men will accept it as an honorable settlement. It marks a new departure in industrial questions."

The delegates reported their decision to Sir Eric Geddes, the Minister of Transport.

The settlement appeared tonight to have in it the possibility of being shortlived. This contingency seemed likely judging from the statements of labor experts and the press.

The railway workers approved the Government's terms by a majority of only two votes, and some say by only a single vote. Besides, the resolution specifically states that acceptance was made under protest because the scheme was unsatisfactory.

The reason for agreeing to the Government's proposals, according to The Herald, the Labor organ, was that a majority believed it an inopportune time to strike.

The Daily Mail's labor expert will say tomorrow that a definite resolution in favor of a strike was defeated last Friday by only four votes. Discussions throughout the week on this issue were extremely bitter and were conducted in the midst of incessant turmoil.

Jury Brings In Verdict of Second Degree for Girl Slayer.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 15.—The jury returned a verdict of murder in the second degree in the case of Harry S. New here today. New was charged with the murder of Miss Freda Lesser in July.

The jury had been out forty-two hours when court convened. Possibility of a verdict being returned brought forth the usual crowd, which had filled the courtroom throughout the five weeks of the trial.

The jurors still were deadlocked when locked up last night. Twice they had sought information from Judge Craig regarding the distinction between second degree murder and manslaughter.

MUNSEY SILENT ON HERALD'S FUTURE

Says He's Not Prepared Yet to Make Known Plans About Bennett Newspapers.

CONFERS WITH EXECUTIVES

Combination of Evening Sun and Evening Telegram Expected In Publishing Circles.

The plans of Frank A. Munsey, purchaser of The New York Herald, its Paris edition, and The Evening Telegram, remained undisclosed yesterday, despite a report that a merger of The Evening Telegram and The Evening Sun was contemplated. Two conferences on the future of the three former Bennett newspaper properties were held, but no hint as to the results of them was given.

The controller of four New York dailies, two morning and two evening, was at his office in the Sun Building, 280 Broadway, early yesterday, and when he was asked concerning his plans replied:

"I have nothing to say about The Herald or Evening Telegram, as yet. I've just bought them, and until I have studied them I am not prepared to make known my plans."

The attitude of The Herald interests was set forth by Josiah Kingsley Ohl, managing editor and one of the Directors named by the executors of the late James Gordon Bennett's will to conduct the newspapers.

"I don't suppose there will be anything to say," said Mr. Ohl, "until Mr. Munsey makes his announcement. As for the plans for the James Gordon Bennett home for newspapermen, there are no new developments as yet. The organization has been formed and incorporated at Albany, but no other steps have been taken. So far as the trustees of the home are concerned, they are merely waiting for the executors."

Soon after he reached his office Mr. Munsey held a conference with executives of his various enterprises. It was understood that Robert C. Davis, who is reported to have been Mr. Munsey's negotiator in the acquisition of The Herald and The Telegram, attended. No information as to the result of the gathering was forthcoming.

Later a meeting was held in The Herald office, which, it was said, was called merely to complete details of the transfer of the publications.

Notwithstanding Mr. Munsey's silence, it was generally believed in publishing circles that he planned to combine The Evening Sun and The Evening Telegram, to obtain for the former the Associated Press franchise, which it lacks. Mr. Munsey brought such a franchise to the morning edition of The Sun by merging it with the old New York Press. There was much speculation as to the fate of The Herald itself, and, in the absence of authority, it remained just speculation.

One element that entered into the speculation concerning the future of The Herald was the fact that its lease on its present site has only until May 1, 1921, to run. The lease between The New York Herald Company and the Manice estate does not contain a clause providing for renewal of lease, it was stated last night. In view of this, it was pointed out that even if Mr. Munsey decided to continue publication of the newspaper independently of The Sun he would soon face the problem of finding another site for his plant.

VICTORY HUT CLOSES.

Pageant Marks End of Y. M. C. A. War Work at Battery.

Victory Hut in Battery Park, conducted by the Y. M. C. A., closed its doors last night, and the keys were turned over to Park Commissioner Gallatin. The closing of the hut was marked by a pageant in which some of the scenes in the history of lower Manhattan were depicted.

At noon a Coast Guard company, a detachment from Governors Island and the Fort Slocum band took a position in front of the hut and the pageant began. The first of the historical pictures was that of the Vanishing Race, representing the Indians of Manhattan. Then came the meeting of Washington and Lafayette at the sea wall. There came also to the city-end Peter Stuyvesant, Aaron Burr and Alexander Hamilton fought their duel and Jenny Lind walked past the hut returning from her triumphal American debut. A company of Dutch bowlers on their way to Bowling Green gave a picturesque touch to the ceremony. After the pageant many of the soldiers went into the hut, and there was dancing and music most of the afternoon.

Victory Hut gave comfort during the war to thousands of soldiers stationed on Governors Island, to convalescing wounded from the hospital on Ellis Island and to men of the Coast Guard detailed at the Barge Office. Mrs. Vincent Astor was head of the committee of women who assisted in the work at Victory Hut.

HOOVER A DEMOCRAT, SAY JOHNSON MEN

Manager of Senator's Boom Declares His Only Utterance Was for a Wilson Congress.

GENERAL WOOD HERE TODAY

Roosevelt's Secretary, William Loeb, Jr., May Manage His Campaign in the East.

The political faith of Herbert C. Hoover and the possibility of his becoming a Presidential candidate on either the Republican or the Democratic ticket was freely discussed yesterday by the friends of other Presidential candidates, some of whom are openly in the running, and others who have yet to announce intention to make the race. Elements in both the Democratic and Republican Parties have started separate Hoover booms, but Mr. Hoover has said nothing.

Commenting yesterday on the statement of Julius H. Barnes, made at the dinner of the National Wholesale Dry Goods Association on Wednesday night, that Mr. Hoover's political affiliations had been with the progressive Republicans and that he would run on a Democratic ticket only if the Republican Party should adopt a non-progressive platform and nominate candidates of reaction, Joseph Scott of Los Angeles, who is in New York in the interest of Senator Hiram W. Johnson, said:

"We are glad to learn that Mr. Hoover is a progressive Republican. So far as we in California know, Mr. Hoover has never taken any political stand whatever except a year ago last Fall when he made an earnest plea for the election of a Democratic Congress to uphold President Wilson's policies.

"If a group of independent financiers want to back Mr. Hoover as an independent candidate, well and good, but under what pretext he can ask the support of the Republican Party, which has had to wrestle with the inefficiency and extravagance of the present Democratic Administration which he supported, we cannot see."

Other Republicans declared they did not take the Hoover suggestion seriously and that his only chance of being President was by running on the Democratic ticket.

The possibility that General Pershing would accept the Democratic nomination was derided by George Woods, one of the three Woods brothers who came to New York from Lincoln, Neb., to boom the General as a Republican possibility. Denying the truth of a report from Kansas City which stated that the editor of a newspaper there had asserted that General Pershing had told him he was a Democrat, Mr. Wood said:

"I know the editor in question and I know he was in Lincoln not long ago sounding out the General's friends regarding the possibility of General Pershing being willing to accept the Democratic nomination for President and that he received no encouragement whatever.

"General Pershing is a Republican. He has always voted the Republican ticket. I know, for I asked him myself regarding his politics. He gave me a direct answer."

The campaign for the nomination of General Leonard Wood on the Republican ticket has grown to such proportions in the East that selection of an Eastern manager is considered essential and will be made within a few days, it was asserted at the offices of the General Leonard Wood League. It was said that the choice would be between William Loeb, Jr., former secretary to Colonel Roosevelt, and Robert C. Morris, former president of the Republican Club. General Leonard Wood will be in New York today to confer with Republican leaders. On Saturday he will be the guest of Otto H. Kahn at a luncheon, and on Saturday night he will go to Providence, R. I., to speak at a Chamber of Commerce dinner. On Sunday he is scheduled to confer with Republican leaders in Boston and to talk over his campaign plans with Guy Murchie, representative of the Leonard Wood League in that city.

The organization of the Wood campaign all over the country is being rapidly perfected, it was said by Frederick Moore, who represents the General's interests in New York. James J. McGraw has charge of the Wood organization in the Middle West, while Senator Moses of New Hampshire has been put in charge of the Southern States. A manager is yet to be selected for the Rocky Mountain and Pacific Coast territory. Colonel W. C. Procter of Cincinnati, head of the Wood campaign, is conducting affairs from Chicago. When all the managers are selected headquarters will be established in each State.

It was said yesterday that the Wood managers were not opposed to a delegation from any State casting its first vote at the National convention as a compliment to its favorable son, but they did insist that General Wood should have a chance on the second and subsequent ballots. If the Wood opponents show a disposition to try to keep the delegates from voting for the General after the first ballot, the managers are prepared to go into each State and make a determined fight to have the delegates favor their candidate from the start. From present indications, it was said, General Wood had the support of 40 per cent. of the delegates in practically every State.

Walter R. Stone, former Mayor of Syracuse, a classmate of Governor Coolidge of Massachusetts at Amherst College, was in the city yesterday on his way to Boston to confer with the Massachusetts Governor. He denied that he was here in the interest of establishing a Coolidge campaign headquarters.

"No, I am not here to start anything," said Mr. Stone. "I am simply very much interested in Mr. Coolidge as a possible Presidential candidate. He is the right type of man for the job. He is well grounded in American principles, and that's the kind of man the country wants. There are so many Republican candidates in the field that I think Governor Coolidge has as good a chance as any of them."

There will be a meeting of the New Jersey Republicans at Trenton today, called by former Governor E. C. Stokes to discuss delegates at large to the National Convention. A faction headed by Mr. Stokes and ex-Governor Runyon favor the candidacy of General Wood and are for an instructed delegation. The plan is being opposed by State Chairman Hamilton F. Keon, Senator Edge, and others who favor an uninstructed delegation.

Friends of Senator Johnson, headed by Irving K. Taylor of Short Hills, a former Progressive, are working hard to head off the Wood boom, and favor an uninstructed delegation.

MORE SHIPS TO WEST COAST

W. R. Grace & Co. Announce Additions to South American Line.

W. R. Grace & Co. announced yesterday that fortnightly passenger service from New York to the west coast of South America, with Valparaiso, Chile, the southernmost port of call, will be possible when they put two more ships on the run early in the Spring.

Before the United States entered the war the company had ordered five new steamers for this service. All but one were taken over by the Government for transport service. Two of these vessels are now making the run between New York and the west coast of South America and two others will be ready for service in March.

All steamers to the west coast of South America are now booked for months in advance, and it is believed that these additional ships will relieve the situation.

THE HOPE OF THE WORLD.

The report of the American Economic Association, published on Monday, over an unusual list of authoritative names, sets forth the principles upon which the foreign trade of the United States should be conducted for the mutual benefit of buyers and sellers. There was published yesterday a similar but even more authoritative plan, which comes pretty near saying how foreign trade with us must be conducted. Never before was there such a one-sided situation. All the world is in want, except ourselves, and we have the world's greatest stores of both goods and credit. Yet there are cheeks on our domination. Our economic principles embodied in the two statements, and our moral principles as shown in the war against German domination, forbid us to exploit the opportunity. It is true that there is no need for such staggering sums as some have suggested, but there is need for amounts which will test our resources. That way honor and profit lie, enforced by the sanction that, if we fail in the emergency, we must face conditions of overproduction or of underconsumption, which will mean a check to industry, and the reduction of the cost of living at a speed and to an extent which we may pray to be delivered from, as we have had cause to pray for deliverance from excess of prosperity.

The best epitome of this international memorandum is furnished by one of the signers, who said it is > a call to the people to return to pre-war standards of reason; an appeal to the Reparation Commission for wise moderation as to the best business policy for all concerned; an appeal to Governments to arrest inflation and meet inevitable burdens by increasing their revenue rather than by further increasing their debts; an appeal to the people to work and to save; and, finally, an appeal to leaders of commerce and finance to get together in order to study the problem dispassionately and take it up as a business proposition, relying on independent action rather than Government intervention. Governments must be relied upon, however, to remove as rapidly as possible the obstacles that impede such a course.

As the document is signed and issued in several countries, it is relieved from any suspicion that it is dictated to any of them, or by us. It is simply good old-fashioned doctrine, called for by the fact that theorists and implacables are audible in all lands. On the day that the document was published Australia announced its intention of continuing its prohibition of German imports, and it is easy to recall boycotters of Germany among ourselves. But wiser men know that Germany can pay, if at all, only in what the world wants more than gold—goods and services. The boycott of Germany merely reacts against the boycotters. Next the document urges deflation, beginning with Governments. They have been chief offenders, following our example when we printed fiat money instead of levying taxes, and inflicted upon ourselves a depreciation of currency such as now disorders the exchange of goods internationally. The appeal to the people to work and save is necessary when Governments are paying doles to unemployed and providing cheap bread from tax money. There is a choice between persuading the idle and the wasters through their heads or their stomachs, and there are too many in all lands who refuse to heed the appeal to reason until hunger drives.

The appeal to Governments to remove impeding obstacles to the course advised applies especially to ourselves. Other Governments have acted mistakenly, under the excuse of necessity almost impossible to escape. But we have refused for half a year and more to ratify the treaty upon which the hope of the world depends, as well as our own prosperity. Within a day or two Secretary of Commerce ALEXANDER said that "the investment of "American private capital in foreign "countries is being delayed by the "world political situation. If the "Peace Treaty were ratified, Ameri-"can investors would have greater "confidence in putting their money "into foreign securities." Who can gainsay that? Yet the rules under which foreign trade may be promoted under the Edge act are not even promised until "next week."

Meanwhile, Europe is reviving at a rate which threatens us with tardiness at the harvest. For November France sent us more goods by half than in the same month before the war. Italy doubled its exports to us, and England more than doubled its bid for our goods with its goods. The trade of the neutral nations with us indicates that they are middlemen, reselling to other European nations what they get here. It is to our interest to sell our goods direct to buyers, making both the bankers' and traders' profit, but that can only be done by granting credits. It is all very well to be slow and sure, but the world trade figures show that the prostration of Europe is passing, and that the world trade is being done under such necessitous conditions that not even the Senate's blockade of the Treaty can completely stop it.

NATURAL LAW IN THE SPIRITUOUS WORLD.

Fermentation of cider and other fruit juices is hereafter to be unlawful, according to a ruling made by Prohibition Commissioner KREMER. While the agents of enforcement are likely to be too busy in the near future to make careful examination of all juices suspected of the heinous offense of obeying a law of chemistry, due notice is given that fermentation is an obnoxious act, not to be tolerated in any law-abiding home. For the present "a watchful eye" will be kept on all dealers in such commodities, and when the vigilantes of aridity get a respite from their other duties they will probably turn their attention to any wayward juices which may have taken advantage of the preoccupation of the officers of the law and indulged in forbidden pastimes.

Of course, such a ruling makes a criminal of nearly everybody—at least to the extent of harboring a criminal. No harmless bottle of cider or grape juice can rest in the pantry for long without coming under well-grounded suspicion, and it will be the duty of all good citizens to execute a recension of the shelves every two or three weeks. An innocent exterior may conceal a criminal conscience; that harmless jar of marmalade in a remote corner of the kitchen table, apparently resigned to its fate as the ornament of breakfast-table toast, may for all its owner knows be at this very moment undergoing a change into something like orange bitters. And wrath unbounded at this manifestation of ingratitude must be prevalent among the farmers of the country, whose votes were such a powerful influence in forcing prohibition upon the cities, but who never dreamed that the fulfillment of its natural destiny by a jug of cider would be regarded as a criminal act. Surely the prohibitionists are biting the hand that so liberally fed them.

One omission, however, is to be noted. The Prohibition Commissioner shrinks as yet from applying his doctrines in logical completeness. He has not yet prohibited fermentation in the human stomach. Until he does this and inflicts exemplary punishment on some of those whose systems persist in their wicked habits of the unregenerate past, one cannot feel that prohibition is really complete.

Meanwhile, a worthy effort to live up to the spirit of the law has been made by the City Library of Springfield, Mass., which has removed from its shelves all volumes bearing on the manufacture of liquor lest they fall into the hands of those who would make use of the information contained. Of course, this must include the text-books on organic chemistry and all the standard encyclopedias, whose articles on "Wine" and "Whisky" contain a whole treasure-house of information for the alcoholically prurient; even Holy Writ itself contains some mention of processes leading to the forbidden result. The logical next step is the suppression of all books containing any mention of liquor except as a curse. That has been predicted by some of our imaginative fictioneers, and taken as a joke; but the country is rather slowly coming to realize that there is nothing jocose about prohibition.

LUIS CABRERA'S INVITATION.

Several parties of American business men have visited the larger Mexican cities by invitation in the last year. No one insulted them and they witnessed no outrage. Their welcome was cordial, they were hospitably entertained. They traveled from place to place in parlor cars and there was no sign of insurrection and no disorder. The cities they entered seemed to be well governed, peons were working in the fields, operatives were busy in factories. Merchants were displaying their wares, professional men were occupied at their tasks. The people found time to play as well as to work. It was not the old Mexico, but industry was reviving and reconstruction well under way—in those cities and parts of the country to which the Americans were taken by attentive officials, selected committees, and courteous guides. The Mexicans were on their best behavior, and only what it was good for the visitors to see was exhibited. That is the Mexico that LUIS CABRERA, Secretary of Hacienda, would have Senator FALL see, if he accepted the Secretary's invitation "to come to Mexico to look into the real situation in our country." Señor CABRERA is adroit, plausible, and bold. "We will place a special car at your disposal," he says, "so that you "may visit any part of Mexico you "desire." The Secretary of Hacienda disapproves of the Senate committee's inquiry, even on American soil:

> Looking into the Mexican situation through the keyhole of the door, your official investigation is distorted by the lenses of your prejudices of specially interested parties. Come to Mexico to see how our country is living and fighting its way to reconstruction through all sorts of obstacles both internal and external.

Unfortunately for the Cabrera point of view, witnesses from the other side of the door—it is not necessary to peer through the keyhole — are appearing before the Senate committee to tell their stories. JAMES J. BRITT, an American lawyer practicing in Tampico, where the American interests are considerable, testified on Wednesday at San Antonio concerning the murder a fortnight ago of two of his Christmas guests, EARL BOLES and F. J. ROONEY. Mr. BRITT, a native of New York City, began his story as follows:

> On Dec. 30 BOLES and ROONEY left the plant of the International Oil Company, where they were employed, to get some gasoline from the Texas Company. On the same day the paymaster of the Aguila Company had received a permit to transfer money to the fields.
> The way of BOLES and ROONEY lay through Carranza territory, which was supposed to be well policed. In build ROONEY resembled the paymaster of the Aguila Company, and the murderers from ambush shot down ROONEY by mistake. A volley of bullets entered his body. His companion, BOLES, began to run for his life, but did not escape; a bullet shattered an ankle and a machete finished him. Mr. BRITT declares that the murderers were not bandits of PELAEZ or of any other Tampico insurgent, but were Carranzista ruffians, a conclusion from the evidence given at the inquest. Even if he be wrong about this, the Americans were slain in territory patrolled by Federal soldiers. The country back of Tampico, the oil field country, is not safe for American visitors, since American residents run the risk of being murdered. Even the Secretary of Hacienda might well be nervous if an American Senator elected to view conditions there. Peace and order prevail at the capital, to the outward seeming at any rate, and in Queretaro, Guadalajara, Guanajuato, and San Luis Potosi, and industry is generally reviving — there is no controversy about it. But in other parts of Mexico no American is safe, and many Americans have been killed, are still being killed. That is the indictment of an incompetent or feeble Government, and to invite Americans to be personally conducted through scenes of security and honest toil is not a sufficient plea.

"RESPONSIBLE CABINET GOVERNMENT."

Senator KENYON of Iowa is good enough to declare "that he intends "to make a preliminary effort to "bring about the establishment of "responsible Cabinet government." Of course, "responsible Cabinet government" would mean the substitution of the British and common Continental form of government for our own. The Senate would become otiose. An adverse vote on a question of confidence in the House of Representatives would overthrow "the Government," and introduce new policies and a new administration. So long as the Constitution lasts "responsible Cabinet government" can't exist in the United States.

But the amiable Iowa Senator doesn't mean exactly what he says. What he seems to mean is that the Cabinet — an entirely extra-constitutional group of officers, created by statute, added to from time to time by statute, and in the existing practical form of administration essentially a series of distinguished clerks, appointed by and responsible to the President, who, under the Constitution, cannot share with anybody the responsibility, purely and entirely his, for the executive conduct of the Government—shall be a function of "representative and popular government." Mr. KENYON has a beautifully novel project. He wants to have the Republican Party put into its platform "a resolution pledging that at least "thirty days before the election in "November the party nominee for "President shall announce the names "of the men he will appoint to Cab-"inet positions in the event of his "election." Of one or two great names, ordinarily that of the future Secretary of State, for instance, the public has usually had anticipatory knowledge. The public knows that some great, important politician or statesman is to be Secretary of State. JOHN HAY inherited by Mr. ROOSEVELT, potently succeeding him ELIHU ROOT, could be understood, but if Mr. ROOSEVELT had promised to a yearning country that he would appoint Mr. C. J. BONAPARTE Attorney General, Mr. GEORGE MEYER Postmaster General, Mr. NEWBERRY of Michigan Secretary of the Navy, Mr. JAMES R. GARFIELD Secretary of the Interior, and so on, what happiness would he have given to his supporters, what greater responsibility would he have given the people the sense of exercising? The responsibility is in the President constitutionally. Elsewhere it cannot be. It is on the next President, not on any appointees of his, not on any shifting collection of Cabinet officers, that the mind of parties and of the people rests. Responsibility should be sole. Such it now is.

With a most excellent intention Mr. KENYON is trying to make, as many others before him have tried to make, our system of government into something entirely different from the will of its founders and the will, still continuing, of the people. "Representative government in the Cabinet" might be called a strange notion, if any notion could be accounted strange in this time of innovations and new-fangled plans. The responsibility of members of the Cabinet would be neither less nor greater than it is if Mr. KENYON'S thirty days' notice should prevail. If he wants a new system of "responsible Cabinet government," there is only one way in which it can be brought about. The Constitution must be amended. That seems to be a simple task enough in these days. To such a simple task, and not to the overloading of Republican platforms, should Mr. KENYON address himself.

MR. MUNSEY BUYS THE HERALD.

Through his present ownership of The New York Sun and his just announced purchase of The Herald and its evening edition, The Telegram, Mr. MUNSEY becomes the inheritor of two illustrious and inspiring traditions in New York and American journalism, the tradition of CHARLES A. DANA and of the elder and younger JAMES GORDON BENNETT. But Mr. MUNSEY is very much the maker of his own traditions, and his very successful and honorable career as a newspaper proprietor has made it evident that he belongs to the moderns rather than to the ancients. Times change and newspapers change with them. That older day of sharp controversies between newspapers, taking the form, as they often did, of personal attack, though usually the controversy was about matters of no interest whatever to the public, has gone forever. Mr. MUNSEY has always had more interesting things to concern himself with than bickerings with his neighbors. He proceeds upon the assumption that courtesy is becoming to a gentleman, whatever be his calling.

Mr. MUNSEY will have the congratulations and cordial good wishes of his contemporaries in this enlargement of his newspaper interests.

HERBERT HOOVER.

An outstanding feature of the candidacy of HERBERT HOOVER is that he is not a candidate. A young political friend who lately suggested his hat for the ring was forcibly and definitively thrust out at the door. When JULIUS H. BARNES "nominated" him before the National Dry Goods Association, Wednesday night, he took care that the letter announcing his intention should reach the nominee together with the newspapers reporting the speech. Mr. HOOVER'S hat is still firm upon his head.

Even more striking is the fact that Mr. HOOVER is a man without a party. The most Mr. BARNES could say was that "his political affiliations have "been with the Progressive-Republic-"ans." But the Progressive-Republicans are no more as an organization; and Mr. BARNES further deepened the uncertainty when he stated that if the Republican Party were to "adopt a non-progressive platform," and otherwise line up with the Old Guard, it was "conceivable" that Mr. HOOVER might head the Democratic ticket. Mr. WILL IRWIN, who was HOOVER'S roommate at Leland Stanford, gives a similar account, Mr. HOOVER'S world-wide wanderings as a mining engineer have always prevented him from voting, with the exception of 1896, when he voted for MCKINLEY against BRYAN; but Mr. IRWIN points out that HOOVER has done his best work for the present Administration and has loyally supported the President, not only with regard to the League of Nations but also with regard to the famous appeal of 1918 that the nation, regardless of politics, return a Democratic Congress. To Mr. IRWIN this indicates that HOOVER "could run on either ticket." Such a record and such an attitude are not likely to allure the practical politicians of either party, whose chief interest centres in maintaining the solidarity and vigor of their organizations. No man is a great man to them who is not also potentially a great political leader.

The fact remains that Mr. HOOVER is thus far the most interesting Presidential possibility with the exception of LEONARD WOOD. The two characters are, in fact, similar. The brilliant success of General WOOD'S administration in Cuba, which won worldwide celebrity in its day, stands on an even footing with the Hoover food administration. The far-sighted and practical idealism of the Plattsburg training camp, without which our army must have been very inefficiently officered, is equaled by HOOVER'S prompt and energetic interposition in behalf of Belgium. Both men have pursued their ideals of patriotic service with an utter disregard of the result to their personal and political fortunes. Of the two, WOOD has today the stronger national standing, HOOVER the more nearly worldwide celebrity. BRAND WHITLOCK'S "Belgium" enshrines a heroic figure, certain features of which receive further modeling in MAYNARD KEYNES'S recent volume, in which HOOVER appears in his subsequent European activities.

This is an era of wide and rapid expansion in our activities as a nation. In the rapidly shifting currents of the time many things would be stranger than that such a man should rise suddenly to power and place. The trouble is that the time has not yet passed when party regularity and merely partisan leadership have ceased to be powerful factors in Presidential nominations.

As for Mr. HOOVER'S own intention, his conduct thus far indicates that he is willing to wait. He is only forty-five and of independent fortune.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Advocating Another Expurgation.

That the producers of "movie" dramas do run rather strongly to the presentation of criminals in the practice of their respective arts or trades is the opinion of others than Senator GORE and Representative HASTINGS. Hence it is more than probable that those Oklahoma statesmen will have not a little encouragement and sympathy in their efforts to secure the passage of a Federal law banishing from all the screens of the country the desperado in all his varieties. Indeed, these are days in which almost anybody can get encouragement and sympathy in efforts to stop people from doing almost anything, but there are also folk in considerable numbers who are a bit weary of restrictions and inhibitions upon action hitherto left in the domain of personal responsibility, and it may be that the Oklahomans also will hear voices, loud and many, saying that there is little, if any, more excuse for banning all films dealing with criminals and crime than there would be for excluding from public libraries books the authors of which used the same material.

If such a rule as that were applied in libraries, not only would no small fraction of their shelves now filled be swept bare, but among the exiled volumes would go an alarmingly large fraction of what always has passed for the highest and best in literature.

It is not well, of course, that the youth of our land should acquire the conviction that it is heroic to rob trains, burglarize banks, or indulge in revolver practice on one's fellow-men for either business or pleasure. But do the youth of our land acquire that conviction from what they see at the movies? Now and then there are reports of boys thus affected, but the reports are not very well guaranteed as true, and it would not require any large amount of courage to inquire whether much or most of the supposed demoralization due to the exploitation of criminals is not imaginary. Even the most lawless of the movie heroes has redeeming virtues, and when boys cease to be thrilled by the thought of dangerous adventure in wild places the world will be in a bad way.

Tolerable Easily as Alternative.

In dealing with such a question as whether or not criminals of the desperado type are properly used as material for interesting and amusing the general public, mature and immature, consideration must be given to the certainty that there are going to be moving pictures in great number and for a long time, and that the exclusion of some subjects will result in concentration on others.

Bank robbers and train robbers are not to be commended, but their exploits bear rather better than well enough comparison with those of adventurers of another sort, whose field of action is the domestic fireside, whose chief characteristic is treachery, and whose victims are deserving of commiseration at least as much as are those of the bandit king.

Possibly the sensitiveness of Messrs. GORE and HASTINGS to the depiction of the scenes they reprehend is due to their wish that the idea of the West as wild be not confirmed and perpetuated in Eastern minds. Possibly that notion does deter the investment of Eastern capital in Western ventures. But if that is the real reason for antagonizing the thrillers, why not say so? Of course the West isn't wild, nowadays.

Miniature Volcanoes Preventable.

When what, not quite accurately, are called manhole explosions come to be matters of daily instead of weekly occurrence here, as seems likely soon to be the case, probably effective measures to prevent them will be taken. They are, of course, one of the penalties paid for having the joys and profits derived from the automobile and its humble brother, the motor truck.

Every one of the explosions, or next to every one, is due to allowing the gasoline used as fuel in these vehicles to reach the sewers. Volatilized there, and collected in the manholes, the first spark that comes along sets off the dangerous gas and up go the manhole covers.

It is, indeed, already illegal to let gasoline flow into the sewers, but this form of lawlessness is so hard to bring home to the individual offender that it is practically unpunishable, and, grievous as the admission is, probably it will go on till automobiles cease to exist—which will not be tomorrow or next week. The only remedy for what is a real and increasing peril seems to be recognition of the need to change the management or construction of urban sewers and to provide for their more thorough ventilation. Any engineer could suggest several ways of doing that, none of them very difficult or expensive.

Meanwhile, the judicious pedestrian does not step on manhole covers. He goes around them, even when to do so involves the taking of several extra steps.

To Take His Place as Citizen.

A bill granting full citizenship to all Indians born in the United States and dividing among them without restrictions as to sale the land now held as tribal property has passed the House of Representatives. Should it become law, the end of the Government's dealing with the Indians as in a special sense its wards will have arrived.

The record made by the nation in the executing of this well-intentioned protection of the Indian from himself and his white neighbors has not been brilliant enough to render its termination a cause for regret; but, while some of the tribes already have developed the ability to take care of themselves, others still are somewhat dubiously equipped for the task, and it is to be feared that to give land to them with power to dispose of it as and for what they please will not be much different from giving that land to the not always scrupulous palefaces who have long had their eyes on the reservations.

What is feared, however, does not always happen, and if all our Indians do prove capable of guarding their own interests the disappointment will be a pleasant one. It is not impossible. The North American Indian is and always was a good deal of a man. He has his faults, like the rest of us, but he never, or almost never, would be a slave, preferring to die fighting, which is a fine preference, and a better beginning of citizenship than that is not easily imaginable.

THE MOON ROCKET.

Admiral Sims Explains Its Action in a Vacuum.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When my class (1880) was at the Naval Academy our instructor in physics and chemistry included in one of his examination papers the following question:

"Will a rocket ascend in vacuum? If so, why? If not, why not?"

The affirmative and negative answers were about equally divided. Good-natured feeling ran high and took the form of parades through the corridors with banners inscribed: "It will go up," and "It won't go up."

It was accordingly referred to the "professor," who not only decided with the affirmatives, but illustrated his answer by suspending from the ceiling of the lecture room a large water bottle in a horizontal position. Upon his removing the cork the bottle recoiled several inches. It was explained that this recoil of such a heavy weight could not have been caused by the flow of a small column of water against the air, but was the result of the pressure of the water on the cork of the bottle being released, thus throwing an unbalanced pressure against the bottom of the bottle; that the action was in effect the same as the recoil of a gun. In conclusion, he stated that a rocket would ascend in a vacuum for the same reason that a gun would "kick" if fired in vacuum; that the propelling force of a rocket was nothing but a continuous "kick."

If this is true, it follows that the editorial article "A Severe Strain on Credulity," in your issue of Jan. 13, is in error; that the rocket there referred to will ascend after passing above the earth's atmosphere; and that Jules Verne was correct in his assumption that an explosion from his huge projectile would produce a "kick" while circling the moon, and thus release it from the attraction of that satellite.

For Mr. Hoover.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When this country has a man like Herbert Hoover, why are the different political parties searching for a man who may split their party instead of combining and making Mr. Hoover our next President?

A man who understands conditions and has managed the food supply of this country and Europe so ably, and who has come out of five years of work and experience without a blemish on his good name, besides returning to our Government over a million dollars, should be able to carry on the affairs of this country.

He may not be an able speaker (being a very modest man), but what we need and want now is one who can administer the affairs of these great United States, and no man is better fitted in age and experience than Mr. Hoover. M. L. ROBINSON.

Sir Toby on the List.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

According to recent report, we are informed that the canny Scotsman has found "Macbeth" objectionable, and no doubt in the near future the Dane, the German, and the Hollander will feel some uneasiness until certain lines are expurgated or plays are entirely forbidden.

Let us consider, also, how distressing, how fraught with danger, to the prohibitionist to be compelled to sit through the latter part of "Twelfth Night," and witness the hilarious condition of Sir Toby Belch and Sir Andrew Aguecheek.

Would it not be well, in view of our present amicable feeling toward our cousins across the deep, to eradicate the numerous lines which in the works of Shakespeare reflect unfavorably on English character and customs? WILLIAM MUSSON.

Settlement Wants a Piano.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The auditorium in the University Settlement is soon to be redecorated through the kindness of a friend of the children in this neighborhood, the most crowded in New York.

Five hundred children use this room weekly for aesthetic dancing classes, and in the evening the older young people of the Settlement gather here for all sorts of entertainment.

An upright piano is greatly needed to complete the newly furnished room. And I am writing to ask if any of your readers have a piano which they would like to give for this service. LOUISE SMITH.
University Settlement, 184 Eldridge Street, New York, Dec. 31, 1919.

From Mrs. de Koven.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Although repudiating an alleged interview in The Chicago Journal, published without my knowledge or consent after I refused to be interviewed, I wish to state that I do believe in the survival of the soul and also in communication with the dead, under certain conditions. I maintain the attitude of the English and American Societies for Psychical Research that these facts have been scientifically proved.

I am not a Spiritualist in the ordinary accepted comprehension of the term—as I belong to no Spiritualist church.

NO BOLSHEVISM FOR AMERICA.

There is no Phoenix. That fabled bird,
Rising refreshed from funeral fires,
Is but expression of age-long desires
For life, with which mankind is stirred.

Build and not destroy. That motive makes
Basis for upbuilding of a race
Giving to humanity a place
With gods—groundwork no tremor shakes.

Make all things better. Do not overturn
That which laborious years have wrought—
Treasure, ofttimes, most dearly bought
With blood. Store it up safely. Do not burn.

Pillage cannot win. The good that's hoped
Comes only by constructive toil
And never from destructive spoil,
Or fires through which the incendiary groped.

Yes, right the wrongs; no murderous hands
Can bring from chaos goodly shape,
Or human weal, if first they drape
In mourning, devastated lands.

Let justice reign. The law enthrone.
Revere, and not destroy the State
Promote the good, wrong things abate.
Build thus, ere worldwide peace has flown.

PAN-AMERICAN PROGRAM.

Important Government Officials to Take Active Part in Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Announcement was made at the Treasury Department tonight that many of the most important officials of the Federal Government will act as the personal representatives of the Secretary of the Treasury in the deliberation of the nineteen international group committees which will meet in conjunction with the second Pan American Financial Conference, which opens on Jan. 19 for a week's session in Washington. They will also keep in close touch with the official delegates from the Southern republics.

These representatives will include the Assistant Secretaries of the Treasury and they will be in consultation throughout the conference with the financial and business leaders of the United States, numbering over 200 in all.

The representatives of the Secretary of the Treasury and the countries they will look after in co-operation with the group committeemen are:

Governor Harding, Federal Reserve Board, Argentina.
Walter W. Warwick, Controller of the Treasury, Bolivia.
Vice Governor Albert Strauss, Federal Reserve Board, Brazil.
Edwin F. Sweet, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, Chile.
Charles S. Hamlin, Federal Reserve Board, Colombia.
Angus McLean, War Finance Corporation, Cuba.
Norman W. Davis, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Dominican Republic.
Henry A. Moehlenpah, Federal Reserve Board, Ecuador.
James L. Moyle, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Salvador.
Breckenridge Long, Assistant Secretary of State, Guatemala.
D. C. Biggs, Governor Federal Reserve Bank, St. Louis, Haiti.
J. U. Calkins, Governor Federal Reserve Bank, San Francisco, Honduras.
Benjamin Strong, Jr., Governor Federal Reserve Bank, New York, Mexico.
A. C. Miller, Federal Reserve Board, Nicaragua.
M. B. Wellborn, Governor Federal Reserve Bank, Atlanta, Panama.
Fullun Lay, foreign trade adviser, State Department, Paraguay.
George W. Norris, Farm Loan Commissioner, Peru.
Eugene Meyer, managing director, War Finance Corporation, Uruguay.
J. S. McDougal, Governor Federal Reserve Bank, Chicago, Venezuela.

ACT ON 'MOVIE' CENSORSHIP.

Mayors' Committee Names Bodies to Suggest Methods of Control.

A special committee, appointed at the State Conference of Mayors in Schenectady last June, met in the Waldorf yesterday to discuss motion picture censorship. Four sub-committees to investigate phases of motion picture regulation were appointed. They are composed of city officials, authors, clergymen, labor leaders, and representatives of all branches of the "movie" industry. The sub-committees will report to the general committee on the best method of censorship control, and their reports will be submitted to the State Conference of Mayors to be held at Albany next month.

The sub-committees appointed were: State censorship, Rex Beach, Ardsley-on-Hudson; R. Andrew Hamilton, Commissioner of Public Safety of Rochester, and James P. Holland, President of the State Federation of Labor. Work of National Board of Review, Walter W. Nicholson, Syracuse; the Rev. Charles O. Judkins, Glens Falls; Mrs. N. B. Spalding, Schenectady. Provisions of Existing Laws, Gabriel L. Hess, New York; Miss Mary Gray Peck, New York, and A. T. Smith, Brooklyn. Local Regulations, Everett D. Martin, New York; Mrs. Howard Gans, New York, and Walter Hayes, Buffalo.

Walter R. Stone, former Mayor of Syracuse, and President of the State Mayors' Conference, presided at the meeting. He said that New York City, other cities of the State and other States were vitally interested in the question of censorship and desired the benefits of the opinions and experiences of the committee members.

After the meeting the members of the committee visited several studios and watched the filming of pictures. This morning the committee will attend a meeting of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures, 70 Fifth Avenue, which now acts as an unofficial censor of 97 per cent. of the films produced in the country. At 2 o'clock a meeting will be held at the Waldorf, which will be attended by prominent persons in the motion picture industry, and further plans will be perfected.

WOOLWORTH ART ON VIEW.

Contents of Late Merchant's Fifth Avenue Home to be Sold.

There opened yesterday at the Silo Galleries an exhibit of the contents of the Fifth Avenue residence of the late Frank W. Woolworth, who gave to New York the monumental Woolworth Building. The house was a big one, 990 Fifth Avenue, corner of Eightieth Street, and the contents are notable chiefly, in this age of devotion to antiques, because they are modern.

A large Beauvais tapestry, seventeenth century, subject, "The Fruit of the Fields," is the single exception. There is handsome furniture of all kinds, with many beautiful rugs, and a fine drawing room suite done in Aubusson tapestry. One of the most noticeable pieces of furniture—if a piano is furniture—is an upright Welte Mignon, set into an elaborate case, the one number in the sale which comes from the Woolworth offices. The home piano is a grand in an ebony case.

There are a number of interesting pictures to be included in the sale, though several of the Barbizon school which belonged to Mr. Woolworth are not to be sold. A beautifully painted French picture, "The Wedding Feast," is by P. Selinas; there is a Clays marine, "On the Scheldt"; "The Grand Canal," Ziem; a pleasing "Cattle in a Pool" is by James M. Hart, and "The Children's Ball at the Home of His Eminence," by Cesare Detti. There is a charming interior, a water color by P. Hopkinson Smith, "Inn of William the Conqueror," and an exceedingly agreeable picture, "Fishing," by E. W. Van Boskerck; "Kittens," by J. Adain; "Turkeys," by J. Scheurer, and an "Ideal Head," by Gabriel Max, among others. There are various marbles and bronzes.

The sale will take place next Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, at 2:30 P. M. daily.

ART FEDERATION EXHIBIT.

The largest collection of photographic and color prints in this country was exhibited last evening by the American Federation of Arts, in the auditorium of the Russell Sage Foundation Building, at 130 East Twenty-second Street. The exhibition will continue until Jan. 25.

An explanation of the showing and a review of the work of the American Federation was made by its President, Robert W. de Forest, who is also President of the American Museum of Art. The occasion was a meeting of the volunteer workers of the Charity Organization Society, at which Mrs. John Glenn presided. Lawson Purdy, Secretary of the society, also spoke.

Mr. de Forest said that the exhibition was only one of forty or fifty being taken from one city to another to stimulate interest in good pictures. There are millions of people, he said, who have never seen a painting, and the Federation is thus attempting to bring the reproductions of good paintings to them. It is the purpose of the organization, he continued, to bring art into the home.

BRENT WANTS DEAD TO STAY IN FRANCE

Bishop and Senior Chaplain with A. E. F. Addresses Plea to Baker and Soldiers' Kin.

TELLS HONOR FIELD PLAN

Association Would Pay High Tributes to American Heroes and Cement Bonds Between Nations.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Bishop Charles H. Brent, senior Chaplain with the American Expeditionary Forces in France, has addressed an open letter to Secretary Baker, and the next of kin of the American dead in France regarding the return of the bodies of American soldiers who fell overseas. The letter was made public today by the American Field of Honor Association, which is opposing the movement for the wholesale return of the bodies, and follows charges presented in the Senate and House that the movement is being fostered by undertakers for their personal profit.

"America," wrote Bishop Brent, "has left to the decision of the nearest of kin in each case what the final resting place of our dead is to be—whether in France or in this country. No one will dispute the right of parent or wife to claim the fulfillment of the promise made by the American Government to return to America the bodies of our dead soldiers. But it is conceivable that there are those who, after learning the plan to establish and maintain in France an American field of honor for those who are 'forever overseas,' may consider this the more excellent way.

"A bill to incorporate the movement has already been presented to Congress, and is to be reintroduced shortly. There will be an American central field of honor with as many departments as may be necessary. Here each year on an appointed day commemoration of the dead will be observed. Over all the sheltering folds of the Stars and Stripes will forever wave.

"Those of us who have given for more than a year careful consideration to the American field of honor are moved by a single-minded purpose. It is the work of love carried through by a sense of reverence for that sacred dust which, though mingled with the soil of France, is forever American. It aims to pay high honor to those to whom high honor is due. It would preserve as far as may be the comradeship of the war among those who met a common fate. It would perpetuate in death that work begun in life to bind together nations of like ideals."

National headquarters were opened today by the American Field of Honor Association. William E. Bailey of Harrisburg, Penn., heads the association, which names among its incorporators more than forty men and women of national prominence. Among these are Dr. George Woodward of Philadelphia, James S. Cushman, William Howard Taft, Jacob H. Schiff, Evangeline Booth, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Bishop Charles H. Brent, Samuel Gompers, Myron T. Herrick of Ohio, and General Cornelius Vanderbilt.

HOPE TO ADJOURN JUNE 5.

House Republicans Plan to Rush Appropriation Bills Through.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—House Republicans plan to rush through their work so they may adjourn June 5, thus leaving three days in which to reach Chicago in time for the Republican National Convention June 8. In announcing today the expected adjournment, Floor Leader Mondell of the Republicans indicated this intention today.

"We ought to be able to pass the last of the regular appropriation bills through the House not later than the first of April and earlier if possible," said Mr. Mondell, "and I am very much in hopes that we may be able to dispose of the business before Congress and secure an adjournment by Saturday, the 5th day of June.

"I am, of course, making this statement as a matter of individual opinion not intended or purposed to bind or affect any one's judgment."

CABLE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

American-Ukrainians Protest Poland's Mandate of East Galicia.

The Ukrainian National Committee of the United States, on behalf of eleven hundred Ukrainian organizations in this country, yesterday sent a cablegram to the League of Nations now assembled in Paris, protesting against the decision of the Supreme Council to give the mandate over East Galicia to Poland. The committee declared that the Ukrainians will "oppose every attempt to place the Polish yoke upon them and Americans of Ukrainian blood will support their kinsmen to the limit of their ability."

The cablegram, of which copies were sent to Lloyd George, Clemenceau, and Nitti, was adopted at the initial session of the second annual convention of American Ukrainians which opened at the Hotel Pennsylvania yesterday morning.

At the afternoon session the principal speakers were Joseph Hartigan of the Government War Savings Organization and Dr. L. M. Keasbey, Economic Administrator of the American Mid-European Association, who were introduced by Milton Wright, Director of the committee's Information Bureau.

CORNELL R

SIR OLIVER LODGE HERE FOR LECTURES

Famous Physicist Arrives on the Lapland from England for Six Weeks' Tour.

SKEPTICAL ABOUT HELL

Doesn't Believe It Exists or That People Go to Heaven When They Die.

Sir Oliver Lodge, one of the world's foremost physicists, and perhaps its most eminent believer in spiritualistic phenomena, came to New York from his home in England on the Lapland yesterday for a six weeks' lecture tour, during which he will divide his time between expounding his material and psychic beliefs.

Among the aspects of physical science with which he will concern himself are his interpretation of the Einstein theory, the relations of ether to matter and the world changes that some day may follow the discovery of a means of harnessing atomic energy.

In his sitting room at the Ritz-Carlton last night, however, the stalwart, striking-looking scientist talked of that less familiar world in which he came to believe after a lifetime of devotion to studying the hard-headed material world palpable to the ordinary senses.

He came, he said, to preach no new religion, but to strengthen old ones with new evidence regarding the spirit world.

He asserted there had been a great change in interest in psychic phnomena in England because countless grief-stricken parents there had heard from their sons who had died in the war, and had been comforted. Of his own son, Raymond, who was killed fighting the Germans and whose name he has used as a title for one of his books on the spirit world, he talked with an uncanny belief of his living presence.

Doubts People Go to Heaven.

Heaven, as a place where people go when they die, he doubted, saying spirits were much the same as when they left their earthly bodies, and only their ethereal part persisted, and "must not see God, lest they be blinded." Of hell, he was even more skeptical, expressing the belief that there could be no place of permanent badness out of which the departed could not lift themselves.

Sir Oliver warned solemnly against suicide, saying that while he felt great pity for those who sought to destroy themselves he had "been told by those who had tried it" that it was impossible, and that they were worse off "upstairs."

In a discussion of his conception of the spirit world he expressed a doubt, though not a conviction, that there really is "another" world. Those who have gone, he said, tell of trees and animals and flowers, and it might be that they only were seeing the same old world from a different aspect and with other senses.

Asked if there had been any new and striking evidence to strengthen his own conviction of life after death, he told this story, which he said was authenticated and of recent occurrence:

"A mother was receiving communications, spelled out, which she was convinced came from her son, who was killed in the war. She tried to get her husband to come and receive them, too, but he said it was all nonsense and refused. After a time evidence accumulated, and the husband was persuaded. He appeared unexpectedly, while the mother already was in communication with the boy. The lad broke off suddenly and this message came:

"'Ulloerb.'

Father Interprets Message.

"The medium said it was all nonsense, but the father cried:

"'I know what it means. He says "'Ullo Erb," and oddly enough Erb is what he used to call me.'

"That was so striking the father was convinced and thereafter he received many messages."

The scientist digressed to disclaim any powers of a medium for himself and went on with his discussion of communications from Britain's dead in the great war.

"I do not hold that we become saints and go to heaven, or devils and go to hell," he said. "I don't think we are good enough for the one or bad enough for the other. Most people are rather weak. That is why they go wrong, not because they want to think we all want to do better and that we will have a chance over there. At any rate that is what the young fellows killed in the war say.

"I have talked with a good many of them. They are quite happy and active. They find a job and they only hope people over here won't grieve too much for them and think they have gone out of existence. They haven't gone out of existence. They can't. I have known a few who tried to and couldn't."

A moment later he approached that phase of his subject from a different angle, defending mediums from charges of "disturbing" the dead and remarking, with a smile, that surely they were ready to be disturbed, at least after a few hundred years' sleep.

Can't Force Return.

"If they don't want to come, we can't make them," he explained. "We only summon them, not force them, as some persons say. Old people who pass away in the course of nature don't come as quickly as younger ones who are keen and full of vigor.

"Such are eager to come. That is what makes the present great wave of interest in this subject in England—that great body of eager young fellows who died in the war and found themselves very suddenly on the other side.

"They tell us about trees and flowers and animals, and I sometimes think it's still this side seen from another point of view—it may be this same old world, there may not be another world—I don't know. There are lots of things I don't know."

Next Sir Oliver took what he frankly said was a fling at the Christian Scientists when he read from a prepared statement a declaration that he "had no sympathy with those who denied the material universe, though admitting the spiritual universe was so much more important a little overemphasis on that side may be pardoned."

"Christian Scientists," he continued, "do rather deny physical matter. I am with them when they assert, against them when they deny. People who deny generally mean that they don't understand.

Ethereal Aspect Remains.

"That is true, too, of men who deal with matter only, all their lives. They get into the habit of denying everything else. Because they can't dissect out a soul, they deny its existence. Those men do not take into account ether or try to deny its existence because they cannot perceive it. But ether is, and worlds move through it. Our senses do not tell us all of reality. We infer the ether; it is the connecting link between the worlds and links them all into a cosmos."

The scientist lifted a little silver tray as an example, and gazing fixedly at it a moment, continued:

"Everything I pick up has an ethereal as well as a physical aspect. There are atoms of matter, but what holds them together? My doctrine is that ether holds them together. Matter wears out because it has imperfect properties. Ether does not wear out, because it has perfect properties. So the material part of the body wears out, usually after seventy years or more, and we leave it. The ether doesn't wear out, it continues—that, I speculate, is the mechanism of survival. The fact of survival has to be established by communications with the other side. But my study of ether somewhat explains the way we are able to survive and feel after death somewhat as we do in this world."

Suicides Sorry for Deed.

The speaker digressed to his warning against suicides, and, when asked if he ever actually talked with any, said, after one of his rare moments of hesitation during the interview:

"Yes; they mostly say they are horrified at having done it. It is not for me to judge, especially the man with a disease of incurable pain, but it seems to be regarded as a crime over there. They tell me they find worse ills.

"Over there they seem to feel they have set a bad example, and they are sorry, if they are good fellow—and I guess they mostly are."

Sir Oliver advised caution in accepting evidence of psychic phenomena, expressed his gladness at being able to help bereaved people in England who have been comforted by hearing from their dead sons," said he had had little acquaintance with "naturalization," and said he thought the nature or a medium's faculty was "a willingness to allow your bodily instrument to be used by another intelligence, since for people on this side matter is necessary if they must use some material machinery, otherwise they would make no impression, except, perhaps, a vague mental one."

He cited the inability of a musician to communicate with his audience unless he used a fiddle or some other instrument, and added:

"The whole thing is worked through the subconscious, the dream stratum which everybody possesses. Such communication between the living we call telepathy, and I call communication with the dead another form of telepathy."

Sir Oliver said he thought it a mistake to regard spirits as oracles, since each man must bear responsibility for his own actions, and may be in closer touch with the material world than the spirits. He doubted if spirits knew, generally speaking, more about the future than living persons, though through contact with people longer dead and wiser than themselves they might be able to make predictions.

No Sudden Change in Death.

Life after death, he believed, in most cases continues "on our own grade or stage, the place we are fit for," and he was "convinced death makes no sudden change at all."

Sir Oliver admitted "an awful lot of rubbish comes through," but he thought reference to little family affairs was for purposes of identification, and he had himself talked philosophy with a dead friend, who tried to explain the spirits' methods of working. Some of the "rot," he thought, came from the living one's "own dream structure."

His son Raymond, he said, was "very much in touch with the family" and "knows when a marriage or a birth or such is toward," and he added with a smile:

"He knew I was coming to New York, and he was much pleased, believing I should do a lot of good here."

In expressing his doubt of a permanent hell Sir Oliver cited Darwin's theory of evolution and facts known to zoologists that some animals, such as barnacles and monkeys, have retrograded from their original state as evidence that there might be retrogression after death. Some people, he said, go down in this life, particularly children in the slums, who found the earth-life too hard for them, but he was satisfied all could eventually work up again after death. Still, he believed in a place of repentance, punishment, and atonement, and had been told about it by spirits. Selfishness and cruelty, he said, were the hardest things to overcome.

GERARD STILL IN THE RING.

At Women's Meeting Admits He's a Presidential Possibility.

James W. Gerard, who told a reporter that he was still in the political ring, spoke yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the Girls' Protective League and New York Probation and Protective Association at the home of Mrs. Ernesto G. Fabbri, 7 East 95th Street.

"Nothing to say—what is there to say?" the ex-Ambassador replied when asked if he might be considered as a possible Presidential candidate. "Oh, yes, I am still in the ring," he added.

In telling the women of the many changes which were the result of the great world war, Mr. Gerard said that there had been no greater change than in the way in which women had come into power.

"It is you women," he said, "who will decide the next Presidential election and the future policy of the country, and, as one who always advocated female suffrage, I congratulate you."

In relation to the care of young people of the community, he told of his knowledge as a Judge of the endless harm done to a young person convicted of a small offense who was confined with older criminals, and that it was that part of the civil Government which should be made the concern of the women.

UPDIKE BUYS OMAHA BEE.

Announces That Paper, Now Republican, Will Be Independent.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Jan. 15.—The Omaha Bee, one of the best known newspapers west of the Mississippi River, was sold today by the Rosewater family to Nelson B. Updike, a grain and lumber operator of Omaha.

The Bee was established almost half a century ago by the late Edward Rosewater, upon whose death Victor Rosewater, his son, took charge. It has always been stalwart Republican in politics. The new owner announces that hereafter it will be absolutely independent, but that this year a Republican candidate for President will be supported.

WILSON GLAD FOR DENMARK.

Congratulates King on Prospect of Recovering Sleavig.

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 15.—King Christian of Denmark today received the following telegram from President Wilson:

"I am glad the treaty of Versailles, in the negotiations of which I had the honor to participate, so far has become effective by the deposit of ratifications by the principal signatories as to open the way for the people of Danish Sleavig to express their will as to reincorporation with their loved mother country, thus realizing one of the ideals for which I strove."

DR. R. C. MACLAURIN, EDUCATOR, IS DEAD

President of Massachusetts Institute of Technology a Sudden Pneumonia Victim.

NOTED FOR HIS VERSATILITY

Eminent as Scientist, Lawyer and Executive—President of Institute Before He Was 40 Years Old.

BOSTON, Jan. 15.—Richard C. Maclaurin, President of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, died at his home late today of pneumonia. He had been ill since Saturday.

Dr. Maclaurin was an uncommonly brilliant and versatile man, who attained great eminence in science, law, and education before he was 40 years old, for he was born in 1870, and was elected to the Presidency of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in the Autumn of 1908.

A native of Lindean, Scotland, he spread his activities widely. His earlier education was obtained in New Zealand and he entered Cambridge University, England, in 1892.

In 1898 he accepted the professorship of mathematics in the University of New Zealand, and almost at once he was called upon for a wider use of his talents. He was made a trustee of the university and assumed a leadership in the organization of education throughout the Dominion.

Cambridge heard of this work and awarded him an LL.D. in 1904, and he was called upon to add to his duties that of Dean of the Faculty of Law. Nevertheless he did not refuse the offer of Columbia and in 1907 he came here as professor of mathematical physics. But Columbia was not able to hold him long. In November of the following year he was chosen to succeed Henry S. Pritchett, who had retired as President of the Massachusetts Institute to become Chairman of the Carnegie Foundation. He did not actually take up his duties in Boston, however, until the close of that college year at Columbia.

The largest single contributor to respond to his encouragement was George Eastman of Rochester, who has given a total of $11,000,000 to technology, the last $4,000,000 of it in accordance with his expressed agreement in case a recent drive for $8,000,000 was successful. For a time Mr. Eastman hid behind the mysterious name of "Mr. Smith." Then there was the bequest of $5,000,000 in the will of Henry C. Frick. These were the two largest benefactions, but many others of generous proportions resulted from Dr. Maclaurin's efforts.

WOULD PUT VIGILANCE POLICE IN SHOE STORES

Retailers' Association Proposes to Help the Government to Detect Profiteers.

BOSTON, Jan. 15.—A vigilance committee, national in scope, to police the retail shoe business as an aid to the Department of Justice in running down profiteers, will be offered to the Government by the National Shoe Retailers' Association, it was voted today.

The shoe men, at the last session of their annual convention, approved unanimously the proposal of its Resolutions Committee that it show in this manner "a spirit of co-operation instead of fight," in the Government's efforts to reduce the cost of shoes and other commodities.

Chairman H. A. Rosenbach of the committee told the convention that there had been requests from some persons that the association "go on record as being prepared to fight the Government because they wanted to reduce costs," but their number was small. The committee, he said, had not as yet drafted finally its proposition to the Department of Justice, but it was described as follows:

"It is impossible to outline any general percentage of profit, either net or gross, that can be made by all retail shoe stores in America. Your committee in its resolutions will go definitely on record against the possibility of any such law, and they will deny absolutely and unequivocally that there is profiteering in the shoe business in the United States, except in the one instance that Attorney General Palmer mentioned.

"The plan of your committee is that we will organize a vigilance committee, with one man in every State, preferably associated as closely as possible with, or a member of, the various price-fixing or fair-price committees, who will operate as the vigilance officer of that State, and who will appoint under him representative shoe men throughout the State. Any case of profiteering that may come to our notice may be directed to that vigilance officer, and the National Shoe Retailers' Association of America will go on record as going the limit to stamp out that man who profiteers. It is inconceivable that the Government will not accept our offer."

The association elected as President James P. Orr of Cincinnati.

PLEA FOR VIENNA CHILDREN.

Public Asked to Relieve Famine in Austrian Capital.

Following a meeting in Herbert Hoover's offices at 115 Broadway, yesterday, the newly formed American Relief Committee for Sufferers in Austria, which former Ambassador to Austria Frederic C. Penfield, is Chairman, made an announcement of its purposes.

Emphasis is placed on the urgent need for immediate response to this committee's appeals if the work of childrefi's relief is to be extended during the next few critical weeks in Vienna.

"Children in Vienna no longer receive free food from the American Relief Administration European Children's Fund," this statement says, "unless physicians have pronounced them below normal in nourishment.

"Harsh as this sounds, the food shortage in Austria has reached the stage where all of the relief societies together have not sufficient supplies to do more than this.

"And this in spite of the fact that the Children's Fund program for this January calls for 232,000 free meals daily for children. The number sounds enormous, but Austria has a population of about six million people.

"It is useless to send money into Austria, because there is practically no food to be bought; what little there is must be paid for at a frightful price, and in getting it for one person it is taken from another.

"Checks for the American Relief Committee for the Sufferers in Austria may be sent to Alvin W. Krech, Treasurer, President of the Equitable Trust Company, 37 Wall Street."

FLAGLER ESTATE SOLD.

W. C. Teagle, Standard Oil President, Buys Greenwich Property.

Special to The New York Times.

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 15.—Walter C. Teagle, of New York, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, has bought the residence of John H. Flagler on North Street, Greenwich, Conn., consisting of 40 acres. It is said that between $300,000 and $400,000 was the price.

The Flagler residence, which has not been occupied since the death of Mrs. Alice M. Flagler a year ago, is Spanish mission type of architecture.

There are outbuildings, including a guest cottage, superintendent's house, greenhouses and garages.

One part of the land can easily be converted into a lake.

CALLS ON CATHOLICS TO AID

Archbishop Wants 100,000 Men to Collect $5 a Year Each for Charity.

The New York Branch of the Catholic Federation of the United States, of which Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes is Chairman of the Advisory Board, held its convention last night at the Hotel Commodore. Officers and delegates of the various Catholic Societies of the Archdiocese, representing 200,000 members, were present.

Archbishop Hayes in his address paid a tribute to the members of the organization for their work, and asked that the federation assign him 100,000 men and women to be at his disposal to form an organization to be known as the Catholic Charities Aid Association, to aid in charitable work, and that each member of the organization collect throughout the archdiocese $5 a year. He said that in this way $500,000 would be collected to aid in charitable work and would eliminate the necessity of organizing drives for funds.

DANCE FOR MISS HAMMOND.

Mrs. W. D. Sloane Gives a Reception for Debutante Granddaughter.

Mrs. William Douglas Sloane gave a reception with dancing last evening at her town house at Fifty-second Street and Fifth Avenue for her débutante granddaughter, Miss Emily Sloane Hammond, the elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Henry Hammond. All of the very large Vanderbilt and Sloane connections were invited, and several dinners preceded the reception.

Among the dinner hostesses were Mrs. James Henry Hammond, who gave a large dinner at her residence, 9 East Ninety-first Street, for her daughter; Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., who gave a dinner for Miss Muriel Vanderbilt, and others among the débutante's relatives gave dinners and all took their guests to Mrs. Sloane's for the reception and dancing. There was music throughout the evening, and after midnight a seated supper was served in the dining and adjacent rooms. It was the first large affair of its kind that Mrs. Sloane has given in several years, and Miss Hammond is the first of her granddaughters to make her début.

HORACE E. DODGE IMPROVING

Body of His Brother, John F., Taken to Detroit for Burial.

Horace E. Dodge, the automobile manufacturer of Detroit, who has been ill for more than a week with pneumonia at his apartments in the Ritz-Carlton, was reported last night to be progressing favorably. His physician, Dr. Ira L. Hill, a former Detroit man, said that he hoped to have his patient up in a week.

The body of Mr. Dodge's brother, John F. Dodge, President of the Dodge Brothers Automobile Company, who died Wednesday night of pneumonia, was taken yesterday to Detroit, where the funeral services will be held and burial will be in Woodlawn cemetery.

Dr. Hill said that the form of influenza which had attacked the two brothers was similar to that which ravaged the country in 1918.

It is to be the first of a series of monthly social entertainments at the club by its members, the majority of whom were fighting pilots on the western front. There will be an opportunity to view the aerial paintings by Lieutenant Henri Farré of the French Air Service, which are now hung on the clubroom walls. Mrs. Charles Baker and Mrs. Burnet T. Wenman, the President and Vice President of the W. N. A. A., will act as hostess, assisted by a number of others.

Two Dances Tonight.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of St. Vincent's Hospital will hold its annual reception and dance tonight at the Waldorf-Astoria, in the grand ballroom.

The British Great War Veterans will give the first of a series of three dances tonight at the Waldorf-Astoria. The dances are being held under the auspices of the Ladies Auxiliary of the organization. The proceeds are to assist in obtaining a clubroom. The Prince of Wales became a member of the Veterans during his recent visit here.

Gov. Smith to Lead Grand March.

Governor Smith will lead the grand march with Mrs. Charles B. Alexander at the annual Charity Ball on Feb. 3, at the Waldorf-Astoria. The Governor and Mrs. Smith are to be the guests of honor at a dinner Mrs. Alexander will give at her residence, 4 West Fifty-eighth Street, before the ball.

CHURCH TO BE BUILT IN NEW SKYSCRAPER

Christian Scientists to Occupy Part of Structure on Lower Madison Avenue.

As the result of financial arrangements completed yesterday by the Madison Avenue Estates, Inc., and the Fifth Church of Christ, Scientist, construction work will begin at once on the twenty-one-story skyscraper to be erected on Madison Avenue in the block between Forty-third and Forty-fourth Streets.

The new structure will contain the auditorium, Sunday school, and clerk's office of the Fifth Church of Christ, Scientist. With the exception of two small plots, the building will occupy the entire block on Madison Avenue, between Forty-third and Forty-fourth Streets, extending back about 179 feet on Forty-third Street and 145 feet on Forty-fourth Street. The improvement will be owned, erected, and managed by the Madison Avenue Estates, Inc.

The structure will be of steel frame and fireproof construction throughout, with exterior of limestone and brick. The church auditorium, 81 feet by 92 feet, with a height of 44 feet, will have a seating capacity of 1,800. The architecture of both the interior and exterior of the church edifice will be Greek, the four Ionic columns at the entrance to be of verd antique marble. The interior will contain eight free standing marble columns.

The first three stories of the office building will be of stone. The other stories will be faced with selected brick, stone and terra cotta. It is expected the building will be ready for occupancy before January, 1921.

In connection with the financing of the building, S. W. Straus & Co. yesterday arranged to underwrite an amortized first mortgage serial 6 per cent. bond issue of $5,000,000. The land and improvement are valued at $8,500,000. The first mortgage loan runs over a period of fifteen years, with maturities beginning in July, 1922, and terminating Jan. 15, 1935. The gross annual income is estimated on a conservative basis of $1,330,000, and the net annual income is more than two and a half times the highest annual interest charge on the first mortgage.

The Fifth Church of Christ, Scientist, will raise $2,000,000 to be secured by second mortgage serial bonds bearing 6 per cent. interest, which will be retired serially in twenty years from 1923. Through this arrangement the church eventually will come into possession of a ninety-nine-year lease on one of the most imposing church properties in the world.

It is understood the Fifth Church already has sold nearly $1,000,000 in the second mortgage bonds to its members and others.

BUCK O'NEILL LEAVES SYRACUSE TO COACH THE FOOTBALL ELEVEN OF COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY

COLUMBIA NAMES O'NEILL AS COACH

Former Syracuse Football Director Will Handle Local Eleven Under New Regime.

TO PICK OWN ASSISTANTS

Morningside Team Will Have No Faculty Restrictions Next Fall—To Play Penn and Cornell.

Frank J. ("Buck") O'Neill, football coach at Syracuse for the last three years, yesterday was appointed head coach at Columbia for this year. He will be in full charge of gridiron coaching at the Morningside university and will be assisted by a high-class staff of his own selection.

The official announcement of O'Neill's appointment was made last night by Lester C. Danielson, Graduate Manager of athletes at Columbia. It reads as follows:

The Columbia University Athletic Association announces that Frank J. O'Neill has been secured as head coach of the football team next season. Mr. O'Neill will be in New York City next year and will take active charge of the coaching.

At the office of the athletic association it was said that O'Neill would not be instructor in the university's physical education department. Unlike Fred Dawson, his predecessor, and all the coaches of other sports, O'Neill will act only as football coach and will have no other connection with the university. The rule requiring the football coach to be a member of the physical education department was abrogated last Fall along with the other five-year restrictions.

The announcement of O'Neill's selection was received with marked approval by the student body and alumni. Campus opinion recognized in it additional evidence of the determination of the athletic authorities to leave no stone unturned to assure the success of unrestricted football next year. It was pointed out that O'Neill will be the first coach of national reputation at Columbia since Foster Sanford resigned, in 1904, to coach later at Rutgers. Metcalf and Dawson, who were O'Neill's predecessors, although coaches of ability, were not of the first rank, as compared to either Sanford or O'Neill, both of whom have been uniformly successful in developing high-class elevens.

Syracuse Had Claimed Him for 1920.

The selection of O'Neill caused as much surprise as it did elation, for it was generally believed that he had signed a contract with Syracuse for next year. A report to this effect emanated a week ago, and resulted in the elimination of his name from the rumors that were circulated concerning the identity of the successor to Fred Dawson.

O'Neill's new post undoubtedly will be as satisfactory to him as to the Columbia athletic authorities. Since 1915 O'Neill has found that his law practice in New York City prevented him from devoting his full time to the gridiron game. For the last three years he has acted only in an advisory capacity at the up-State university, a large part of his time being spent in his office in this city. At Columbia, however, this difficulty will be overcome and he will be able to devote the necessary time and attention to his new duties on Morningside Heights.

The new coach refused last night to venture a prediction as to his plans at Columbia. Until he has had an opportunity to look over the field and confer with the Columbia authorities he declined to make a definite statement.

In the last three years with O'Neill acting as advisory coach, the Orange has consistently kept in the front rank of Eastern elevens. In the 1919 season it gave Pitt its first defeat in five years, lost only to Washington and Jefferson in the East, and on the season's record was one of the three leading teams in this section of the country.

Difficult Task at Columbia.

A much greater number of students will be eligible next year, and games have already been arranged with both Cornell and Penn, the former to be met at Ithaca. The Penn game will be staged at the Polo Grounds and every effort will be made to restore the sport to the standing it had at Columbia before 1905. The appointment of O'Neill as head coach will mean that the former Syracuse adviser will have the difficult task of developing a Blue and White team that can take its place with the leading elevens of the East.

O'Neill's predecessor at Columbia was Fred T. Dawson, who came to Morningside from Princeton in the Fall of 1918. Previous to that he had been at Union College. Dawson had unusual success at Columbia with the 1918 S. A. T. C. team, but last year had only mediocre results. He resigned in November because of ill health. Nelson T. Metcalf, now head coach at Oberlin, was the first gridiron mentor at Columbia after the revival of football in 1915.

SAY WHEN WINS ANOTHER.

Torn Jib Fails to Prevent Victory in Ten-Mile Iceboat Race.

Special to The New York Times.

RED BANK, N. J., Jan. 15.—Although handicapped by a torn jib on the last round of a fast ten-mile race today for the Thomas Henry Grant Pennant, sailed in a stiff northwest wind, which put two of the five starters out of commission, Thomas Irving Brown's speedy Say When covered the course in 20:00, finishing ahead of Henry Applegate's Whim by 1:20. Andrew White's Brownie finished third.

After being slatted about by the heavy wind that made spectacular racing, George W. Bray's Daisy, which Skipper Del Fisher was unable to hold to the ice, withdrew, and Grant and Morford's Tyro, sailed by Oscar Brand, crabbing and spinning over the ice, finally parted a jib halyard and was forced out of the going.

The Get There did not start, but will get away tomorrow, with Reuben White at the tiller, in what may prove the deciding race for the W. Harold Powers Cup.

N. Y. AGGIES' FIVE VICTOR.

Defeats Babylon A. C., 30 to 16, Nichols Making 22 Points.

Scoring 22 out of his team's 30 points, Nichols, right forward on the New York Aggies basketball five, last night helped his team to a decisive victory over the Babylon A. C. on the collegiate court at Farmingdale, L. I., by 30 to 16. Nichols contributed eight baskets from the floor and six from fouls. It was a game of individual performances. Babylon made only two floor baskets of its 16 points, Guernsey, its right guard, caging twelve out of seventeen tries for foul goals.

Sharkey Outpointed by Buff.

Jack Sharkey was outpointed in his eight-round bout at the City A. C. of Jersey City last night by Benny Buff. The margin was only a shade, but Buff landed the cleaner blows, and in the last round knocked Sharkey down. The little west sider was up immediately, however. Sharkey weighed 117½ and Buff 114 pounds.

Frick Rejoins Glencoe A. C.

William Frick, a middle-distance runner of ability, who formerly represented the Glencoe Athletic Club in open competition, but who some time ago requested to be registered as unattached yesterday requested the Registration Committee of the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U. again to register him as a member of the Glencoe A. C. Frick is a brother of Eddie Frick, the New York A. C. athlete, who was one of the best middle-distance runners in the country a few years ago.

LEVINE IS ELIMINATED.

Newman and Flinn Meet Tonight for Three-Cushion Title.

THREE-CUSHION STANDING.
New York State Championship.

Player.	W.	L.	P.C.
W. H. Flinn	6	2	.750
A. Newman	6	2	.750
H. Levine	6	3	.667
R. Naughright	6	3	.667
S. B. Burdett	5	4	.556
A. de Oro, Jr.	4	5	.444
L. A. Servatius	3	5	.375
R. J. Mishler	3	6	.333
L. D. Sacks	2	6	.250
H. L. Turk	2	7	.222

Harry Levine was eliminated from any chance to win the New York State three-cushion championship of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players at the National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn last night when he was defeated by Arthur Newman, who won the national as well as the State title last season. The score was 30 to 10. The victory was won as easily as the score indicates, in forty-nine innings. The winner made two high runs of three points each, while Levine's best individual effort netted him a lowly two.

As a result of this game Newman advanced to a tie for first place with William H. Flinn of the Amateur Billiard Club. Each of these players has won six of the eight games he has played. They will meet tonight in a match that will decide the championship, and, judging by the form they have displayed in their recent games, the clash should be productive of some really good and interesting carom billiards. Both players appear to be at the zenith of their form and with their strokes working at their best the tussle should be keen and evenly fought.

Last night Newman was in stroke, while Levine was far from being in the form that has featured most of his matches in this tournament. That supplies the answer to the one-sided score and the easy victory that Newman scored. A big gallery assembled to watch the match in anticipation of a real, honest-to-goodness battle of cues, but the spectators were disappointed, for Levine could not get going. The champion took the lead at the outset and never was in danger.

Besides the match between Newman and Flinn for the title, only one more game remains to be played in this tourney. Louis Servatius and Leonard Sacks still have a dispute to settle. Sacks has been out of town recently, but if he returns in time this game will also be played tonight.

NEUSTADT DEFEATS BOYD.

Captures Final Game in Class C Billiard Tourney, 150 to 84.

Playing in something like his old form, J. Neustadt scored an easy victory over F. W. Boyd in the Class C 18.2 balkline championship tournament of the N. A. A. B. R. at Lawler Brothers' Academy in Brooklyn last night, winning by a score of 150 to 84. This was the final game of the regular tournament, which has been closely contested throughout, and the defeat of Boyd put that player out of the triple tie for first place. Brussel and Servatius are now tied for the honors with four games won and two lost, and will play off for the championship Monday night.

Neustadt had good control of the balls and made an average of 5.5-29, with a high run of 27, while Boyd averaged 2.26-29 and had a high run of 11. Though the tie for first place is yet to be played off, Brussel was awarded the prizes for the highest run and the highest average of the tournament.

MRS. MALLORY WINS TWICE.

Defeats Mrs. Cassebeer and Mrs. Kaltenborn in Tennis Tourney.

Mrs. Franklin I. Mallory yesterday resumed at the Brooklyn Heights Casino the tennis habits that she had when, as Molla Bjurstedt, she used to run through an entire draw in one day, for by eliminating two opponents in quick succession she reached the final round of the women's singles in the club's indoor tournament. Mrs. Mallory first took the measure of Mrs. Theodore Cassebeer of the West Side Club at 6-1, 6-2, in spite of the fact that her rival put up a good fight all the way, and then disposed of Mrs. H. B. Kaltenborn of Brooklyn, 6-1, 6-1, in the semi-finals.

Although her real skill and strength were by no means thoroughly tested in either match, the former national champion gave further indication of the complete come-back that was prophesied when she defeated the present title-holder, Mrs. George W. Wightman near the close of the outdoor season. Physically she seems in better condition than ever before, and she is daily adding to her control of strokes and command of court tactics. The Norsewoman no longer trusts entirely to speed and endurance, as in the old days, but places with judgment, and wins her points by the surest and most logical process. Her impressive exhibition yesterday made her a favorite to win the event.

Mrs. Kaltenborn reached the semi-finals by the default of Mrs. Mabel D. Straffin. On the other side of the draw Miss Eleanor Goss has to play Miss Adele Bull, while Mrs. Dawson Wood meeting Mrs. Robert Leroy and the winners coming together in the semi-finals. The final round is scheduled for Saturday afternoon, Jan. 31.

COLUMBIA WRESTLERS WIN.

Defeat Tiger Grapplers at Princeton by Score of 17 to 14.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 15.—Columbia's wrestlers proved too much for the Tiger mat men in their wrestling match here this evening. The New Yorkers triumphed by the score of 17 to 14.

With the exception of the final event, the unlimited class, the bouts were closely contested. Carpenter, Princeton's heavy man, threw Flint of Columbia in one minute and seven seconds. This bout was one of the fastest of the evening.

The 158-pound class furnished the most gruelling battle. Red was given the decision over Parrish after nine minutes of hard struggling. The Blue and White got three decisions and a fall, while their Orange and Black opponents won two falls and a decision.

The summaries:

115-Pound Class—Oltron, Columbia, won over Carrick, Princeton, on decision.
125-Pound Class—Jacobs, Princeton, threw Melitis, Columbia, in 5 minutes 40 seconds.
135-Pound Class—Zuretsky, Columbia, won over Webster, Princeton, on decision.
145-Pound Class—Pauly, Columbia, threw Danforth, Princeton, in 4 minutes 2 seconds.
158-Pound Class—Red, Princeton, won over Parrish, Columbia, on decision.
175-Pound Class—Kirtland, Columbia, won over Dixon, Princeton, on decision.
Unlimited Class—Carpenter, Princeton, threw Flint, Columbia, in 1 minute 7 seconds.

TRACK STARS RUN TONIGHT.

Games of 71st Regiment Will Bring Together Fine Performers.

What is hailed as the greatest indoor track season in history will get an official start tonight when the games of the 71st Regiment will be held in the armory at Thirty-fourth Street and Park Avenue. Athletes of Olympic, national, and local reputation will compete in the various events.

The feature on the long list will be the three senior Metropolitan A. A. U. championship events, the 1,000-yard run, the one-mile walk, and the 16-pound shot-put. In the long distance such stars will start as Mike Devaney, Jack Sellers, Jimmie O'Brien, and H. Wigger, and the mile walk has attracted an entry which includes Willie Plant, Dick Remer, Joe Pearman, and others.

NEW MOONERS WIN ON SQUASH COURTS

Crescent A. C. Triumphs Over Princeton in Team Matches by Score of 3 to 2.

STANDING OF THE CLUBS.
Metropolitan League—Class B.

Club.	Played.	W.	L.	P.C.
Yale	5	5	0	1000
Harvard	6	4	2	.667
Crescent	6	3	3	.500
Columbia	5	1	4	.200
Princeton	6	1	5	.167

The squash tennis players of the Crescent Athletic Club yesterday handed the Princeton representatives something of a surprise in the Class B team matches of the Metropolitan League, winning by the close score of 3–2 on the Tigers' home courts, and thereby taking a firm hold on third place in the club standing. The Harvard club, meanwhile, took another match from the Columbia racquet-ers at 4–1, with Yale remaining idle for the day, and therefore keeping her unbroken string of victories intact.

Princeton's defeat was accomplished in sensational fashion. The home players accounted for the first two individual matches of the afternoon in one-sided style, E. C. Olds winning from N. F. Torrance, the veteran title holder of the Crescent A. C., 15–7, 15–3, while Jesse Hoyt took the measure of A. W. Baxter, Jr., at 15–8 in each of their two games.

Then came a close battle between H. W. Dangler, and Lloyd Richards, in which the latter was slow to get started, losing the opener at 15–8, and then wasting most of his strength in a desperate effort to tie up the match, which he accomplished at 15–11. Dangler's victory in the rubber, at 15–10, eventually proved to be the turning point of the whole affair, although at the time the result seemed of minor importance. But when Harold Rowe was returned a winner over George Walker, Jr., at 15–12, 15–10, everything depended on the final struggle of the day, with C. W. Dingee facing Jarvis Cromwell.

The Crescent man won the first game, at 15–9, after which, with the success of his side depending on his efforts, Cromwell made a game uphill fight to square the match. By the hardest and most stubborn play, he managed to set the game for extra points at 13-all. They alternated in the additional hands, and, with all even again at seventeen, Cromwell was serving, and had the winning ace on his racquet with a fine chance for a kill from close up. A successful shot meant at least a tie and a possible victory over his older opponent. He smashed the ball with terrific force, only a few inches above the telltale, and with Dingee far out of position, the chance of a return was remote. But the young Princetonian was not quick enough in getting out of the way of his own shot, and an unlucky carrom off the wall ended the hand for him. Encouraged by this break of luck, Dingee served successfully for the one act needed, and completed the spectacular victory, individually and for his team, at 18–17.

Harvard had a comparatively easy time with the wearers of the Blue and White, losing only one match out of five. The Columbia winner was Harold Kellock, who turned in a highly creditable score of 10–15, 15–8, 15–9 over John Munro.

Donald McClave made F. S. Whitlock work hard in both of their games, carrying the second to extra points before losing the match, 15–11, 18–14. But the remaining encounters were all one-sided.

The summaries:

CRESCENT A. C., 3; PRINCETON, 2.
E. C. Olds, Princeton, defeated N. F. Torrance, Crescent, 15–7, 15–3; Jesse Hoyt, Princeton, defeated A. W. Baxter, Jr., Crescent, 15–8, 15–8; H. W. Dangler, Crescent, defeated Lloyd Richards, Princeton, 15–9, 11–15, 15–10; Harold Rowe, Crescent, defeated George Walker, Jr., Princeton, 15–12, 15–10; C. W. Dingee, Crescent, defeated Jarvis Cromwell, Princeton, 15–9, 18–17.

HARVARD, 4; COLUMBIA, 1.
J. H. Richards, Harvard, defeated J. N. Worcester, Columbia, 15–12, 15–8; Hewitt Morgan, Harvard, defeated I. H. Cornell, Columbia, 15–7, 15–8; Harold Kellock, Columbia, defeated John Munro, Harvard, 10–15, 15–8, 15–10; F. S. Whitlock, Harvard, defeated Donald McClave, Columbia, 15–11, 18–14; Geoffrey Taylor, Harvard, defeated W. H. Putnam, Columbia, 15–12, 15–4.

TO PLAY OFF SQUASH TIE.

Harvard and Yale Clubs Fix Date to Decide Class A Title.

This year's squash tennis championship in Class A of the Metropolitan League will be decided next Tuesday afternoon at the Squash Club, 42d Street near Madison Avenue, by a play-off between the teams of the Yale and Harvard Clubs. These two old rivals finished the Winter series last Tuesday in a tie, each having defeated every other club in the league, and dividing their own two meetings, Yale winning the first and Harvard the second. It was agreed to decide the club title on neutral courts, agreeable to both contenders, and yesterday afternoon Chairman A. G. Blaisdell, of the schedule committee, gave out the decision in favor of the Squash Club as the field of battle.

PROS IN SQUASH MATCHES.

To Play for Privilege of Challenging Walter Kinsella for Title.

The first professional squash tennis match of the season will take place at the Yale Club on two successive Saturdays, Jan. 24 and 31, with Frank Lafforgue, the coach of the Yale and Princeton players, meeting W. F. Ganley, who looks after the Harvard representatives. They will play the best three out of five games each day, and the winner will later meet James Mullins, the professional of the Columbia University Club, for the honor of challenging Walter Kinsella, who holds the world's open title, and makes his headquarters at the Squash Club.

Kinsella is scheduled for a five-set match at court tennis with Jay Gould, who recently defeated him for the American championship, at the Tuxedo Tennis and Racquet Club next Sunday morning, to be played for the benefit of Robert Moore, the English professional, who has given the club faithful service for nearly twenty years, in addition to his earlier work at the New York Racquet Club.

There will also be a professional handicap squash tennis tournament later in the season. Lafforgue and Ganley will both play from scratch next week.

TILT FOR DAVIS CUP TODAY.

English and Australian Tennis Teams Meet at Sydney.

The challenge match for the Davis Cup, most famous of all international trophies, and representing the world's team tennis championship, begins today on the Double Bay court at Sydney, Australia, with England and Australasia as the contenders.

Brookes again heads the Australasian side, with Gerald L. Patterson, his partner in the American doubles championship, sharing the honor of defending the highly prized trophy. The third man of the team is likely to be Pat O'Hara Wood. The English team is composed of A. R. F. Kingscote, A. R. Lowe and A. E. Beamish.

ENMITY IS FIRST IN FEATURE RACE

Sprinter Shows Speed in the Demack Overland Handicap at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 15.—J. E. Conley's Enmity, which recently took the measure of Jack Hare, Jr., and The Boy, and appears now to be at the top of his form, is developing into one of the best sprinters of the Winter meeting. This four-year-old son of Transvaal captured his third victory in a row at the Fair Grounds today when he scored a close decision in the Demack Overland Handicap at six furlongs, which was the feature of an otherwise rather dull card.

This was the most severe test that Enmity had been put to at the local course, for he was obliged to pick up 117 pounds today and give away many pounds to the others. But he showed a fine flight of speed despite the heavy impost and the heavy going, though it required his best efforts to last to the end. Bullet Proof made a very strong finish, and it was only in the last few strides that the winner got his head in front. Siesta was third, five lengths back.

Enmity showed fine courage, for he appeared to be beaten in the stretch after seeming to have the race at his mercy soon after the start. Jockey Warrington hustled Enmity into the lead at the very start, and rode the gelding hard for half a mile, gaining a lead of a length and a half. At this time Ira Wilson was following the pace, and Bullet Proof was far back. But, as Enmity turned into the stretch, he began to weaken, and, as he slowed down, Bullet Proof came up with a rush. At the sixteenth pole Bullet Proof took the lead for a short distance. To those who had made Enmity a 6 to 5 favorite it seemed that their choice was doomed to defeat, as he had apparently given up his best, but Warrington went to the whip again and his mount responded under hard urging, and in the last 100 feet outgamed Bullet Proof. Siesta ran an even race, and was a factor to the stretch, but began to tire, and fell back near the finish, though still holding Docod safely. The latter never had a much chance, as he met with interference, and was further hampered by a badly judged ride.

Soldat de Verdun was another which scored a third successive victory, showing a distinct liking for the condition of the track as in other recent races, and a liking also for the distance, this son of Verdun took the fifth race at a mile and an eighth, and, as on previous occasions, came from behind to win in a driving finish. Jack Reeves furnished the contention at the end, and saved the place from Antoinette by half a length.

Soldat de Verdun was a well-played favorite in a field of seven, but had it not been for a very forceful ride by Jockey Lawrence Lyke, who has met with fine success since he started to ride here, this choice might have disappointed his followers. Lyke picked out the best part of the track all the way, and though this made it necessary to cover more ground than the other he saved his mount for the finish and had something in reserve when the others were tiring. Lyke trailed the others for most of the distance, and did not move up until he entered the stretch, when he sent Soldat de Verdun on to catch Antoinette and Deckmate, which had been their front runners and both of which tired in the end. Jack Reeves in the meantime came with a rush, disposing of the erstwhile leaders, and made a desperate effort to head off the winner, but Lyke gave Soldat de Verdun a fine ride through the stretch and fairly lifted him over the line in front.

BROWN TO PLAY BARNHILL.

Will Meet in Final Round of Advertising Golf Tourney Today.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 15.—T. Russell Brown of Scarsdale and Roy Barnhill of Fox Hills will meet in the final of the tournament of the Winter Golf League of advertising interests at Pinehurst tomorrow. Brown, who won the qualifying medal on Monday, played against R. M. Purveson of Woodland in today's semi-final round and won by 1 up when he sank a twelve-foot putt on the home green.

Barnhill came through to the final at the expense of Lou Hamilton of Garden City, the Fox Hills golfer winning by 1 up with the aid of a great putt from off the green at the eighteenth.

Mrs. J. F. Duryea of Brae Burn, medalist in the women's section of the tournament, won the women's championship trophy by defeating Mrs. George Dutton of Tedesco 6 up and 5 to play in today's final contest.

MASS. GOLF ASSN. MEETS.

Stephenson, Former Harvard Athlete, Elected to Presidency.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 15.—At the annual meeting of the Massachusetts Golf Association tonight Barton K. Stephenson of the Winchester Country Club was elected President to succeed A. D. Locke of Brae-Burn. The new president is an ardent golfer and has been secretary of the Association since 1916, when he succeeded Arthur H. Gilbert of Brae-Burn. Stephenson is a good player and is one of the low-mark men in the State Handicap list. He is an old-time Harvard athlete, having captained the baseball team in 1906.

Other officers elected are Paul R. Clay, Merrimac Valley Country Club, Vice President; Henry J. Nichols, Albemarle Golf Club, Treasurer; Everett S. Litchfield, the Country Club of Brookline, Secretary. The following also will serve on the Executive Committee: Joshua Crane, Dedham Country and Polo Club; Charles A. Hartwell, Oakley Country Club; William F. Garcelon, Commonwealth Country Club; Ray R. Gorton, Pittsfield Country Club, and G. Morton Pierce, Weston Golf Club.

CROMWELL WINS HANDICAP.

Makes Strong Finish in Feature at Havana.

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 15.—J. L. Bonaky's Cromwell, carrying top weight of 124 pounds, and conceding much weight to his opponents, won the feature event, the Salvador Handicap, at the Oriental Park today and in doing so he ran the gamest race he has ever shown. Pickens had the mount and when the start came he took the son of Plaudit-Effect off the fast early pace, being content to lay in the middle of the bunch to the stretch turn, when the boy shot him through an opening on the inside. Pickens was forced to put up his best effort to land him a winner by the small margin of a head, with War Zone second, a length in front of Top o' Th' Morning.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE—For three-year-olds and upward, claiming, purse $600; five and a half furlongs. Daisy Lu, 100 pounds, (Tryon), 20 to 1, 8, to 1 and 4 to 1, first; Bagsdine, 108, (Dawson), 5 to 1, 2 to 1 and even, second; Sophie K., 112, (Watson), 6 to 1, 3 to 1 and 8 to 5, third. Time—1:07 4-5. BARNES ASSURED OF TRIP.

Club Will Pay His Expenses to Play in England.

Jim Barnes's proposed trip to England in search of the British open golf title was made certain this week by the action of officials of his club, Sunset Hills at St. Louis. Scared somewhat by his trip to New York two weeks ago and the subsequent announcement that he sought a berth in the East for 1920, the officials have come forward with a fund sufficient to pay his expenses to England in the Spring. A meeting of the Directors was summoned hurriedly, and opposition to his trip was overcome by the majority.

The New Jersey State Golf Association's annual meeting, according to an announcement yesterday, will be held at the Princeton Club Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 27, at 4 o'clock. Each member club is entitled to one voting delegate, and clubs in the district will be asked to submit invitations for the two Jersey championships, the amateur and the junior. Particular interest will be shown in the amateur tourney because of the fact that Max Marston, who won last year at Deal, has since joined hands with the Philadelphia district and intends to default his title.

Metropolitan Basket Ball.

The second round in the Metropolitan Association A. A. U. 145-pound basketball championship tournament will be held tomorrow evening in the C. C. N. Y. gymnasium the following teams: First game—Brooklyn A. A. vs. Bronx Church House; second game—St. George's Club vs. Jersey Harriers; third game—National Turn Verein vs. St. Christopher Club; fourth game—Grace Club vs. Rutgers Gymnasium.

Results in English Football.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Football cup games, which resulted in a tie last Saturday, were replayed today with the following results: West Ham, 3; Southampton, 1. Leicester, 2; Newport, 0. Luton, 1; Coventry, 0. Wolverhampton, 1; Blackburn, 0.

N. Y. Y. C. IN FIRST MEETING OF YEAR

Committee Is Still Considering Lipton's Challenge for America's Cup.

The first monthly meeting of the new year was held at the New York Yacht Club last night. Six new members were elected, but, following the custom of the club, the names of the men were not made public. As was previously announced, the America's Cup Committee, which has in charge the consideration of the challenge of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club for a series of races to be sailed next Summer for the most important of international yachting prizes, did not make any formal report at the meeting. While the negotiations between the two clubs are progressing favorably and there is every reason to believe that the challenge will be accepted, until all of the many details have been satisfactorily settled the Cup Committee will not make any definite announcement for publication.

There is little doubt that the matter has been formally discussed among the club officials and that certain definite plans have been decided upon. It is understood that it is in connection with these details that the committee is still in correspondence with Sir Thomas Lipton's organization. It had been reported after the annual meeting of the New York Yacht Club in December that something of a definite nature would be expected to be announced at the session last night, but on Tuesday it was learned that the committee was not yet prepared to make public anything regarding the challenge or the more important details in connection with the races.

This came as a big disappointment to the many who are interested in Yachting and particularly interested in the international races in which Shamrock IV. will sail as the challenger and either the Resolute or the Vanitie will defend the cup. However, when the announcement is made it is fully expected that it will be complete in every detail, naming the dates and course and other matters of vital importance in connection with holding this event for the first time since 1903.

After the meeting last night it was impossible to learn

BILL DRAWN ALLOWING BOXING IN NEW YORK

EFFORT AT ALBANY TO RESTORE BOXING

Assemblyman Ross to Introduce Bill Allowing Ten-Round Bouts in This State.

PROVIDES FOR COMMISSION

May Be Handled in Upper House by Senator Gibbs, Who Fathered Similar Measure Last Year.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 15.—An effort to restore boxing in this State is to be made by Assemblyman Harvey J. Ross of the Sixteenth District of Kings. It was announced here tonight that he would on Monday night next introduce a bill which would follow the general lines of the bill offered by Senator Leonard W. H. Gibbs of Buffalo last year. The Gibbs bill passed the Senate after a sharp fight, and was sent over to the Assembly in the dying days of the session. It went into the Judiciary Committee, and when that committee went out of business, giving way to the Rules Committee, which took charge of all legislation, the bill became lost and was never reported out.

Mr. Ross's bill will provide for three Commissioners, to be named by the Governor. It will provide for ten-round bouts, and a decision is to be given by the referee. The State is to receive 10 per cent. of the gross receipts. The contestants must be over 18 years of age and must be in good physical condition, it being required they shall submit to an examination before entering the ring.

Senator Gibbs May Help.

It has not been determined who is to handle the bill in the Senate this year, but it is not unlikely that Senator Gibbs will look after it there. Senator Gibbs is a fight fan, and he believes that the sport should continue under proper regulation by the State.

The Gibbs bill, which was passed by the Senate on April 9 and perished later in the archives of the Judiciary Committee, contained provisions permitting ten-round bouts with an official decision by a referee. The sport was to be under the control of a State Athletic Commissioner appointed by the Governor and to hold office for a two-year term. The salary was to be $3,500, with an allowance for necessary expenses. The measure provided that no bout or sparring match should be held in a building not devoted exclusively to athletic purposes. This clause was designed to place boxing in the hands of responsible men or clubs with a view to insuring honestly conducted matches.

Gambling at bouts was prohibited by the bill, no liquor was to be sold in the places where the contests were staged, and boxers participating in fake or sham bouts were to be barred from participating thereafter in bouts in this State.

State Was to Profit Largely.

Fight clubs were to pay 10 per cent. of the gross receipts to the State. Clubs were to be bonded and fighters, none of whom could be less than 18 years of age, were to be examined by a physician three hours before the contest.

As first introduced, the measure provided for two judges to aid the referee in deciding bouts, but an amendment offered later by Senator Gibbs and adopted by the Senate, eliminated the judges and placed the power with the referee alone. Another amendment empowered the State Commissioner to appoint four deputies to be paid $25 a day for each day they were actually engaged and provided for necessary expenses of traveling and maintenance.

There were high hopes, after the favorable action of the Senate, that the measure would become law, and even up to the day when the pressure of business throttled it in committee optimism was felt by sportsmen throughout the State. The belief was expressed by proponents of the bill that only by allowing official decisions in the ring could boxing ever return to the high favor in which it was formerly held in the Empire State.

FOGEL WINS BOXING BOUT.

Defeats Bartel in One Round in St. Anselm's A. C. Tournament.

S. Fogel, boxing under the entry of the Pastime A. C., won the main bout last night in the finals of the St. Anselm A. C. open tournament in the heaviest weight class listed, 155 pounds, in easy fashion. He was pitted against J. Bartel of the National A. C., who was hardly a match for the husky Pastime man. The referee let the bout go one round and then stopped it to save Bartel from further punishment.

The summaries:

138-pound Class, Semi-finals—E. Boston, Ninety-second St. N. Y. H. A., defeated A. Spollack, Pastime A. C., 3 rounds; H. Pearsall, St. Anselm's A. C., defeated E. Erickson, Trinity Club, 3 rounds. Final—Pearsall defeated Boston, 3 rounds.

155-pound Class—S. Fogel, Pastime A. C., defeated J. Bartel, National A. C., 1 round (stopped by referee).

110-pound Class—A. J. Devito, Paulist A. C., defeated A. Cohen, St. Christopher A. C., 3 rounds.

NEW YORK BOXERS NAMED.

Amateurs Are Selected for Intercity Bouts at Crescent A. C.

The following amateur boxers have been selected by the Crescent Athletic Club to represent New York City in the intercity boxing tournament to be held at their clubhouse in Brooklyn on Thursday evening, Jan. 22, against the best amateurs from Boston and Pittsburgh:

120-pound class, Larry Goldberg and William Pomerantz; 130-pound class, Archie Walker and Henry Brown; 140-pound class, Sam Mosberg; heavyweight class, J. Tomeshek and W. Miller.

The feature class at the open tournament, to be held on Tuesday evening, Jan. 20, will be the 158-pound class, the winner of which will be sent to Pittsburgh on Feb. 7 to compete in an intercity tournament at the Pittsburgh Athletic Association.

Entries for this class will close on Saturday, Jan. 17, with the Metropolitan Association, 290 Broadway.

EVANDER CHILDS WINS.

Swimmers Swamp George Washington H. S by 39 to 14.

The swimming team of Evander Childs High School defeated the George Washington High School swimmers in Evander's pool yesterday by a score of 39 to 14. Broege of Evander won both the 50-yard and 100-yard events, taking the first in 29 4-5 seconds and the century in 1 minute 12 seconds.

Evander took first place in all the events except the relay, the Washington quartet taking that event after a hard struggle.

Coulon to Box La Dieux in Paris.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—Johnny Coulon, former bantamweight champion, has been matched to meet Charles La Dieux, champion of France, in a twelve-round contest in Paris March 8, according to a cable received from Coulon's representative in Europe tonight.

HICKEY IS RE-ELECTED.

Will Continue to Head American Association for Three Years.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—After re-electing Thomas J. Hickey President for a three-year term at an increased salary, and adopting an eighteen-player limit, club owners of the American Association tonight adjourned their meeting until tomorrow, when the schedule for the 1920 season will be taken up.

Indications were that the club owners would adopt a schedule of 154 games, starting the season on April 14, the date of the major league openings, and closing about Sept. 27 or 28. Some of the club owners, including Joseph B. Tinker of Columbus, favor a 168-game schedule, but it was reported that the majority favor the shorter season. President Hickey will urge the adoption of the 154-game schedule.

August Herrmann, Chairman of the National Baseball Commission, addressed the meeting in the role of a peace delegate and asked the association to have representation at the joint meeting of the major and minor leagues committees here Feb. 11. Chairman Herrmann said he believed a solution would be found for the resumption of relations between the major and minor leagues.

Although several attempts were made to bring about trades, only one deal was reported. The St. Paul club sold Pitcher Dick Nelhaus, a left hander, to the Cleveland Americans in exchange for Pitcher Coumbe and a cash consideration.

John W. Norton, President of the St. Paul club, was elected Vice President of the association for a three-year term.

The league also voted to award a silver trophy to the pennant-winning St. Paul Club in addition to the customary pennant.

LEGION MAY HEAR DEMPSEY.

Absence of Commander Delays Answer to Champion's Request.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 15.—Decision as to whether Jack Dempsey, heavyweight boxing champion, will be permitted to appear before the Supreme Council of the American Legion and give testimony as to his record during the war will not be had until the return to Indianapolis of Franklin D'Olier, National Commander. This announcement was made today at the National Headquarters here. D'Olier is in Philadelphia and is not expected at his office before next week.

Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, announced last night in Los Angeles that he had telegraphed the National Commander of the American Legion in behalf of Dempsey, asking that an opportunity be given him to answer charges of various posts of the organization that he was a "slacker." The telegram asked that a halt be called on such action by the posts until a letter written by Kearns reached headquarters.

Officers at the legion headquarters declined to discuss the matter.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 15.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion of the world, "is in no sense a slacker or draft dodger," according to a statement made today by John S. Hogan, a San Francisco attorney, who headed the Exemption Board here which handled Dempsey's case.

RICKARD, TOO, SEEKS BOUT.

Carpentier Rejects $200,000 Offer Because of Cochran's Option.

PARIS, Jan. 15.—M. Descamps, manager for Georges Carpentier, today said that he had received nothing definite with regard to an offer for a fight between Carpentier and Jack Dempsey. He added that so long as he was bound under contract to C. B. Cochran, the English promoter, he could give no reply to the propositions he had received. Among these he mentioned one from Tex Rickard for $200,000 for Carpentier.

"I am under the impression," said Descamps, "that the match will be fought in America for the sole reason that I do not believe Dempsey will agree to fight in our country. Carpentier would prefer to fight in France for a much smaller purse, not only on account of the climate, but through friendship for the organizers and because of the benefit that would accrue to France. Carpentier would be willing to sacrifice half of his purse to bring ten or fifteen million francs into France."

RUTH TELLS TALES OF HIS BOSTON DAYS

Says Frazee Made Him Pay for Wife's Ticket at Big Game in His Honor.

The details of the famous conference between Babe Ruth and Manager Miller Huggins of the Yankees have at last drifted eastward and it develops that Huggins had to search around Los Angeles for two or three days before he finally cornered the home-run slugger and told him he was sold to the Yanks for $125,000.

Ruth spends much of his time in Los Angeles playing golf at Griffith Park. He plays every day and takes long walks besides to keep in shape. When he heard that he had been sold by Frazee without his consent, he at first objected to the procedure of the Boston club owner. Huggins went out to the golf links and waited until Ruth had finished a round and then took him aside and had a long talk with him. Ruth looked down on the diminutive New York manager and then remarked: "I should think you and me ought to get along all right together."

Ruth, after the conference, said that he had not made Huggins any promises and that he wouldn't agree to anything until he got a slice of the money which had been paid to Frazee. Later, however, when Ruth read what Frazee had given as reasons for selling him, Ruth said that he was glad he had been sold and would play with the Yankees if for nothing more than to show up Frazee.

Out on the coast Ruth avoided reporters as much as possible because some of them remarked that Babe used the personal pronoun too much when he was talking. But when he read what Frazee said about him he had a lot to say.

Said Ruth: "Frazee is not good enough to own any ball club, especially one in Boston. On Babe Ruth Day Boston people packed the park. He reserved 15,000 seats and forced the ball players to pay for their wives. I paid for Mrs. Ruth. After the game I was called to his office, where he handed me a cigar and thanked me. That is a fair sample of his liberality. Because I demanded a big increase in salary, which I felt I was entitled to, he brands me as an ingrate and a trouble-maker. The time of a ball player is short and he must get his money in few years or lose out. Any fair-minded fan knows that my efforts on the Boston club last season warranted a larger salary and I asked for it.

"I have always hustled as hard as any man on the diamond," continued Ruth. "When not taking my turn in the box I played in the outfield, doing everything I could to make the club win. I don't like to play for Frazee. I like Boston and Boston fans. They have treated me splendidly and if it were not for Frazee I would be content to play with the Red Sox to the end of my baseball days. Frazee sold me because he was unwilling to meet my demands and to alibi himself with the fans he is trying to throw the blame on me."

Ruth said that with Frazee at the head of the Boston club he was only too glad to get away from the Red Sox. As long as he was to be sold, he preferred to be sold to the Yankees and he promises to give New York fans his greatest season next Summer.

Ruth says that now that he has set a new record for home runs he is going out after the batting championship next season. He says that he will take a shorter grip on his bat next Summer and choke his swing a little. He is going to try to make more hits instead of trying to knock the ball out of the park every time he comes up to the bat.

Anyway, Babe says he is going to prove to the public that he is worth all he demanded and more.

Giants Get a Western Twirler.

Secretary Joe O'Brien of the Giants announced yesterday that the club had signed a new right-hand pitcher, James C. Garton of the Tulsa, Okla., Club of the Western League. Garton was recommended by the famous old scout, Dick Kinsella.

MATTY SUPPORTS WORK OF UMPIRES

But Urges Heavier Fines for Offending Players Instead of Banishing Them.

By CHRISTY MATHEWSON.

There seems to be a lot of talk these days about the increased power given to umpires. Some of the baseball writers, fans, and especially the players appear to be alarmed and think the ump is becoming a little Czar. As a matter of fact, the arbiter today has practically no more power than was his fifteen years ago, but he has orders to enforce the rules more strictly and to put a stop to any storm of protests from the players. He also has the support of the owners in discouraging rowdyism on the part of the fans and in penalizing a player who eggs on the spectators.

A catcher who turns around and glares at the umpire when he calls a near-strike a ball is likely to hear that official say: "Do that again and it will cost you $10." And the catcher knows, too, that if he is put out of the game, at any rate in some clubs, he is likely to be fined even more heavily by the manager.

One thing I do feel is that the game would be benefited if the umpires would stick more to fining a player and not put a man out of the game so often. I am not holding a brief for offending players. They should be penalized. But a heavy fine would accomplish this. In New York last Summer an umpire was booed by the crowd because he sent to the clubhouse Smith, Maranville and Gowdy, three Boston players, who merited punishment. Boston had to put a pitcher in the outfield and the fans were sore because the stars they had paid to see were not in the lineup.

There is another change which would be good for the umps themselves as well as for the game. That is, the printing in the rule book of all the rules which are operative. One would of course think that there would be no question about this, but today there are a number of rules which do not appear in the official book. Two years ago in Cincinnati, Ed Roush slipped just as he was about to catch a fly ball. To protect himself he threw up one hand and the ball struck his wrist. As soon as this happened a St. Louis player who was on third (there was one out), started for home. By this time Ed had captured the ball by making a long, one-handed reach just as it was falling. I ordered the ball thrown to third base and claimed a double play because the base runner had left the bag before the catch. Umpire Hank O'Day agreed with me and St. Louis finished the game under protest.

Much to my surprise, John K. Tener, President of the National League, ruled that O'Day's decision was wrong and ordered the game played over again. "We have instructed our umpires," said Tener, "to consider a fly ball on which a put-out is made, as caught just as soon as it hits the fielder's hand. This interpretation prevents an outfielder from juggling the ball on purpose to fool a base runner."

I have no doubt that this interpretation is a good one and is fair to both sides. Suppose such a thing happened in a world's series. There is nothing about this rule in the books.

The prices being paid for star players is aggravating the tendency on the part of some other players to hold out for much higher salaries next year. In some quarters it is being predicted that when the managers send out new contracts to the players on Feb. 1 there may be a general holdout. The players know that last season was probably the most profitable in the history of the game and they have not forgotten that the receipts at the gates for the world's series approximated $800,000.

Comiskey paid more than $100,000 in salaries to the White Sox last year, but it is said that several of his players will demand more pay in 1920. Eddie Collins, whose contract at $12,000 terminated last October, is said to have asked for as much as Ty Cobb receives, which is $20,000 a year. Eddie Cicotte, whose pitching practically won the league pennant for Comiskey, has been quoted to the effect that unless his new contract calls for $15,000 he will remain idle until he is traded to some other American League club.

Thrift Made Easy

Tomorrow is Ben Franklin's birthday—just the day to begin the "Week of Thrift" Campaign.

Thrift was Franklin's big idea.

Ours too.

Right from the beginning, we've believed that it was unnecessary to pay fancy prices for shirt satisfaction.

And we have proved it—for your benefit and ours.

Par-amount Shirts at $2.00 and $2.50 represent the best possible examples of thrift in shirt buying.

They're standardized in fit—in fabric and finish, with quality always the first consideration.

Buy your furnishings in any of the nine Par-amount Shops and you'll have money left to start a thrift account at the bank.

Absolute satisfaction guaranteed or your money back.

RAEBURN LEADS IN OLD MASTERS' SALE

A REYNOLDS FOR $15,000

Dubigny's "Village on the Oise" Fetches $9,100, and Corot's "Landscape with Cows" $8,400.

Old masters brought the highest prices at the concluding sale of paintings of private collectors and estates at the Hotel Plaza, under the auspices of the American Art Association, last evening. Returns for the evening were $165,885, making a total for the 169 pictures of $542,010. A charming picture, "Boy With Cherries," by Sir Henry Raeburn, brought the highest price, going to Bernet, agent, for $20,000. "Portrait of Lady Broughton," by Rasburn, went to Seaman, agent, for $15,000, and Sir Joshua Reynolds's "Portrait of the Misses Paine," went to the same buyer also for $15,000.

A delightful Daubigny, "Village on the Oise," went to Knoedler & Co. for $9,100, and the same firm paid $8,400 for a Corot, "Landscape with Cows." A smaller Corot, a little "Landscape," on a panel went to Bernet, agent, for $5,200. A pretty little Francis Murphy, "September Afternoon," went to Henry Schultheis for $5,100. A. Augustus Healey, President of the Brooklyn Art Museum, paid $800 for a little Fantin-Latour "Pastoral: "A Sketch," and $400 for "Landscape with Pool," by Theophile de Bock, another small picture.

Maud M. Mason Won Art Prize.

A typographical error in THE NEW YORK TIMES announcement of prizes awarded by the National Arts Club at its Winter exhibit of the work of its painter and sculptor members made the name of the winner of the third prize Maud M. Mason, incorrectly read Miner. Miss Mason was awarded a prize of $200 and a bronze medal for a still life, a vase of flowers, entitled "By the Window."

MAYOR ORDERED TO COURT.

Must Appear for Examination Jan. 23 in Schieffelin Libel Suit.

Clarence M. Lewis of the law firm of Seligsberg, Lewis & Strouse of 45 Cedar Street, counsel for William Jay Schieffelin in the suit for libel brought against Mayor Hylan, announced yesterday that the Mayor had been served during the day with an order issued by Justice Vernon M. Davis of the Supreme Court directing him to appear for examination before trial on Jan. 23 at 10:30 A. M., at Special Term, Part II., of the Supreme Court, Kings County. Mr. Lewis said:

"The order directs the Mayor to testify with reference to the publication of the letter which the Mayor wrote on April 15, 1919, to Dr. Royal S. Copeland, charging Dr. Schieffelin with dealing illegally in narcotic drugs, as to the charges therein made by the Mayor and as to the Mayor's good faith in making such charges. This examination is preliminary to the actual trial of the case which has already been noticed and a claim for preference in the hearing which has already been made. Unless the Mayor makes some motion to either vacate or modify the order and thus delays proceedings the examination of the Mayor will take place on Jan. 23 as directed."

RISE OF GREAT BANKS TOLD BY CONTROLLER

Twenty Years Has Seen Institutions of Immense Size Cover the Country.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—In a statement issued today the Controller of the Currency said, in part:

"The decentralization of the country's banking power, formerly so largely concentrated in a few large cities, is vividly indicated in an analysis which has just been completed relative to the geographical location at this time of the country's 120 biggest national banks. The list includes all national banks whose resources on Nov. 17, 1919, amounted to $25,000,000 or more.

"The statement referred to also illustrates the astounding growth which has taken place in the country's banking power in the last twenty years, or since 1899. On Sept. 7, 1899, there were 19 national banks in the United States having resources of as much as $25,000,000 each, and of these 14 were located in New York City, 1 in Boston, 1 in Philadelphia, 2 in Chicago, and 1 in St. Louis.

"On Nov. 17, 1919, there were 120 national banks having resources of more than $25,000,000. Twenty-five were located in New York State (all being in New York City), 17 in Pennsylvania, 9 in California, each in Illinois, Missouri, and Texas, 6 in Virginia, 5 each in Massachusetts, Minnesota, and Ohio, 3 each in Colorado and Oregon, 2 each in Georgia, Indiana, Maryland, Michigan, Nebraska, New Jersey, and Washington, and 1 each in Alabama, the District of Columbia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Tennessee, and Wisconsin.

"In 1899, as shown above, five cities in the United States contained the 19 national banks with resources of $25,000,000 or more. Today the 120 national banks with $25,000,000 or more are distributed among 39 cities. Of these 39 are in the New England and Middle Atlantic States, including Boston 5, New York 22, Albany 2, Buffalo 1, Philadelphia 10, Pittsburgh 6, Scranton 1, and Newark 2. There are in Maryland, District of Columbia, and the Southern States, 23 of the big banks, including the Cities of Baltimore 2, Washington 1, Richmond 5, Norfolk 1, Atlanta 2, Nashville 1, Louisville 1, Birmingham 1, New Orleans 1, Dallas 3, Houston 2, Ft. Worth 2, and Tulsa 1. Thirty-four of the biggest banks are in the Central West and the West, including the Cities of Cleveland 2, Cincinnati 2, Toledo 1, Indianapolis 2, Detroit 2, Chicago 7, Milwaukee 1, St. Louis 3, Kansas City 4, Omaha 2, Denver 3, Minneapolis 2, St. Paul 2, and Duluth 1. In the Pacific States the cities containing 14 of the large banks are San Francisco 10, Los Angeles 4, Portland 3, and Seattle 2.

"The total resources of all the national banks on November 17, 1919, were $22,444,992,000, and $10,383,479,000 of these resources were held by the 120 largest national banks; but these big banks were, as shown above, thoroughly distributed throughout the country in every section, and there is no longer that congestion of the country's banking power in a few large cities which had been in evidence before the inauguration of the Federal Reserve system."

CHICAGO IS ALARMED BY INFLUENZA SPREAD

Nearly 400 New Cases and Four Deaths Reported—Pneumonia Takes Sixteen Victims.

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—Chicago's influenza and pneumonia situation today stirred the Health Department to increased activity. Four deaths from influenza and sixteen from pneumonia and 300 new cases of influenza and 115 of pneumonia were reported. Health Commissioner Robertson will divide 3,000 graduates of his nurse schools into squads and will have nurses in every part of the city. As soon as an influenza case is reported the house will be tagged.

At the Great Lakes Naval Training Station 475 cases of influenza were reported today, but only one death has occurred.

A light snowfall this morning was blessed by the Health Department, officials pointing out that it served to blanket the germs on sidewalks and in alleys and gutters, at the same time sounding a warning against wet and cold feet.

The Health Commissioner ordered downtown street sweeping done at night, and an effort was made to have surface and elevated cars kept as free from dust as possible.

"Indications are that we are not in for an epidemic," said Dr. Robertson. "When influenza swept the country 30 years ago it returned in a comparatively light form the following year. In my opinion that is what is happening to us now."

FORD DISCARDS BRYAN.

Says He Forgot Him as Presidential Possibility Twenty Years Ago.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 15.—Henry Ford made a tour of the steel mills at Homestead and Duquesne today for the purpose of getting ideas in steel mill building to aid in the erection of his proposed steel mills at Detroit.

Asked what he thought of William Jennings Bryan's prospects as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President, he replied:

"I forgot William Jennings Bryan twenty years ago."

Regarding the deadlock over the peace treaty, he said:

"If those who profit by war and destruction would withdraw their opposition to the peace treaty it would be ratified immediately. Let the women vote, and they will see that it is ratified; or, let it rest with the people, and they will soon settle it.

"Only for the big corporations prices would be double what they are. Their wonderful machinery and co-operation make it possible to manufacture at a minimum cost. This movement in Homestead, where the Carnegie Steel Company is selling groceries to its employes, is a great step forward. We started selling groceries in our plant at Detroit two months ago, and the venture is successful."

STATE HOSPITALS CRIPPLED

Dr. Biggs Tells How Shortage of Employes Affects Them.

ALBANY, Jan. 15.—Shortage of employes at the Central Islip, Brooklyn, and Manhattan State Hospitals for Insane has resulted in their collapse as progressive therapeutic institutions, Governor Smith was told in a report from Dr. Herman M. Biggs, State Commissioner of Health, and Dr. Pierce Bailey, Chairman of the Commission for Mental Defectives, made public today.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Frank Reicher will play the role of the father in "The Power of Darkness," opening at the Garrick on Monday. Later in the run Mr. Reichar and his father, Emanuel Reicher, will alternate in the role.

"Marry the Poor Girl," a comedy by Owen Davis, will be tried out in Los Angeles soon by Oliver Morosco.

Mabel Hicks, daughter of Seymour Hicks, the English actor, joined the cast of "Scandal" at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre last night.

Ethel Barrymore probably will give a single matinee of "Mona Vanna" at the Empire in honor of Maurice Maeterlinck.

A new Ed Wynn show will be presented on the New Amsterdam Roof by Florenz Ziegfeld on Feb. 2. Lillian Lorraine will head the cast.

Donald Gallaher has been engaged for the melodrama in which A. H. Woods will star Theda Bara.

"Irene," now at the Vanderbilt, is to be produced in Australia by the Tatts.

Mr. and Mrs. William Wade Hinshaw, the latter the director of the Society of American Singers, will be given a supper by the members of the company after the performance at the Park tonight.

"The Wayfarer" is to be presented in Los Angeles on March 15.

Leonora Sparkes's Recital.

Miss Leonora Sparkes, whose name appears often on the bills of the Metropolitan Opera House, and seldom on the program of song recitals, gave a recital yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall that had many features of interest, and gave uncommon pleasure to lovers of song, in its better manifestations. Miss Sparkes's voice is heard to its best advantage in such a place as Aeolian Hall, and to one the refinement, delicacy and variety of her art, which give much value to her singing of the several styles in which she was heard yesterday afternoon.

There are more beautiful voices; yet Miss Sparkes's has much charm, and the skill and apt expressiveness with which she uses it, makes it count for its full value. She sings with freedom and spontaneity, and her phrasing is artistic. She puts much grace into her singing of Cacolini's "Amarilli" and Scarlatti's "Le Violette," and in the romanza from Catalini's opera, "La Wally"—one of the things that can be remembered in that ill-fated production with pleasure—a long sweep of expression. Miss Sparkes produced a group of songs by Dvorak, a "Love Song," "The Mower," "The Brook," and two gypsy songs, of which only these last two are familiar. They are of singular beauty, though their close relationship with Schumann and Brahms denies them great originality. She sang these with warmth and significant expression, and in fact the variety of moods that she succeeded in establishing in these songs was one of the most successful features of her singing.

It was shown again in her group of French songs, by Hahn, Debussy and Thomas; her singing of the air from "L'Enfant Prodigue" was unusually eloquent in its dramatic composition. She closed with a group of songs in English. There was an audience that filled the hall, and gave many evidences of its pleasure in Miss Sparkes's singing.

GIVE RUSSIAN PROGRAM.

Olga Samaroff, Pianist, Appears with Philharmonic Orchestra.

The Philharmonic Society filled Carnegie Hall last night to hear a program prevailingly Russian in tone, the symphony being Tschaikovsky's No. 4, with its striking pizzicato episode, while Rachmaninoff's tone poem, "The Isle of the Dead," preceded the solo piece. This number, Liszt's pianoforte concerto No. 1, in E flat, had been heard with a companion work of Liszt's in a special concert the previous evening by a piano without visible player. Last night it engaged Olga Samaroff, wife of the conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra, and herself no stranger in New York.

Mme. Samaroff's greeting was cordial. As her playing, it calls for no new comment here. By a double coincidence, in today's matinee change of bill she will be heard in Liszt's second concerto, the other number given by Mr. Ganz on Wednesday night. Mr. Stransky concluded last evening with Wagner's "Master Singers" entr'acte and the "Valkyries' Ride."

Caruso Sings in "Manon Lescaut."

Signor Caruso sang in Puccini's "Manon Lescaut" last evening at the Metropolitan, his return to a youthful rôle attracting a large audience. Mme. Alda again was the heroine, Messrs. Scotti and de Segurola reappeared and Mr. Papi conducted.

BROOKLYN POLICEMAN HELD

Charged by Woman with Kicking Her—Result of Previous Quarrel.

Police Sergeant Herman H. Wiber, 43 years old, of 310 Keap Street, Brooklyn, attached to the Bedford Avenue Station, was arraigned in the Bridge Plaza Court yesterday on a short affidavit charging him with felonious assault. It was alleged that on last Sunday night Wiber kicked Mrs. May Maurer, a Corporal in the Women's Police Reserve at the Bedford Avenue Station.

According to Wiber, Mrs. Maurer came to his house and struck him over the head with her husband's billy. Her husband is Harry Maurer, a private in the Police Reserves at the Bedford Avenue Station. It was alleged by Mrs. Maurer that Wiber had made an insulting remark to her husband about her. Wiber had her arrested, and she was arraigned in the Bridge Plaza Court before Magistrate Walsh on Monday morning on a charge of assault in the third degree. She was paroled for hearing today, and when she did not appear, Detective John J. Kelly of the Bedford Avenue Station found her in the Williamsburg Hospital. The charge against Wiber was made at her request through Kelly. Wiber was held in $1,500 bail for hearing tomorrow.

Sailors Released from Mexican Jail.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Harry V. Learned and Harry O. Martin, sailors of the American submarine chaser Pocomoke, who were arrested early in November at Mazatlan, Mexico, on a charge of assaulting a Mexican citizen and sentenced to two months' imprisonment, were released Tuesday night, according to advices to the State Department today from the American Consul at Mazatlan.

INDICT COUPLE FOR MURDER

Husband and Wife Alleged to Have Confessed Killing for Revenge.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 15.—This afternoon, eight days after the commission of the crime, the Grand Jury returned an indictment for murder in the first degree against James L. Odell and his wife Pearl, who, according to their alleged confessions, beat Edward J. Kneip to death on Jan. 7. The alleged motive was revenge for the relations between Mrs. Odell and Kneip before her marriage to Odell.

Mrs. Odell refused yesterday to allow a physician to examine her to settle her claim that she is about to become a mother.

WATER POWER BILL PASSED BY SENATE

Federal Commission to Issue Licenses—Differences with House Bill to be Adjusted Next.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—By a vote of nearly three to one the Senate today passed the Water Power Development bill, different in some respects from the measure adopted by the House in July, but following in a general way the same bill that has been before Congress in one form or another for the last decade.

Five Republicans and thirteen Democrats voted against it, while Senator Nelson, Republican, Minnesota, who was in charge of the fight for passage and who had stood his ground against every effort to defeat it, got 52 votes in its favor. The bill was sent to conference for adjustment of House and Senate differences.

Just before the final vote was taken the Senate reconsidered its former action and restored an amendment which would limit the Government license charge on water power projects to 25 cents per horse power developed. Senator Lenroot, Republican, Wisconsin, who opposed the amendment, declared it was a concession to special interests and expressed the opinion that it was calculated to invite a Presidential veto.

Motion by Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, to reconsider the vote on an amendment by Senator Nugent, Democrat, Idaho, affecting power development on land held by Indians, brought about a two-hour discussion. Senator Nugent proposed that no license should be authorized within an Indian reservation except by and with consent of the council of the tribe.

Senator Walsh, in opposing it, held that the Government was the guardian of the Indian.

"Old-time graft charged in the election of United States Senators by Legislatures of the States," Senator Walsh declared, "would not be a circumstance to what would happen if tribal councils passed on the question of water power license."

Senator Walsh explained that in making this statement he meant no reflection on the Indians, but that they would be subject to all sorts of graft invitation by special interests.

The bill as passed by the Senate provides for creation of a Federal Water Power Commission, composed of the Secretaries of War, Interior and Agriculture, which would be authorized, after investigation, to issue licenses for development of water-power projects. The licenses would run for fifty years.

The measure further provides that the Federal commission shall co-operate with the States and other Federal agencies, that there shall be no charge on State and municipal power projects, and that industrial plants developing less than 200 horse power shall not be required to pay for a license. On two years' notice in writing the United States would have the right, at the expiration of a license, to take over and operate plants.

Power plants now in operation would not come under provision of the bill.

HOUSE REFUSES FUNDS FOR AIR MAIL

Eliminates Them in Passing Post Office Appropriation Bill Carrying $460,077,868.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The largest Post Office Appropriation bill ever presented, carrying $460,077,868 for maintenance during 1921 was passed today by the House. The original estimate was $891,713,073, but the House added $75,783,000 for increases in salaries provided for in previous legislation.

An item of $850,000 for continuing the existing air mail service beyond July 1 next was stricken out. The abandonment of the existing routes between New York and Washington and New York and Chicago, would result, it was said, if the Senate concurred.

The item went out on a point of order made by Representative Tincher, Republican, Kansas, as unwarranted by law. Representative Walsh, Republican, Massachusetts, presiding, ruled that the Post Office Department was not authorized by law to establish the air mail as a permanent service. An effort to restore the provision in the Senate is expected.

The item went out on a point of order made by Representative Tincher, Republican, Kansas, as unwarranted by law. Representative Walsh, Republican, Massachusetts, presiding, ruled that the Post Office Department was not authorized by law to establish the air mail as a permanent service. An effort to restore the provision in the Senate is expected.

During the debate it was said the air mail service cost $5.25 a ton-mile as compared with 6 cents a ton-mile for the train service. Representative Mondell, Wyoming, Republican leader, said the service was of little practical value except for aeronautical experiments.

Provisions for experiments in the operation of motor vehicle truck routes and country motor express routes also were eliminated, members arguing that existing means of mail delivery were adequate.

Extraordinary increases in the prices of supplies and a rapid increase in the volume of business required such a large general appropriation, Chairman Steenerson, Minnesota, of the Post Office Committee said.

Abolition of the allowances for terminal service also was ordered. In lieu of this the roads will receive an additional rate in the computation of a space basis. The new rates are made retroactive to Nov. 1, 1916, with an increase of 25 per cent. over those rates after Jan. 1, 1918. Postmaster General Burleson was ordered to put all roads on a space rate basis of pay by March 1, 1920.

SUE PALMER AND GARVAN.

Plaintiffs Would Rescind Federal Sale of Bosch Magneto Corporation.

Alexander Otis, an attorney of 154 Nassau Street, announced yesterday that he had brought suit in Westchester County to rescind the sale of the assets of the Bosch Magneto Corporation of Springfield, Mass., to Martin E. Kern. The action demands an accounting from A. Mitchell Palmer, now Attorney General and former Alien Property Custodian, and Francis P. Garvan, now Custodian, and also from Martin E. Kern, who bought the stock when it was sold by the Government officials and reorganized it as the American Bosch Magneto Company.

The plaintiffs are Otto Heins and Albert R. Kline, stockholders, who allege that the stock was worth $16,000,000 and that the corporation had a surplus of $8,500,000 and no debts, but the Government officers sold it for $6,000,000. The charges are similar to those made in the Senate investigation of the acts of Alien Property Custodian Palmer.

The plaintiffs charge that after Kern bought the Bosch stock and reorganized the corporation he borrowed $1,800,000 on the stock.

The papers in the case have not yet been served on Attorney General Palmer and Custodian Garvan.

Titusville Forge Sold.

The directors of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation have authorized the sale of the Titusville Forge to the Dillon interests in Titusville for an amount said to be $1,000,000. The Corporation made use of the plant during the war but has little need for it now.

THORNE, JONATHAN. Value of estate more than $100,000. He directed his son, Samuel B. Thorne, to distribute $7,500 according to instructions in a letter and gave $25,000 in trust to his grandchildren. The residuary estate went for life to his wife, Harriet V. S. Thorne, and on her death it goes to the two sons, Samuel and Victor C. Thorne.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Pressure is now moderate between the Rocky Mountains and the Mississippi Valley and high to the northeastward with resulting snows in the Lake Region and the Upper Ohio Valley. There were also light local rains in the Gulf States, local snows in the northwest and rains in Washington. Elsewhere the weather was fair.

It is colder from the Lake Region eastward with temperatures from 10 degrees to 43 degrees below the seasonal average. White River, Ontario, reporting a temperature of 40 degrees below zero. Over the remainder of the country temperatures are slightly higher as a rule and are considerably above the seasonal average in the Central Plains States and the North Rocky Mountain region.

There will be snow Friday and Saturday in the lake region; snow or rain in the Ohio Valley and local rains in the East Gulf States. By Saturday the snow will extend to the New England Coast, rains or snows to the Middle Atlantic Coast and rains to the interior of the South Atlantic States except Florida. Temperatures will not change decidedly, although there will be a general rising tendency.

Winds off the Atlantic Coast—North of Sandy Hook: Moderate northwest; fair Friday; Saturday probably snow. Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Moderate north Friday, with increasing cloudiness, becoming northeast by Saturday, with snow. Hatteras to Florida Straits: Gentle to moderate winds, mostly southwest, except variable on the Florida Coast; fair.

FORECAST TODAY AND SATURDAY.

Eastern New York—Increasing cloudiness and slightly warmer Friday, snow at night and on Saturday, warmer Saturday.

New Jersey—Increasing cloudiness and slightly warmer Friday, probably snow at night; Saturday rain or snow and warmer.

INVITES CABRERA TO TESTIFY HERE

Senator Fall Replies to Mexican Minister with Another Invitation.

BOLSHEVISM FOUND GAINING

Witnesses Heard in Executive Session Report Rapid Sweep of Red Doctrines.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 15.—In reply to an invitation from Minister Cabrera to visit Mexico, Senator Fall today gave out the letter he is sending to Señor Cabrera, declining to make the trip and inviting Cabrera to appear before the Senate subcommittee.

Senator Fall announced today he would reply to Cabrera's invitation as follows:

"Acknowledging your exceedingly courteous cablegram of yesterday, I assure you that I understand fully and appreciate sincerely not only the words but the spirit in which the same was sent.

"I assure you personally that I will engage in no official or personal investigation of the Mexican situation through the keyhole of a door distorted by the lenses of prejudice or by influence of specially interested parties.

"I am confident that the American Congress and the American people are interested in Mexico and its conditions and have ordered an investigation of the same because of a friendly, neighborly feeling of interest for our nearest national neighbors, and because of the very material interest of our American citizens, who have been assisting in the development of Mexican resources, and who have been entirely responsible for increasing the remuneration of the Mexican workmen in Mexico, to my personal knowledge, to the amount of not less than 500 to 3,000 per cent. within the last thirty years.

"The American people are only interested for the above reasons in the domestic affairs of Mexico. Personally, I appreciate the fact that if I visited Mexico I would be received with extreme courtesy for myself and my associates. I also realize, of course, as you do, that if I sought to visit sections of your country not guarded by your Federal troops, I would subject myself to your criticism and that of at least some other Mexicans upon the ground that I was in communication with those opposed to you and the Carranza administration.

"I have no doubt that documentary evidence would be readily found and telegraphed to this country as well as throughout Mexico, to the effect that a member of a Congressional committee of the United States was holding communication with opponents of a Government recognized by this country. And yet, you of course appreciate that should I visit Mexico as your guest, I would be precluded from investigating any complaints of your own people against the Government with which you are connected.

"I regret that under the Constitution and laws of the United States no official of this Government can extend to you the reciprocal courtesy of a special train, as governmental funds here are used for governmental purposes. I regret that my personal means will not permit the expense of a special train to be placed at your disposition, should you come here, but assure you, both personally and officially, that should you desire to consult this committee I will arrange for paid transportation for you from any border point to any point in the United States, and that the committee and myself personally would be delighted to welcome you at any time.

"Gratefully yours,

"ALBERT B. FALL."

Tell of Property Destroyed.

Three women and four men related today to the Senate committee which is investigating the Mexican situation the story of their own, their families, and their friends' sufferings in Mexico. In each instance they had been impoverished as a result of the lawless acts of the various bands that have been operating in Mexico. In not a single case have the Americans received any reparation from the Mexican Government.

One of the afternoon witnesses was P. F. Poorbaugh of Kansas City, who was a member of a colony in the south of the State of Vera Cruz. The colony, which numbered more than 300 families, went to Mexico at the personal solicitation of Francisco de la Barra, then President of the republic. Today there remain in this colony in Mexico only two or three men. One of those who took a chance and remained behind was E. E. Morgan. He was first tortured and then shot to death in his own home last April.

About two years ago, Mr. Poorbaugh said, he went to Puerto Mexico, intending to go to the site of the colony to find out what was left.

"However," said Mr. Poorbaugh, "before making any decision I thought I would make some inquiries, and so, among others, I went to the German Consul, Herr Franck, in Puerto Mexico, and told him what I wanted to do. The old German looked me over and then said: 'I advise you not to go, but if you must go, take them with you as far as Germans or an Englishman. Otherwise you will be killed, sure as fate.'" Mr. Poorbaugh, returned to the United States.

Mr. Poorbaugh said the land of this colony was in the richest section of Mexico, among the most valuable features of the holdings being a great mahogany forest. The invitation to the Americans to settle there was extended in 1912, by President de la Barra. The Americans went to Mexico City and were the guests of the President, who assured them that Mexico wanted them to come and that they would receive every protection.

"If it should turn out that we cannot protect you, your own Government sure-

American 'Dry' Drowned Out by the Din at Welsh Meeting

TON-Y-PANDY, Wales, Jan. 15.—Anti-prohibition demonstrators last night broke up a temperance conference here.

The demonstrators entered the hall where Dr. Henry, an American prohibitionist, was speaking, beat a bass drum, played miscellaneous musical instruments, and sang football songs. Dr. Henry finally abandoned the attempt to continue his address.

ly will," Mr. de la Barra said, according to the witness.

The land of the colony was purchased for about $1,000,000. It is situated on the Coatzacoalcos River, some thirty miles from Salina Cruz.

"The outlaws have looted our property of everything on it except the cook stoves. For some reason or other they did not want the stoves," said Mr. Poorbaugh.

The order to leave was conveyed by a representative, Mr. Poorbaugh said, of the United States Government, who instructed the Americans that they would be permitted to take only their hand baggage.

Another Colony Wiped Out.

Matthew Warren, a civil war veteran, who was head of the Atascador Colony in the State of Tamaulipas, was another witness. The colony, which numbered 305 families, was located about sixty miles from Tampico on the outlying boundary of the oil fields. The members of the colony, Mr. Warren said, were all farmers from Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois and Texas. The land occupied comprised 191,000 acres and the farms on it varied in size from 50 to 3,800 acres. With only a few exceptions the colonists were poor people, their holdings in the colony representing all they had.

The Atascador Colony was organized thirteen years ago, and in 1910 a representative of the Porfirio Diaz Government who visited it reported to Mexico City that it was the best organized and operated farm colony in the Republic of Mexico. Mr. Warren said the farmers and their families were careful never to mix in Mexican political affairs, and added that up to the time of Madero conditions were so safe that the settlers did not even have to lock the doors of their homes at night. There were from fifteen to twenty other American colonies near the Atascador he said.

"What became of those other colonies?" asked Senator Fall.

"They suffered the same fate as ours. The people have been driven away and their property destroyed."

Mrs. Nora C. Bailey was the next witness. She was born in Mexico of American parents and was living in Texas when she came into an inheritance of about $15,000 about twelve years ago.

"With this money," said Mrs. Bailey, "I went to the State of San Luis Potosi and bought a small ranch near the town of Valles. There was quite a large number of Americans in that part of Mexico at the time, which was in 1910."

"Was your venture a success?" asked Senator Smith.

"Yes, sir, it was beginning to be and I was making about $1,200 a year at the time the Mexicans began to raid and murder. It represented all I had and I lost all. I can truthfully say that all I got out of it was the murder of my brother, Arthur Willis, and the destruction of my property."

"When was your brother murdered," Senator Fall asked.

"His wife saw him for the last time on July 1, 1915. With his wife and three baby children he was trying to get out of Mexico into the States. They were waiting for a train in Aguascalientes. My brother went out to get a cab to take his wife and children to the station. A Mr. Harmon, an American, was with him. That was the last ever seen of them.

"For six days my sister-in-law tried to get the Carranza authorities to tell her what had become of her husband and Mr. Harmon. All she could get from them was that they had probably gone to Chihuahua, and 'gone to Chihuahua' in Mexico means the same as 'going West' meant to the soldiers in Europe.'

J. W. Compton of Glenn Springs told of the raid on that place on May 5, 1916. Three American soldiers and Mr. Compton's 5-year-old son were killed. Three of the raiders were captured, and one of them had on his person, Mr. Compton said, a commission for the rank of Colonel in the Carranza army. Mr. Compton's testimony is expected to corroborate that of Colonel George T. Langhorne and other regular army officers who were on duty in the Big Bend district at the time of the Glenn Springs, Brite's ranch, Boquillas, and other Big Bend raids.

Mrs. Mary Wright was the first witness this morning. In 1906, Mr. and Mrs. Wright and their three young daughters left Austin, Texas, to make their home in the southern part of the State of San Luis Potosi, Mexico. Mr. Wright purchased a ranch of about 500 acres.

"By May, 1913," said the witness, "the bandits and other outlaws were not only stealing animals and other property, but they also began to carry off into the hills the young girls in the vicinity. Near our home were two cowhides, and in those we hid our three daughters, keeping them in the brakes for six weeks, I remaining in hiding with them most of the time. We cached a little food on the river bank, which precaution was later to save us from much additional great suffering.

Says Bolshevism Is Sweeping Mexico.

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 15 (Associated Press).—Propagandists of Bolshevism have spread their doctrine of radicalism from Sonora to the Isthmus of Tehauntepec within a year, the Senate sub-committee investigating the Mexican situation was told today by an American traveling salesman. The witness was heard in executive session in order that he might be guarded to that extent against reprisals by Mexicans. He begged that his name be not used, because he expected to return to Mexico.

Carranza, when forced to choose between two small armies in the south, one led by the Federal commander and the other known as a Bolshevist force, declared in favor of the latter, he assured the committee. Striking laboring men in other districts, he said, were frank in their declaration of adherence to the radical cause, and almost everywhere he went he found undisguised evidence of the success of the extremist agitators.

"I have told the American Consuls in Mexico about the conditions," he testified, "but I could always note that they were averse to hearing the facts, and especially where it reflected unfavorably upon the Carranza Government. They would rather converse with some fellow who knew nothing about Mexican conditions."

"Mr. Wilson seems to be hypnotized by Mr. Carranza," he added.

"If the American Government should cease to support Carranza he would not last thirty days. The merchants and business men of Mexico want law and order, but they cannot hope for such while the Bolshevist gang is upheld by the American Government."

SUBMARINE IS MISSING.

Another French Submersible Is Damaged in Bay of Biscay.

L'ORIENT, France, Jan. 15.—The submarine Daphne reached port today in badly damaged condition. Her Captain reports having left St. Nazaire for Toulon on Jan. 9, accompanied by the submarine Nereide. They met foul weather in the Bay of Biscay and for three days and nights were battling against terrific seas. The two submarines parted company, the Nereide apparently being in distress, with her wireless smashed.

The Nereide is missing. She carried a crew of forty.

December Copper Output Gains.

A gain in the output of copper by the porphyry companies during December is shown by the recently announced preliminary figures. While the Utah production of 9,005,591 fell off nearly 500,000 pounds from November figures, Nevada Consolidated gained nearly 1,000,000 pounds, with an output of 1,500,000 pounds. Both Chino and Ray were little changed from the November production scale. The former turned out 3,388,524 pounds and the latter 3,980,000 pounds. Present production of the group is about 50 per cent. of capacity.

BERLIN IS QUIET UNDER HEAVY GUARD

Day Set for Radical Outbreak Passes Without Any Demonstrations.

MOB LEADERS CONDEMNED

From Safe Positions in the Reichstag Building They Called on the Masses to Charge the Guns.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—An Associated Press dispatch from Berlin, dated today, says that radicals among the workers of several large plants declared a holiday today to celebrate the anniversary of the killing of Dr. Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg, the Socialists.

No demonstration took place. The Reichstag Square is still under heavy guard.

According to a wireless dispatch from the German capital the large factories were working normally and the railway and tram services were not interrupted.

Strong indignation is expressed in every branch of industry at the unscrupulousness of the Independents, the dispatch adds, because the leaders hid behind machine guns while the masses were driven forward to face the guns of the soldiers.

It is announced that the Berlin Government will not permit demonstrations on the occasion of the burial of the victims of Tuesday's rioting.

Disorderly scenes occurred again Wednesday morning in the National Assembly when Deputy Kanhler attempted to deliver a speech regretting the incidents of Tuesday, according to a Berlin dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph. The Independents constantly interrupted Herr Kanhler.

An attempt has been made, Herr Kanhler declared, to put the Parliament, elected by the most democratic method in the world, under the dictatorship of the street agitator. If the people of Germany now realized how disastrous the tyranny of minority rule would be, he said, the blood shed on the previous day—the first since the ratification of the Peace Treaty—would not have flown in vain.

The Independents thereupon created a further disturbance.

Fears are expressed in diplomatic dispatches received here that the Berlin imbroglio may spread throughout Germany, and even to Vienna, through the agency of the Communists, this element using the recent Berlin disorders to inflame the masses by representing those killed as martyrs to the cause of the people.

Vienna, it is pointed out, would be likely to furnish fertile ground for the agitators because of the great unrest that already exists there.

Thus far no disorders are reported outside of Berlin.

German troops, however, were marched to Leipsic on Tuesday, where they occupied the squares and public buildings, according to a Berlin dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company today. Machine guns were placed in commanding positions.

The advices, in analysing the upheaval in Berlin, point to its original cause as the dissatisfaction of the Independent Socialists over the failure of the Government to provide a method for the establishment of the workmen's councils called for by the Constitution, but give the immediate cause as indignation at the attitude of the Government toward strikers. This resulted in the organization of the great demonstration in front of the Reichstag building.

A Communist manifesto issued today in Berlin urges the immediate election of revolutionary employes' councils in all industrial establishments.

Mob Directed from Reichstag.

BERLIN, Jan. 14.—The Zeitung am Mittag of Berlin says it has learned authoritatively that yesterday's mob was directed by men who climbed to prominent positions in the Reichstag Building.

Deputies Zuebell and Frau Zietz are declared to have said: "The Reichstag Building belongs to the people, not to the 'Security Guard.' You know what you have to do." At this, the demonstrants rushed upon the police.

Work is proceeding in all the factories of Berlin today.

Well authenticated versions of yesterday's clashes between the troops and a mob, which are largely confirmed by the experiences of the correspondent of The Associated Press, who was an eye witness, point to the conclusion that the first shot fired came from a rifle which was wrested from a guard at the west entrance to the Reichstag Building. Other civilians rushed up, disarmed the troops and attacked them with knives and rifle butts. This was the signal for a volley from others of the guard, who quickly came to the assistance of their comrades.

After an attempt to force an entry through a door which led immediately into the lounging room communicating with that where the Chamber was sitting had been repulsed, the troops opened fire on thousands in front of the building. The latter hastily retreated into Simonstrasse at the south end of the building.

When the guards in Simonstrasse saw the mob coming on, after hearing the shots, they promptly opened a rifle and machine-gun fire into the men and women, who were making for the Tiergarten. Hundreds immediately fell face downward to get out of range of the bullets. Others, not instantly killed, lay writhing among the trees and bushes.

The correspondent had an unobstructed view of this scene of the shooting from a third-story window. Apparently no shots were fired by the mob after the soldiers got it on the run. The volley fired by the guards defending the south side of the Reichstag Building lasted five minutes. No shots were fired from inside the building, so far as could be ascertained.

SOLF MAY BE ENVOY HERE.

Former German Minister Is Mentioned for Ambassadorship.

BERLIN, Jan. 14.—Dr. W. S. Solf, former German Foreign Minister, and Dr. Siegfried Heckscher, a former member of the Reichstag, are mentioned as among the available candidates for appointment as Ambassador to Washington.

Dr. Solf was former Governor of Samoa and Colonial Minister in the old régime. He served as the first Foreign Minister after the German revolution.

Dr. Heckscher, a former Director of the Hamburg-American Steamship Company, has been stationed at The Hague recently, where he was connected with the Commercial Department of the German Legation, which specialized in questions relating to the food situation. He was a Progressive in the Reichstag. Dr. Heckscher is a brother-in-law of Professor Friedrich Foerster, one of the most trenchant critics of the old régime.

EXILED ROYALTY AT SALE.

Charles and Constantine and Their Wives See Jewels Bought.

LAUSANNE, Jan. 15.—Four former royal persons who are living in this country were interested spectators at a sale of the jewels and objects of art owned by the estate of the late Princess Vera Lobonoff of Russia here yesterday.

They were former King Constantine and his Queen of Greece and former Emperor Charles and Empress Zita of Austria-Hungary. They made no purchases.

A Paris dealer bought a necklace for 500,000 francs. Other jewels brought very high prices.

Invite Wilson to Head Pan Pacific Union And Take Up His Residence in Honolulu

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—President Wilson today was invited by the Pan Pacific Union, whose headquarters are at Honolulu, to assume its active Presidency after March 4, 1921, should he leave the White House on that date.

The invitation was brought from Hawaii by Alexander Hume Ford, the Secretary of the Union, who said tonight he hoped that President Wilson would "consider residence and leadership in a land where there is no race prejudice and where for twelve years the representatives of nations about the big ocean have been meeting to plan out co-operative work that will bring about a league of nations that will comprise all those about the great Pacific Ocean."

The invitation was taken to the White House today by Mr. Ford.

Several years ago Mrs. William accepted the first Honorary Presidency of the Union. Other Honorary Presidents are Hsu Shih-Chang, President of China; Sir Robert Borden, Premier of Canada; William N. Hughes, Prime Minister of Australia, and W. F. Massey, Prime Minister of New Zealand.

Secretary Lane, with whom Mr. Ford has been in conference in regard to the matter, has been offered the salaried position with the union.

Governor McCarthy of Hawaii, who is acting President of the Pan Pacific Union, is on his way to Washington and is expected here within a few days. He will have a meeting with other Directors of the union, of who ma quorum will be in this city, at which it is expected active steps will be taken to obtain official sanction of certain international plans of the union.

Dr. Herbert E. Gregory of Yale University will be here in a few days to begin active plans for the First Pan Pacific Scientific Congress, which is to be held at Honolulu next July. Mr. Ford said that a number of other international conferences also are contemplated. Recently the Japanese of Hawaii held a mass meeting, he said, and issued a request to their Government officially to enter the Pan Pacific Union.

SINN FEIN BULLETS FLY AT ELECTION

Cork Scene of Fight with Former Soldiers—Three Persons Wounded.

NEW VOTING SYSTEM TRIED

Mob Attacks Car of James MacMahon, Under Secretary for Ireland, in Dublin Road.

CORK, Jan. 15.—Three persons were wounded and a number of arrests were made in the course of today's elections here when former soldiers and members of the Sinn Fein Party engaged in a fight at a polling place. The wounded, who were struck by bullets when firing began, were removed to a hospital. The police finally quelled the disturbance, after taking a number of Sinn Feiners into custody.

W. F. O'Connor, the Lord Mayor of Cork, was attacked while returning last night from a meeting of demobilized soldiers.

The Mayor was knocked down and assaulted. Several former soldiers rescued him from his assailants.

The attack is attributed to the Mayor's opposition to the election policy of the Sinn Fein organization.

BELFAST, Jan. 15.—The Irish municipal elections which were held for the first time today under the proportional representation system, created great excitement.

Although the Sinn Fein candidates are in the majority in many areas, the issues are complicated by the appearance of municipal reformers and other parties with numerous women candidates. Among these were Mrs. F. Sheehy Skeffington, Miss T. M. Kettle, and Mrs. Alice Ginnell.

In Dublin, alone, 153 candidates were running for eighty-eight vacancies. These included: Sinn Fein, 61; Municipal Reformers, 14; Nationalists and Laborites, 7. The last named were working together. The result of the elections will be announced next Saturday.

DUBLIN, Jan. 15.—About midday today a mob attacked a motor car belonging to James MacMahon, Under Secretary for Ireland, in which the Secretary and a Dr. Ryan were passing down Cabra Road. The chauffeur was slightly injured and the car was badly damaged, windows being smashed.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—The chief points of uncertainty in the Irish elections are the effect of proportional representation and how it will affect the Sinn Fein. If the Sinn Fein succeeds in proportion to its supposed strength it will control the municipal machinery over three-fourths of the country. The vacant seats are roughly 1,500 in number. The Sinn Fein has 707 candidates, Labor 595, the Unionists 436, and the Constitutional Nationalists and Independents 588.

PROTEST POLICY IN IRELAND

Woman's Liberal Federation in London Adopts Resolution.

LONDON, Jan. 15.—Resolutions protesting against what was referred to as Great Britain's "policy of coercion" in Ireland were adopted by the Executive Committee of the Woman's National Liberal Federation at its monthly meeting here today.

The resolutions declare that any legislation looking to the satisfaction of Irish demands for self-government is foredoomed to failure while the present policy of the Government continues. All Liberals are called upon "to take immediate steps to urge the Government to reverse its present unsuccessful Irish policy and to substitute civil for martial law."

The resolutions ask the Government to signalise a new departure by the recall of Viscount French, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and James Ian Macpherson, Chief Secretary for Ireland.

SUES ON PAPER EMBARGO.

Canadian Mill Asks $1,000,000 Damages from Government.

FORT FRANCIS, Ontario, Jan. 15.—Action for $1,000,000 damages has been started against the Canadian Minister of Customs and other members of the Dominion Cabinet by the Fort Francis Fulp and Paper Company, it was announced by officials of the company today. The damages are sought on the ground that the Government prohibited the export of paper from the local mills.

The Chicago Herald-Examiner and The Minneapolis Tribune are said to be interested in the suits. Mill officials declare they may close down their plant unless the Government order is revoked.

I. R. T.'S HOPEFUL OUTLOOK CONFIRMED

BIG INCREASES IN TRAFFIC

Times Square Subway Station Made 27 Per Cent. Gain in December, Commission Shows.

The statement by a high official of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company on Wednesday that the report of Stone & Webster concerning the financial condition of the company could be discounted 60 per cent, was confirmed yesterday by officials familiar with the situation. In estimating the deficit of the company during the next two years the report said that the deficits, at a five-cent fare, would amount to $8,197,000 on June 30 next, to $8,381,000 in 1921 and to $7,960,000 in 1922. A suggestion that the report might also be in error as to the present condition of the company was emphatically denied and the statement was made that the figures were absolutely accurate in this respect.

It was pointed out that in his recent memorandum Federal Judge Mayer stated that while "present estimates indicate that an eight-cent fare is necessary for some time, it may be that by July 1, 1920, a lower rate will suffice." Judge Mayer, commenting on the improved condition of the company, said:

"The recent increase in the volume of business of the Interborough and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit lines, if continued, may present a more hopeful prospect than now exists, though not so much can be said for the surface lines."

Judge Mayer, asked for a statement on the improved condition of the Interborough Company, refused to comment on the matter beyond saying that the foregoing statement made it clear that he was familiar with the fact that conditions were changing for the better.

Increase at Important Stations.

The Public Service Commission prepared yesterday the following statement showing the increase in a few of the more important stations on the Interborough's subway lines for December, which sets a high record. The figures are uncorrected but it was stated that they were practically accurate:

Times Square, total increase over December, 1918, 512,056, percentage of increase 27; Grand Central, 395,400, percentage 20; Pennsylvania, 685,[illegible], percentage 60, and Brooklyn Bridge, 144,382, percentage, 12.

In November the increase at the Times Square station over the same month in 1918 was 537,832, or 30 per cent., and at the Grand Central station the total increase was 366,424, a percentage of 20.

Figures are being prepared showing the growth in ticket sales at other stations, which in the traffic offices are unusually heavy. They would show, it was said, that the Interborough was marching with giant strides toward a point where it could get along very well without yielding to any suggestion from the city administration for the taking over of the property on any other terms than those which would be much better than would have been accepted by the company several months ago. It was generally agreed that the city had waited too long to take the necessary steps to get possession of the property.

An analysis of the returns of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company is to be made which will show what the gain in traffic on its lines have been during the last six months. That these figures would be similarly encouraging was confidently stated. During July, August, and September the net increase on the rapid transit lines of the company was more than 4,000,000.

One Dismal Note.

Job E. Hedges, receiver of the New York Railways Company, uttered the only dismal note of the day. He said that the company owed $1,500,000 for taxes, and that so far as he could figure it out it could not hope to win out unless the fare was increased to 8 cents. Efforts to discover how the Eighth and Ninth Avenue surface lines are faring since they were separated from the railways system was unsuccessful, but it was stated that the two companies were earning their operating expenses and taxes and that the Brooklyn City Railroad Company, which recently severed connection with the B. R. T. Company, is doing even better.

This company began operating yesterday a new type of safety car which H. Hobart Porter stated would make possible higher speed and greater safety and would make the cars practically immune from the ordinary street accidents such as collisions. This statement has been denied by the Alpha Republican Club which has asked that the old type of cars be restored to service on Nassau Avenue. The objection of the club is founded on statements to the effect that the new cars add to the congestion, because it takes longer for the passengers to get on and off.

MRS. R. J. COLLIER GETS ONLY $2,194

Corporation Lost $200,000 on Its Accounts Due from Soldiers in Great War.

Robert J. Collier, owner of P. F. Collier & Son, publishers of Collier's Weekly and other publications, who died suddenly at his home, 1,067 Fifth Avenue, on Nov. 8, 1918, the day he returned from France, left a residuary estate of only $2,194 instead of $5,000,000, as estimated soon after his death. The estimate was made at the time his friends, Payne Whitney, Finley Peter Dunne and Francis P. Garvan, named as residuary legatees in his will, who had been trustees of his property since 1914, filed a renunciation under which the property went to his widow, Sarah Steward Collier.

The appraisal of the estate filed yesterday shows that while Mr. Collier left a gross estate of $1,011,185, the net estate was only $202,194. The largest deduction was $1,330,989 for debts. Administration expenses and counsel fees amounted to $35,000.

When the schedules of the estate were filed in the Comptroller's Office for appraisal the representatives of the estate insisted that Mr. Collier died insolvent to the extent of $70,000. This was due to the fact that they valued his $2,500,000 of bonds in P. F. Collier & Son at $1,236,372, whereas Appraiser John J. Lyons fixed the value at $1,509,296.

The will gave $150,000 to George C. Kennedy and $50,000 to Frank H. Rice, both officers of P. F. Collier & Son, the sums to be paid out of the earnings of P. F. Collier & Son. The residuary estate left to the widow accordingly was only $2,194. At the time the three residuary legatees named in the will filed their renunciation they said in a letter to Mrs. Collier:

"Much as we regret being placed in a position in which we might appear to disregard the wishes of our friend, as expressed in his will, we feel that we must, nevertheless, decline the bequest of these properties. We feel that the estate should now go to its natural ultimate destination and that we should, therefore, renounce this bequest of the residuary estate in your favor."

It was stated at the time that Mr. Collier made no more liberal a provision for his wife because he gave her his country place, Wickatonk, in New Jersey, and she also was well provided for by her father, James J. Van Alen.

The appraisal shows that while the securities of the Collier publishing business are called "bonds," they really amount to nothing more than shares of stock, since the interest of 7 per cent. was only to be paid out of surplus earnings and nothing was ever paid except part of the interest in 1912, the first year the corporation existed. Mr. Collier conducted the business as a firm from the death of his father in 1909 until he incorporated in 1912, when he took the entire bond issue, 5,200 shares of preferred stock and 15,000 shares of common stock. Both these stock holdings were appraised as of no value.

Value of Good-Will $14,937.

In fixing the value of the bonds at $1,509,296, the appraiser stated that the assets of the corporation are worth $2,991,365 and Robert J. Collier owed the corporation $257,916. The liabilities were $1,754,993 and the net worth $1,494,339, which, with $14,957 as the value of the good-will, made the total valuation stated.

The report states that the book valuation of the assets was $6,936,061, but this included $2,201,798 as "good-will." Fred Lewis, Secretary of the corporation, who was questioned on that point, said:

"The item of good-will was originally placed on the books as a method to provide for an income for the former proprietor of the business, and represents merely an inflation. It should never have been placed on the books."

Mr. Collier had pledged $800,000 of the bonds to secure an indebtedness of the corporation to the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company for paper and other supplies furnished, on which $227,080 was due at his death, and owed $62,053 to the Charles E. Johnson Ink Company. Other debts were $606,580 to Payne Whitney and $68,033 to Harry Payne Whitney on notes, and $257,966 to the corporation. The report states that Mr. Collier was further indebted to the corporation more than $600,000 under an agreement by which he acted as sales manager for the Collier books and Collier's Weekly, but it was stated that no effort would be made to collect this sum because he was not to be held liable under the agreement. Under this agreement Mr. Collier was to pay the corporation all he received except $25,000, which he retained as salary.

Lost $200,000 on Soldiers.

The corporation earned $184,392 in 1915, $409,798 in 1916, and $205,525 in 1917, but in 1914 the loss was $208,636, and the loss in 1918 was $118,163. The corporation lost $200,000 on its accounts due from soldiers who entered the war.

Assets of the estate other than the bonds included cash $171, salary due, $5,679, and clothing, $500. He had $110,000 in insurance, but loans reduced the amount payable to $85,203.

The appraiser did not include in his estimate of the estate the share the decedent receives from his mother, Mrs. Catherine Louise Collier, who died June 14, 1917, but the report states that she left practically nothing because, under the will of her husband, Peter F. Collier, she received only an annuity of $25,000. Among the claims against the estate was $5,000 by Francis P. Garvan for a Red Cross donation, $300 each to St. Joseph Hospital in the Bronx, and St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Seminary of Cincinnati, and $600 for St. Joseph's Hospital, Syracuse, all as unpaid annuities under the will of Peter F. Collier.

SALEM PEOPLE WALK.

Shutdown of Trolley Lines Inconveniences 30,000.

SALEM, Mass., Jan. 15.—Thirty thousand persons who usually ride to business in trolley cars crowded into motor buses or walked in the near-zero atmosphere today. All local lines of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway here and a large part of the interurban service of that company to this city, were discontinued at midnight, the public trustees of the road having refused to operate the cars in this vicinity longer in the face of alleged continued losses of revenue due to the competition of "jitneys."

Conditions were similar to those of Dec. 18, when the Trustees stopped virtually all service in the Salem district for twenty-four hours until the authorities of this city, Beverly and Peabody had voted to withdraw "jitney" licenses. Operation of the "jitneys" was resumed here within a few days, however, when the City Council had indorsed a petition for a special election to decide whether their previous action in revoking the licenses should be upheld. This election will be held on Jan. 27.

European Colonists in Manitoba to Nominate Candidates.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 15.—European colonists throughout Manitoba have been organizing and will put up their own candidates in the approaching provincial elections, it was learned today.

The movement to establish a literacy test for all voters in provincial and municipal elections is said to be the reason for the move. The radical labor element is declared to be lending its support.

The glasses are placed in position during the night, the dispatches assert, and, catching the rays of the sun in the daytime, produce combustion. Incendiarism in Cordoba and Buenos Aires Provinces continues.

JAPANESE ALSO MAY QUIT SIBERIA

American Government's Decision to Do So Likely to Cause Hara Cabinet's Fall.

EXPEDITION IS UNPOPULAR

And to Face Bolsheviki Alone Would Cost $200,000,000, and Perhaps $500,000,000, a Year.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The decision of the American Government to withdraw its expeditionary forces from Siberia, which was entirely unexpected by Japan, is understood to have presented a very embarrassing problem to the Hara Ministry at Tokio, which had been under fire from the opposition for some time on account of its Siberian policy.

The text of Secretary Lansing's communication to the Japanese Government has been sent to Tokio, but will not be made public until the Washington Government has been advised that the communication has been delivered. The delay in its delivery has been caused by the garbling of the cipher message in which the communication was sent, and this necessitated the resending of portions of the communication, so as to enable the American Embassy at Tokio to have the text in accurate form before its delivery.

Unofficial advices from Tokio today indicated that the latest American note on withdrawal of its troops, which was sent after the Washington Government had been asked by the Japanese Government for an expression of views toward projected co-operation between this country and Japan in Siberia, may result in the resignation or overthrow of the Hara Ministry, notwithstanding that the proposals to enlarge the Japanese expeditionary troops did not originate with the Premier or his civilian colleagues, but with the War Office.

This proposal was, at first opposed by several members of the Ministry, including Foreign Minister Uchida, but the War Office's views finally prevailed, and the memorandum was prepared for submission to America and forwarded. While any material increase in the American force was not looked for, it was thought the United States Government would maintain it at its present strength of about 9,000 men.

According to the best available intelligence here, it is improbable that Japan will attempt, single-handed, to stem the Bolshevist advance into eastern Siberia further than to protect the withdrawal of her own troops.

The expedition has never been popular with the Japanese people, and the soldiers serving in Siberia have been replaced at short intervals because of their strong dislike for service there, the rigorous climate being extremely hard to endure. The cost of maintaining the expedition is said to have been $100,000,000 a year. To carry on the work single-handed, it is asserted, would necessitate the expenditure by Japan of more than $200,000,000 a year at the most conservative estimate, but if the effort should be made upon a scale commensurate with that expected of the Bolsheviki are conceived capable of throwing into Eastern Siberia when their positions in Western Siberia shall have been consolidated and their lines of communication securely established, the cost probably would total $500,000,000 a year.

The impression upon the American Government that the maintenance of foreign military forces in Russian territory might make the situation worse rather than improve it, is expected to have profound effect in Japan. Before the attitude of this Government was known Viscount Kato, described as the most powerful politician in Japan today, was going over the country demanding the recall of the Japanese troops from Siberia, or lacking that, an explicit declaration by the Government of its Siberian policy. Premier Hara himself, before he became head of the Ministry and was leading the opposition, was hostile to maintaining Japanese troops in Siberia.

LAPLAND IN FROM ANTWERP.

Consul H. H. Morgan Says Belgium Is Rapidly Being Restored.

The arrival of the Lapland at New York yesterday marked her first trip from Antwerp since the war. She brought 280 cabin passengers. One of these was Henry H. Morgan, United States Consul at Brussels and High Commissioner of the United States in Belgium. He was accompanied by Mrs. Morgan, who was, until her marriage a few days before sailing, Miss Laura Fitzpatrick, a Red Cross worker, and Mr. Morgan's son, H. H. Morgan, Jr. The Consul has been studying reconstruction work in Belgium. Before he sailed he had an interview with King Albert, who asked his views on the war.

Belgium, he said, is coming back fast. Already more than 60 per cent. of her textile industries are in operation. The Germans, he said, have restored about 60 per cent. of the machinery they took from Belgian factories. The glass-making industry, he added, was working 100 per cent., and there is less socialism in Belgium than in any other country abroad.

John McE. Bowman, President of the Biltmore and Commodore Hotel companies, returned from London, where he has leased the site of the Devonshire House for a London hotel. He also visited Paris, where he is negotiating for the site for another hotel.

Other arrivals were Captain Bruce Bairnsfather, who comes to lecture on the lighter side of the war; Paul Pflieger, a Belgian cotton manufacturer; St. John G. Ervine, author of "John Ferguson," and Richard Marshall of the British consular service in Mexico.

RICHMOND CARS TO QUIT.

Posters Notify Public That Service Ends for Lack of a 7-Cent Fare.

Operation of the cars of the Staten Island Midland Railway Company will suspend at midnight on Sunday because of the failure of the Board of Estimate to act on the application of the company to increase the fare to seven cents. Big posters in the cars last night notified passengers that the service would cease and immediately there were many eager calls for information from the county and railroad officials. Lines of the company traverse the interior of the island, and more than 25 per cent. of the employes of the shipyards and manufacturing plants depend upon them for transportation to and from their homes.

BIDDLE'S POST TEMPORARY

Secretary Makes Public Letter Contradicting Gallivan Accusations in Justice to Officers.

GALLIVAN ATTACKS AWARDS

Issues Statement Amplifying His Charges of Discrimination Against Enlisted Men.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Controversy over awards of war service decorations by the War Department was widened today when Secretary Baker made public a letter to Representative Gallivan, Democrat, Massachusetts, challenging statements made a few days ago by the latter in the House regarding former Chiefs of Staff, while Gallivan amplified his previous charges in a written statement.

Mr. Baker's letter dealt with the military records and war service of General Tasker H. Bliss and Major Gens. Hugh L. Scott and John Biddle, predecessors of General Peyton C. March in the office of the Chief of Staff. The Secretary denied emphatically Gallivan's statement that these officers had been removed for inefficiency, and said he had made the letter public as the only means the officers assailed had of answering such charges. The letter follows:

"Jan. 15, 1920.

"Hon. James A. Gallivan,

"House of Representatives:

"Sir—In your remarks as reported in the Congressional Record for Tuesday, Jan. 13, 1920, Page 1515, you say:

"'We had four different Chiefs of Staff here in Washington during the period we were at war with Germany. Every one who knows anything at all about the work of the War Department knows that the predecessors of the present high priest of Prussianism, General

AGAINST TAX ON EXCESS PROFITS

Federal Trade Commissioner Colver Gives Dry Goods Men Reasons for This.

WOULD GET PRICES DOWN

Ratification of Treaty Urged and Also Stimulation of Imports to Help Exchange.

To the members of the National Wholesale Dry Goods Association gathered yesterday for their sixteenth annual convention at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, William B. Colver of the Federal Trade Commission explained the operations of that body and scored the evil effect on business of the excess profits tax and the treaty delay. The organization, following his remarks, passed a resolution urging Congress to take immediate action on the Peace Treaty and the covenant of the League of Nations. This and an indorsement given to the plan for an advertising campaign to educate retailers to the advantages of dealing with wholesalers instead of making their purchases direct were the chief developments of the meeting.

Mr. Colver, in describing how the Federal Trade Commission came in contact with business, went into the details of the act under which it works, and finally summed up the work of the Government body during the four and a half years of its existence.

"We of the Federal Trade Commission," he said, "believe that unfair methods of competition in commerce include any unfair act which may tend to destroy a competitor whether intended to destroy him or not. Such destruction of a competitor, no matter how many there may be, reduces unfairly the number of competitors by one, and, therefore, tends to create a monopoly. For if the process is repeated, and one more and again one and another is removed from the field, monopoly is the result.

"We of the commission also believe that any unfair act which may result in a lessening of competition is an unfair method of competition in commerce. It is not necessary that the method shall have reached its perfect flower of effect, that is to say, it is not necessary that competition be already substantially lessened nor is it necessary that monopoly shall have already been established, but if any unfair method which has been or is being followed, and which, viewed in unprejudiced judgment, may lessen competition, or if such methods so viewed tend to create a monopoly, then the method must be stigmatized as coming under the laws of prohibition."

Passing to the subject of the excess profits tax he said:

"The excess profits tax was never designed to be and never was a revenue measure. At the time that the Government was fixing prices on various commodities, it found that the cost of production in different mines, mills and factories covered a very wide range. But since a certain quantity of a given commodity was imperatively needed a price was fixed high enough to bring out the needed production from the high-cost producers. This gave abnormal and undue profits to low-cost producers, and the excess profits tax was intended as an equalizer to bring these undue profits back to the public treasury. Prices are no longer fixed by the Government, and therefore the only reason for the existence of the excess profits tax system has absolutely disappeared.

"The excess profits tax is passed on and multiplied until about $4 or $5 is taken out of your pocket, my pocket, and the pocket of the man on the street for every dollar that finally gets to the public treasury. The tax is difficult and cumbersome to collect and bears inequitably upon different concerns of the same size and profitableness. As a matter of fact, it is a bonus for inflated capitalization, and a penalty on conservative capitalization. It should be repealed at the earliest possible moment, and its repeal, I am certain, will result in an almost immediate lowering of the whole unhealthy price structure, which is a burden alike upon every citizen, whether he be consumer, merchandiser, producer, or taxpayer."

Mr. Colver then described the handicaps the country labors under while the Peace Treaty and League covenant remain undecided.

"Secret treaties," he said, "usually carry with them preferential trade arrangements, great or small. If the League of Nations did nothing more than to put an end to secret treaties and secret trade arrangements, and if the ratification of the treaty did nothing more than to substitute stability for instability in our relations to our enemy, our allies and neutral nations, American business would have cause to rejoice and to go forward with confidence and courage to meet the problems which it must meet and which are quite as difficult as were the problems of war. These things are too important and too vital to successful business to be used as chips in a game of politics."

In pronouncing the slogan of "Work and Save" good advice, the speaker took occasion to point out some of "large flies in the ointment" of the foreign business of the nation. As chief of these, he put down the disproportion of imports to exports, which he held must be brought to a more normal level before a healthy international commerce can be restored. Further exports to Europe on a credit basis should not be encouraged, he said, unless there is an increased proportion of those which will become the means of production there and result in a return flow of goods to balance exchange.

"What has been exported up to the present time has been the necessary thing, but it will not be a healthy thing for it to be long continued. It may be very well compared to the case of a needy man who, applying for aid, is given an order on a grocery store or a ticket to a soup kitchen. He has only been kept alive until the food is consumed. Suppose him to have been a carpenter. To have given him or sold him on credit a kit of tools so that he could have become a wage-earner and a producer would have been of much greater benefit to him and to society. That is the necessary thing if Europe is to have the payrolls which will produce the taxes, which will pay the principal and interest of our debt, and produce the goods to be exchanged in turn for our further supplies of tools, machinery, and raw materials, which will be a transfusion of blood and will revitalize prostrate, industrial Europe.

"Demoralized foreign exchange tends increasingly to check the flow of our export trade. Buying our goods with depreciated money may make them cost the foreign customer so much as to be practically prohibitive. Meantime, our great gold reserve is beginning to flow to South America and Central America and to the Orient, and, as that gold reserve is depleted, our currency, and therefore our national credit, tends to contract.

"All these factors go to act as great rocks in the channels of international trade, and as our production continues our supply of goods of all sorts, the product of factory, mine, forest and farm, must tend to back up behind these obstructions. That means a tendency toward overproduction in the country. Overproduction means a curtailment of further production, and the curtailment of production means unemployment. So it is that, unless present forces are checked and new ones brought into play, we may not be troubled so much by the high cost of living as by the need of individual income to meet a very much lowered cost of living.

"Instead of further Government credits, our industries may well put their shoulder to the wheel in the matter of facilitating credit to foreign buyers and this will enable the foreign demand to continue. Also an investment on the part of the people of this country in the soundest securities—industrials and others—of our friends across the sea, would build up a solid foundation for foreign exchange and be beneficial to all parties.

"The artificial price structure must come down," the speaker concluded. "Over-stimulated wages, over-capitalization of expectations and false factors in cost must come out if this country is to have its sails properly reefed and its hatches battened down to meet the storm which has followed every great war that the world has ever seen."

In addition to the endorsement of an advertising campaign, for which $40,000 will be appropriated, the wholesalers decided to appoint a committee which will visit manufacturers who are found selling to speculators in order to persuade them to discontinue such practices. Another committee will have charge of zoning the membership of the organization so that those in various sections of the country may take action on their local problems. A resolution was passed recommending fair play and proper recognition for the teaching profession as the best means of spreading Americanism.

The following officers were elected: M. G. Cooper of the Cooper Coate & Casey Dry Goods Company of Los Angeles, President; F. H. Lloyd of the Pittsburgh Dry Goods Company, First Vice President, and James Wilson of the Clawson & Wilson Company, Buffalo, Second Vice President.

1919 JEWELRY TRADE GOOD.

Failures Decreased from 236 in 1918 to 94 Last Year.

One of the most prosperous years for jewelry manufacturers was the last one, according to the report of F. C. Backus, Secretary of the National Jewelers' Board of Trade, which he read at the board's annual meeting yesterday at 15 Maiden Lane.

In 1919 there were only 94 failures in the jewelry trade, as against 236 for the preceding year, or a decrease of about 60 per cent. The total assets of the bankrupt firms last year were $423,383 and the liabilities were $688,093. The 94 failures were divided as follows: Retailers, 76; manufacturers, 9; wholesalers, 5; installment houses, 2; opticians, 2; repairers, 1.

The following officers were elected: President—Arthur Lorsch; Vice Presidents—J. Warren Alford and Joseph L. Herzog; Treasurer—Walter N. Kahn; Secretary—F. C. Backus. The membership of the organization was announced as 1,073.

Will Discuss Rail Return.

The Steering Committee and the Rate Committee of the Association of Railway Executives will meet here today and it is expected that the former will discuss the difference of opinion which has developed over the 5½ per cent. return provision of the Cummins bill. Yesterday the Advisory Committee of the Association met and continued its discussion of those features of Federal control which should be carried over into private operation and those which should be eliminated. The meeting today of the Rate Committee will deal with the rate situation.

Uncertainty in Garment Trade.

Considerable uncertainty marks the operations of garment retailers for the Spring season. While a large number of them recognise the mistake that was made last season in plunging heavily at the start of the season, there are others to be found who, despite the reductions that have had to be taken recently, believe the wiser course is to make their purchases in volume now. From reports received from manufacturers there seems to be a fair amount of orders being placed.

Six Times the Business.

As an indication of the increase in home dressmaking, a representative jobber of dress goods reports that business so far taken by salesmen on the road with Fall lines has been six times the ordinary amount. This report corresponds to the results of an investigation by another house which showed there were many small dressmakers starting up in business. The jobbing interests are inclined to believe that, while styles remain in their present stable position, home dressmaking will be considerably encouraged. Rapid style changes, such as have marked some past seasons, it was said, might affect the situation somewhat.

Interest in Artificial Silk.

Considerable interest has been stirred up among users of artificial silk over the report that the financing of a new process will shortly add a good deal to the available supplies of this commodity. Manufacturers of artificial silk fabrics see in this the promise of lower prices that will enable them to obtain additional business. With real silk at record values, an unusually good demand has been found for silk substitutes, and manufacturers would like to be in a position to capture as much of this trade as possible.

Gray Goods Are Going Up.

Two more new records for printcloths were established in the local market for gray goods yesterday. Spot lots of Eastern 38½-inch 60-48s brought 21¼ cents, and similar 38½-inch 64-60s fetched 24 cents. April-June deliveries of the latter sold for 22½ cents. Twenty-six cents was paid for April-June shipments of 39-inch 68-72s. In the sheetings five-yard goods brought 19½ cents for shipment in May and June, with 18 cents paid for 5.50s for February-March delivery. Another new high price for sateens also was created yesterday, when buyers paid 49 cents for January deliveries of 39-inch 64-104, 4.20-yard cloths of this character.

Fancy Goods Sales Active.

While 1919 business is described in the fancy goods and notions trade as having been "out of sight," 1930 purchases of this merchandise to date were said yesterday to be twice as heavy as in the corresponding period a year ago. Men out on the road for the coming season are turning in handsome orders, and the only cloud on the horizon is supplied by the paucity of supplies and the possibility of the wholesalers being unable to make complete deliveries. No downward revision of prices is looked for during the current year. On the other hand, wholesalers are daily getting letters from manufacturers saying that, for one reason or another, they have been obliged to withdraw old prices and to issue new and higher ones. The demand for merchandise is general, and nothing appears too high-priced for the public to take.

Raw Silks Keep on Advancing.

The Yokohama raw silk market has advanced $150 per picul of about 133 pounds since last week, and late cables report prices there based on $1,925 per picul for Sinshiu No. 1. Stocks on hand there are placed at 10,500 bales, against 35,000 bales at this time last year. The Canton market, according to advices received by H. L. Gwalter & Co. of this city, is advancing rapidly under active buying for American account. More than 3,000 bales of the new season's silk, for shipment in May, June and July are reported sold already. At Shanghai prices are firm, but above the parity of other markets. Milan and Lyons report increased activities and price strength. Locally the manufacturers are trying to cover their needs for late Spring and early Summer, and eagerly buy any silks offered under the general market levels, which continue to advance.

Will Bare Woolen Prices.

In placing the views of the garment retailers before the Government officials on Monday at Washington, the committee representing the merchants will emphasize the importance of piece goods prices in the cost of living problem. Figures have been gathered to show the increases that have been paid by the garment manufacturers. The point to be made, however, will be that while an advance in the cost of material may be small when passed on to the manufacturer it is necessary for him as well as the retailer to take a mark-up on that increase which makes it a large one when the garment reaches the public. Franklin Simon, John Hahn, Secretary of the National Garment Retailers' Association, and P. A. O'Connell of the S. T. Slattery Company of Boston will represent the retailers at the conference.

Bulling the Market Purposely.

While not a great deal is being said about it for publication, it appears that certain second hands in the local gray goods market are active in forcing up prices for the purpose of collecting sizeable profits on fabrics previously bought by them at lower prices. The game is worked simply enough. A speculatively-inclined buyer, already well-stocked on certain constructions of goods, will place an order for a small quantity of one of them with several brokers. The resultant inquiry gives the impression to the commission houses that a large quantity of the merchandise is wanted, and prices stiffen in consequence. This often stampedes other buyers, who want goods for their own consumption, and what was an artificial market becomes a real one. Sometimes it happens, according to trade comment, that the stampeding process is so thorough that it is necessary for the man who started the thing to buy at all in order to achieve his purpose. Even if he has to, he stands to win handsomely on the goods already bought, which he will let out gradually when it appears that the top of the market has been reached.

Want Other Men's Capital.

One of the many things which credit men in a number of wholesale lines have to be on the watch for these days is the retailer who wants to do business on the wholesaler's capital. There are many of them, and the desire is to do it by obtaining more credit than their financial strength or payment habits warrant, as well as by getting longer dates than trade custom or credit safely permit. In this way they hope to be able to buy larger quantities of goods than would otherwise be the case, and thus beat prospective price advances. Not only is this a dangerous game for the wholesaler to have played on him, according to one of the best-known local credit men, but it is dangerous for the retailer as well. With things as they are, this man asserted yesterday, there is no telling when a sudden crash will come and carry a retailer of this type to the wall. In addition, the charges attending the carrying of the goods were said usually to be sufficient to eat up any saving for the retailer that might result from beating a moderate price increase.

JAIL FOR SUGAR PROFITEER.

Brooklyn Man Sentenced to Serve Two Days and Fined $100.

H. H. Thornton of 300 Lewis Avenue, Brooklyn, who was convicted in the Federal Court of profiteering in sugar, was sentenced yesterday to two days in jail and fined $100. He pleaded guilty to selling 100 pounds of sugar at 18 cents a pound.

Thornton is a son of the President of the Carlisle Company, which operates a chain of stores in Brooklyn and Long Island.

USE JUDGMENT IN SELECTING YOUR INVESTMENTS

EXPERTS are of the opinion that bonds of real intrinsic merit purchased around present prices are practically certain to sell considerably higher within the next few years. The question, therefore, is not so much whether you should buy now, as it is that you use the proper amount of judgment in making selections. Should you wish us to submit to you a list of diversified investments, we would be glad to do so, following out your ideas as to type and geographical location as closely as possible.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Active Short Covering Brings Rally in Stocks—Call Money Easier.

Stocks rallied briskly yesterday, the covering of previous short sales being an important factor in the movement. Speculative sentiment appeared to find relief in statements coming from Washington to the effect that the Federal Reserve Board at its regular meeting had not considered the matter of higher discounts at New York. In view of the rumors of Wednesday that the local Reserve Bank had decided to advance certain rates and was waiting only for the approval of the board, considerable nervousness was evident in the market during the first half hour of business. It was after the Washington dispatches were received in the Street that stocks began to look up and the advance continued until near the close. An irregular tendency of quotations in final dealings seemed to indicate that the more pressing demand from the short element had been filled, leaving the market rather uncertain as to tendencies of the immediate future. Steel, copper and many miscellaneous issues rose 1 to 5 points, together with a number of the oil shares. Where there was evidence of weakness it was one or two of the newer oil and specialty stocks which suffered most.

The money situation was difficult to size up. Call loans were renewed at 9 per cent., but this proved to be the highest rate of the day and in the afternoon there were fairly large offerings down to 6 per cent. At the same time brokers found loans of the longer maturities as scarce as ever, rates for accommodation secured by industrial collateral commanding 8 to 8¼ per cent. While the call loan cost and supply continues to act as a guide for some speculative endeavor on both sides of the market, it is the situation of time funds which receives the closest study from the primary borrowers, the brokers. From their point of view credit for stock market use cannot become plentiful so long as the demand for loans of fixed maturities, from whatever source it comes, continues so persistent as to prevent a lowering of rates.

The decline of Liberty bonds this week, which was again substantial yesterday, together with the rapid melting down of certain stocks both on and off the Stock Exchange, has caused much discussion in connection with the credit outlook. The impression prevails that efforts to discourage speculation in numerous loosely-held stocks of recent origin have been undertaken by brokers as well as bankers, resulting in liquidation of particular accounts. Whether selling of this character and the liquidation of Government bonds in place of using them as collateral will have a real result in making credit easier is a question which may be answered only in the light of weekly bank statements.

In a foreign exchange market containing fewer factors of depression than those current, an improvement of European rates might have been looked for yesterday. The international proposal for united effort to meet critical credit conditions on the Continent looks toward the betterment of the exchanges later on, but it had no influence yesterday. Sterling receded 2¼ cents to the pound, the closing quotation of 3.70¼ being the lowest of the year. Francs, lire and marks also lost ground, the last named falling to 1¾ cents each. Swiss rates were moderately firm. The silver market executed another of those singular declines which have been frequent in the last few months, the quotation at New York falling 4¼ cents per ounce to $1.30¾. The movement paralleled a decline of 4½d to 70d per ounce in London.

NATIONAL CITY BANK'S RISE.

The National City Bank has issued a pamphlet report of its condition as of Dec. 31, 1919, containing a résumé of the year, in which it is shown that the aggregate resources of the institution grew from $894,270,410 on March 4, to $1,039,418,324 on Dec. 31, 1919. On the first day of 1919 the bank had a total of fifteen foreign branches, and on the last day of the year it had a total of forty-seven foreign branches. The first foreign branch was established five years ago in Buenos Aires, Argentina.

The résumé states that at the close of 1879 the resources of the bank amounted to $16,750,980; ten years later they were $18,214,823; in 1899 they amounted to $128,335,484; in 1909 to $280,447,972, and at the close of last year reached their high mark at $1,039,418,324.

WANTS GUARANTEED INCOME FOR ROADS

Head of Pennsylvania System Urges a Minimum Be Fixed to Guide Ratemaking.

WOULD FUND WAR DEBTS

Favors Advances by Government to Finance Improvements and to Meet Maturing Obligations.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Jan. 15.—Samuel Rea, President of the Pennsylvania Railroad System, speaking before the Detroit Real Estate Board tonight, said that the immediate railroad needs were:

"1. Adequate rates to be at all times maintained to prevent the railroads from again getting into the weak position from which they are now trying to emerge. For this purpose the adoption of a ratemaking rule, or, if that is not acceptable, the fixing of some minimum return, is essential for the positive guidance of the commissions which regulate rates, and it should be on a fair average basis of return throughout a series of years.

"2. Fund the war indebtedness to the Government, which chiefly consists of expenditures made by the Government for additions and betterments essential to carry the traffic of the war period and to protect the life of the nation; and also return the roads with sufficient working capital to resume operations. The Government found it essential to have working capital, and the railroads were called upon to provide a large part of that working capital, at the beginning of Federal control, both in money and materials and supplies.

"3. Continue the standard compensation as prescribed by the Federal Control act and contract for at least six months, until the railroad situation has been steadied by adequate rates and stronger credit.

"4. Provide sufficient capital to finish additions, betterments, and equipment already authorized by the United States Railroad Administration, as well to finance additional new work and equipment which should be authorized in 1920, and enable the railroads to provide for securities maturing in that year.

"The Government is not asked to make a gift to the railroads by such funding of past expenditures or for such new capital, but to advance it and bridge over this difficult financial period, receiving from the railroads the best securities they can offer to evidence such debts, and require their payment in say ten years, with suitable interest. The public interest should be protected in this way, otherwise because of financial conditions new equipment and facilities cannot be provided in 1920."

On the question of watered railroad stock, which Mr. Rea described as a "delusion" which still persists, he said: "On Dec. 31, 1917, the par value of the outstanding capital stock and funded debt of all the railroads, said to contain billions of water, was $21,249,357,241. Against that capitalization their gross investment, including road and equipment, miscellaneous physical property, investments in affiliated companies, and other general investments, aggregated, as shown by the Interstate Commerce Commission report for 1917, $24,281,550,363, so that their total investment was $3,032,193,122 in excess of their capital issues."

"If following the release of the railroads from Federal control," Mr. Rea said in conclusion, "public regulation cannot allow railroad credit and expansion to progress, it will incur the verdict of gradually but surely ruining the railroads, and of wasting millions of money annually in the collection of information, and for making decisions and reports, which in practice proved useless in regulating constructively the transportation systems of the country to serve it properly. This must mean that the country will clean the slate and begin all over again, or go straight to Government ownership where the higher costs and political disadvantages can be concealed through appropriations and the public will be unable to protect itself against a system from which individuality and responsibility will be eliminated or passed along from one Administration to another. All can be avoided by prompt action that will eliminate the railroad problem from the political arena, and let hard work, experienced direction, and broad-minded regulation cure it for the country's benefit. Delay and fettering legislation means our paralysis; broad-minded legislation, requiring equitable regulation means prosperity retained and extended in 1920."

Mr. Rea announced that soon after Mar. 1 the Pennsylvania Railroad would be running freight and passenger trains into Detroit. The first entry would be made under an arrangement with connecting lines. The bargain will go into effect when the Government relinquishes control of the roads.

SHELL TRANSPORT DIVIDEND

Equitable Trust Company, Distributor to Holders of American Shares.

The Equitable Trust Company as depositary of certain ordinary shares of the Shell Transport Trading Company, Ltd., under an agreement made Aug. 28, 1919, has received a dividend on the ordinary stock it holds of two shillings per share of the par value of £1 sterling each. The equivalent that is distributable to holders of the American shares under the agreement is 74 cents on each share.

The dividend will be distributed Feb. 3 by the Equitable Trust Company to registered holders of the American shares of record Jan. 27, provided the necessary income tax certificates are filed with it on or before that date.

BELGIAN NOTE ISSUE SOLD OUT IN A DAY

Not a Dollar's Worth of the $25,000,000 Loan Left in Hands of Syndicate.

ITALY AND POLAND NEXT

Bankers Expect an Attempt to Borrow as Soon as Result of Belgian Undertaking Is Known.

It was announced at the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. yesterday that the $25,000,000 Belgian Government one-five-year 6 per cent. gold note issue had been oversubscribed. The subscription books, however, will not be closed until 3 o'clock this afternoon, in order to give out-of-town subscribers an opportunity to file applications for the securities.

The offering, according to the bankers, was unusually successful. The inquiry has come from all parts of the country, and a surprising number of small applications have been received. One banker connected with the syndicate which offered the notes said late yesterday that not a dollar's worth remained in the hands of the syndicate and that all had been placed with investors.

The Belgian financing, it was said, was the most successful international operation attempted thus far, and in some quarters it was believed that other countries would attempt to float bond issues here soon. A banker who was identified with the Belgian proposition disclaimed knowledge of any other flotations now in contemplation, however, and gave it as his opinion that it would be some little time before any new issues would be brought out.

"It is simply my guess, though," he said. "Other European countries would like accommodation here, and it is always possible that they will make early application for funds. But to the best of my knowledge no applications are at present pending."

The countries most frequently mentioned as potential borrowers in this market are Italy and Poland. The Italian proposal is somewhat different from the usual foreign offering, in that the Italians plan to appeal directly to their own nationals here and expect that subscriptions will come in in small amounts, but in considerable aggregate volume. Poland, it is said, would like to borrow here, and may be expected to make advances to American bankers within a short time.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Interpreting Silence.

The officers of the Federal Reserve Bank, as sphinxian a body of men as Wall Street has ever known, maintained a dignified silence on Wednesday when asked as to the latest developments in rate raising, and the Wall Street prognosticators immediately assumed that rates had been put up—the exact amount of the advance gaining steadily throughout the late afternoon. Yesterday the officers of the Reserve Bank were as communicative as they had been the day before, and yesterday the Street interpreted the silence as denial of any increase. Of course, the Washington dispatches aided materially in changing the Street's mind. There were some, however, of the ilk who die hard who maintained that really the Directors of the institution had voted to advance rates and that announcement was being withheld. For these it was pointed out that an advance in rates is not especially effective unless it is put into operation, and to put it into operation would require a certain amount of publicity which could not be disseminated through complete silence.

Exchanges Decline.

The exchanges on most of the allied countries were heavy yesterday, going lower than they had been since late in December, and in some quarters it was assumed that the calling together of an international economic conference had had something to do with the fall. Just how this could be was not made clear. In the opinion of dealers and others connected with the market the decline simply is due to the pressure of bills. There has been a big accumulation of paper, and as exports, especially of raw materials, such as cotton and grain, continue heavy, the weight of the offerings has had the natural effect of depressing rates.

The Bank of England.

The proportion of reserve to liabilities in the Bank of England statement yesterday was placed at 16.76 per cent., against 12.21 per cent. last week and 9.24 per cent. in the end-of-the-year week. That 9¼ per cent. reserve caused some observers on this side to become mildly apprehensive, despite the obvious causes for the low proportion. The recovery since that time should put at rest such apprehension, which, as a matter of fact, never should have existed.

Today's Bank Clearings.

There was a belief in banking circles last night that today's bank clearances would be unusually large, due to some large turnovers and to heavy Government withdrawals. In fact, the tightness of money for the last few days was said to be in anticipation of yesterday's movements, and the decline in the call rate to 6 per cent. yesterday afternoon was accepted as evidence that the strain had passed.

Seats on 'Change $115,000.

Raymond J. Schweizer and Harry B. Signor have purchased the highest-priced membership seats in the history of the New York Stock Exchange for $115,000 each. The former bought the seat formerly owned by John V. Bouvier and the latter that of H. H. Ware. At the same time that those memberships were posted for transfer the following were also posted: Theodor Wolf to Joseph R. Begg, for $108,000, and Charles W. Meyer to George M. Gregory, the latter a firm transfer. Early in 1919 a seat on the New York Stock Exchange was sold for $38,000, which was the low price for the year.

Car Supply Outlook Better.

The shortage in freight cars for hauling grain from interior points which was a dominating factor in the gain markets of last week continued to affect the general trend until yesterday, when it was reported from Washington that cars would be available in increasing numbers soon. When this report was circulated the corn market became nervous and prices were inclined to be irregular. The news from Washington was attributed to a member of the special committee which was sent to confer with the Director General of Railroads on the situation by the Chicago Board of Trade.

One Credit Viewpoint.

Attention was drawn in some quarters yesterday to the fact that while it is advisable to extend credits to our allies it would also be wise for Americans to make possible the restoration of the credit of railroads, public utilities, and street car companies in this country.

From the Executives' Viewpoint.

It is just as vital for railroad securities to find a ready market as it is for the securities of industrial concerns to find a ready sale when they are offered, according to railroad men generally. In urging thorough as well as quick action by Congress on railroad legislation, they go back to the statement that industry is dependent for life on the transportation system of the country.

Out-of-Town Traction Troubels.

While many of the traction concerns in different parts of the country have got relief for the abnormal increases in their operating expenses of the last three years, there are also instances reported now and then of companies which are in even worse plight than the local traction lines. Yesterday it was reported in the financial district that the public trustees of Salem, Mass., had suspended operation of street cars which had been operating at a loss for some time because of the competition of jitney buses.

Investigating Steel Costs.

Several of the large independent steel companies are investigating production costs. Reports will probably not be made for some two or three weeks, but it is said the work thus far has been sufficient to show that costs are greater than those prevailing during 1919. In many of the more important lines there has not been any decided change in prices from the level which was tentatively established by the steel men and the Industrial Board of the Department of Commerce last March. With costs rising the natural inference is that steel prices will rise in proportion, and the investigations under way may determine the question. As to the demand for steel there are many cases which show that the bookings of many companies have taken up capacity as far ahead as the third quarter.

Copper Surplus Reduced.

The heavy sale of copper in recent weeks, it is asserted, has greatly cut into the copper surplus, made up of crude and refined copper. This was estimated to be in the neighborhood of 1,000,000,000 pounds last Spring, and there was little cutting down until November. As nearly as can be estimated, the surplus now amounts to about 700,000,000 pounds. When it is remembered that there is a normal surplus of from 400,000,000 to 500,000,000 pounds, it is apparent that there is a sizable reduction in the burden which the copper industry has been carrying.

Structural Steel.

Structural steel commitments in December were 85 per cent. of capacity, compared with 69 per cent. in the preceding month, according to the Bridge Builders and Structural Society reports. The average monthly commitments in 1919 were 53 5-12 per cent. of the rated capacity compared with 55 7-12 per cent. in the preceding year.

Middle States Oil Declines.

There was a sharp break in Middle States Oil yesterday that carried the issue down 14¼ points from the preceding close. After opening at 57 the shares dipped to 40½ and recovered to 43¾ at the close. Both liquidation and short selling were factors in the decline.

Seasoned Securities of Strong Companies

There are investors who believe they can get the greatest safety consistent with satisfactory income by purchasing securities that have been tested under varied market conditions over a period of years.

WORLD CONFERENCE TO BEGIN IN MARCH

The Hague Likely to be Selected for International Meeting on Reconstruction.

INSPIRED BY NEUTRALS

Holland and Sweden Want to Continue Huge War Business—French Taxation Defended.

The idea of an international economic conference, it was ascertained yesterday, originated in the European neutral countries, particularly in Holland and Sweden, where there was a desire for something of the sort even before the Peace Treaty was signed last year, and was quickly taken up by all other neutral countries and by British financiers and statesmen.

A signatory of the document which has been sent to the Foreign Government and to the United States Chamber of Commerce said yesterday that while it would be extremely difficult to say just who conceived the scheme, Dr. G. Vissering, President of the Bank of the Netherlands, and a leading Dutch signatory, and J. S. A. af Jochnick, President of the Sveriges Riksbank of Sweden, were among the first to become active in its behalf. Lord Robert Cecil, formerly Chairman of the Supreme Economic Council of the Peace Conference, was a leader among the British.

That such a conference would be practical and would do much toward straightening out the difficulties in the way of complete economic readjustment was suggested while the Peace Conference was still in progress some months ago. The European neutral countries were keenly anxious that the European belligerents be re-established financially so that they, the neutrals, could continue their huge war business. A great deal of pressure was brought to bear upon some of the American delegates, to whom it was suggested that the United States undertake to rehabilitate the erstwhile belligerents, enemy as well as allied. To this the American delegates retorted that the neutrals, too, had a part to play in the reconstruction work, and from these conversations the idea of a great International conference was evoked.

Conference to Meet in March.

As to the probable date for the calling of the proposed conference, it was said that that was a matter for the United States Chamber of Commerce and the European Governments to determine. However, it was added as the opinion of a leading banker that the conference probably would get under way some time early in March, and that in all probability it would be held at The Hague. It would either be there or in Switzerland, he thought, and of the two, he was inclined to favor The Hague, as being more centrally located and offering better facilities.

No estimates of the amount which will be necessary to re-establish world credit could be got. Bankers, including several who signed the appeal for the meeting, said it would be much better to leave all details to the conference.

The list of French signatories, which was delayed on Wednesday when the other European lists arrived, arrived yesterday, but not all of the names were included, and the message, as a whole, was said to be garbled. It was possible to identify the names of Raphael Georges Levy, a member of the French Academy, and Professor of Political Economy; R. Lehideux, President of the Bankers' Union, and Mr. D'Arcy, President of the Comité Houillieres. The other names are expected to be made available today.

The belief was entertained in some financial quarters yesterday that there has been dissatisfaction in respect to the way some of the nations had gone about reparations. There has been criticism in England of the French taxation program, and some criticism here of the same thing. Similarly there has been a disposition to consider that Italy has not been severe enough in placing new tax levies on her people. And in most of the allied countries it is felt that the Germans are not making the strides they should have taken toward re-establishing their foreign credit and adjusting their internal debt. All of these matters are likely to be brought up at the conference.

French Taxation Difficulties.

To show the amount of taxes which France is now collecting, the head of the French High Commission in this country yesterday gave out statistics indicating that France is doing vastly better than generally had been believed. A representative of the commission said that so far as he had been able to ascertain most of the criticism of French taxation was based on the amount of money actually paid into the French Treasury during 1916 and 1917. This sum, he admitted, was relatively small, but he explained this by saying that in those years fully 10 per cent. of the tax collectors in France had been with the colors and that the remaining 90 per cent., made up almost exclusively of old men, were greatly overworked by the innumerable other duties which they were called upon to perform.

"In France," he said, "the system of collecting taxes is very different from what it is here. In the United States you file questionnaires on your income tax returns, and you pay the levy by check. In France the taxes are collected personally by representatives of the Finance Ministry and are paid usually in currency. Obviously, with most of our men at the front, we could not get in all the money that was due, and the published amounts, being smaller than they should have been, brought about hostile criticism from those who were unfamiliar with our system."

The taxes due and not paid in past years, he went on to explain, will all be collected eventually. Part of them may have to be accepted in installments, but they will all find their way ultimately into the French Treasury.

That France has not hesitated to increase taxation, however, was illustrated by the figures the head of the High Commission gave out. These figures showed that in 1914 the amount received was 4,541,000,000 francs, while in 1919 the sum totaled 10,764,309,100 francs. This latter figure was considerably in excess of the budget estimates made at the beginning of 1919, when it was estimated that taxes for the year would net the Government 5,240,000,000. The increases over the estimates were apportioned as follows: Increase over estimates on indirect taxation, 1,441,809,100 francs; increase over estimates on income tax, 35,500,000 francs; increase over estimates on war profits tax, 987,000,000 francs.

The increases, by quarters, were in remarkable progression. For the first three months of the year the increase over estimates amounted to 3,155,000 francs. In the second quarter collections exceeded expectations by 353,341,300 francs. In the third quarter the increase amounted to 450,433,300 francs, and in the final quarter taxes actually paid into the Treasury went above the estimates to the extent of 637,379,500 francs.

More Revenue Necessary.

The head of the High Commission said that what was even more significant than these figures was the fact that the heads of the Government and the leaders of all political parties had not only agreed that even greater taxation would be necessary, but that all were enthusiastic for the additional levies, believing that only in this way can French credit be rehabilitated within a reasonable time.

What the French Government has in mind for the present year and for future years was not stated, but a banker who has enjoyed unusual facilities for observing the French situation and for estimating upon France's requirements said yesterday that in order to meet all charges France would have to collect something between 15,000,000,000 and 16,000,000,000 francs in taxes this year. This, if realized, would represent an increase over 1919 tax collections of between 5,000,000,000 and 6,000,000,000 francs or of 50 to 60 per cent.

French Bonds

Reports of the rapid recovery of France are only a repetition of her experience after former wars.

Sixteen years were required to pay for the Napoleonic Wars and the indemnity imposed by Germany in 1871 was paid in less than two and half years.

Costs about.....$402.50
5000 francs French 4s

COTTON PRICES RISE AFTER HEAVY START

Market Improves After Washington Advices Deny Reserve Bank Rate Increase.

FOREIGN TONE IS SLOWER

Trade Unaffected by Reports from Abroad or by Fall in Exchange Rates.

The cotton market opened heavy and uncertain yesterday on a continuance of the pessimism engendered by the belief that the Reserve Bank either had raised rates or was about to do so. Advices from Washington received early in the day, however, denied that any advance had been made and quoted Governor Harding as saying that he knew of no such action, and immediately the cotton market began to improve.

From the opening level, which was ten to twenty points below Wednesday's closing, the market worked upward until in the afternoon it stood at net gains of fifty-five to seventy-five points. These gains were well maintained, with the closing prices within ten points of the day's best.

The advance was made mostly on profit-taking purchases by the bears of Tuesday and Wednesday and by some new trade buying, which came into the market after midday. Reports from the goods markets also helped the advance, for the reports were decidedly bullish, indicating a big demand for goods of all sorts and showing some hardening in prices. These advices were somewhat in contrast to the cable dispatches from Liverpool and Manchester, where in the former place spots were heavy, and in the latter goods business was said to be quieting down and slower than it had been in several weeks.

The trade here refused to become alarmed over the slower tone abroad, and, similarly, it declined to concern itself with the further fall in foreign exchange rates. The statistical position of the staple is undoubtedly strong, and the bullishness contained in the Census Bureau report, which was entirely missed by many on Wednesday, was better appreciated yesterday.

Exports yesterday amounted to 47,688 bales, mostly for Great Britain, bringing the total for the week to date up to 209,000 bales. This is within 6,280 bales of last week's total for the full week.

ANNUAL REPORT OF

55 LIBERTY STREET

GEORGE A. HURD, President

January 1, 1920

The Company's record during the past year has continued to show the sound character of its business of issuing its own Bonds secured by the deposit with a Trustee of first mortgages on improved real estate in prosperous Western and Southern cities. In spite of disturbed conditions due to the War, the Company has at the present time only three loans in process of foreclosure out of 2289 loans outstanding, and the amount of interest more than thirty days delinquent is only $1,065.93.

The Company has $7,255,975 of mortgage loans outstanding in nineteen cities of the West and South, where it has established agencies, the value of the properties covered by these mortgages aggregating $18,457,969. The loans, therefore, amount to less than 40% of the Company's appraised value, as compared with the usual loan of 66⅔% of the value in New York City. The great majority of the Company's loans also contain an obligation to make annual payments in reduction of the principal.

The Statement of Assets and Liabilities, January 1, 1920, is as follows:

ASSETS		LIABILITIES
Mortgages	$7,465,975.35	Capital	$2,000,000.00
Bonds	182,658.00	Surplus	500,000.00
Real Estate	217,079.67	Undivided Profits	278,342.94
Interest Receivable	146,822.39	Mortgage-Bonds	5,274,106.00
Cash	165,290.39	Interest Payable	96,385.06
		Reserved for Taxes	29,000.00
	$8,177,826.60		$8,177,826.60

Quarterly dividends at the rate of 7% have been paid during the year, and $37,481.23 added to Undivided Profits.

The Company's Bonds are listed on the New York Stock Exchange, and have gradually won recognition from conservative investors, many of the Bonds having been sold to such institutions as Insurance Companies, Trust Companies, Colleges and Universities.

The showing of gross and net income of the Company for 1919 is as follows:

Gross Income	$539,049.25
Expenses	118,946.02
	$420,103.23
Interest on Bonds	242,622.00
Net Profits	$177,481.23

The Company is organized under the Banking Law of the State of New York and is periodically examined by the Banking Department. It is also audited annually by Messrs. Deloitte, Plender, Griffiths & Company, Accountants and Auditors, of London and New York.

The cities in which the Company now has loans outstanding are:

Atlanta, Ga.	Houston, Texas	Oklahoma City, Okla.
Augusta, Ga.	Jacksonville, Fla.	Portland, Oregon
Birmingham, Ala.	Kansas City, Mo.	San Antonio, Texas
Dallas, Texas	Macon, Ga.	Savannah, Ga.
Des Moines, Iowa	Mobile, Ala.	Seattle, Wash.
Fort Worth, Texas	Montgomery, Ala.	Sioux City, Iowa
	New York, N. Y.	Spokane, Wash.

The Company continues to offer for sale its 5% 10-20 Year Series 3 Bonds, due January 1, 1932.

An Investment Opportunity With Unusual Profit Possibilities

Many Americans have overlooked the possible profits offered them, at existing exchange rates, through the purchase of foreign government securities at the most attracivet prices they have ever known.

For example, French Government 4% Loan of 1917 can be purchased at a price which would show a profit of over 100% on the principal should exchange return to normal. An additional profit of over 75% would be realized should the bonds sell at par.

STAGE COACHES of EARLY NEW YORK

The early history of the Merchants' Bank, and indeed of American commerce generally, is the history of energy succeeding in spite of obstacles. The Merchants' Bank early established relations with the Philadelphia Bank, the New York State Bank of Albany and the Hartford Bank; which relations have remained undisturbed to this day. Yet the only communication for many years was by stage coach or by post rider. It took at least six days to go to Boston and two days to Philadelphia, and the expense was very heavy. Another complication was the different currency used in the different cities. In fact, so late as 1845, Daniel Webster sends a correspondent "a check for $500 on the New York Merchants' Bank," and says that "Mr. Haven will readily give Boston money".

First Mortgages Netting 5½%

FOR many years this Company has made conservative First Mortgage Loans on improved income producing real estate in certain of the larger cities throughout the United States.

LOANS average less than 40% of our appraisal, are available in amounts of $1,000 and upward and net purchasers 5½%. The Company assumes the care of all details in connection therewith.

FOR small amounts—multiples of $100—we offer Mortgage Participation Certificates, secured by a specific First Mortgage held in Trust, to net purchasers 5% and 5½%, depending upon maturity.

Send for copy of "QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS," describing these unusual mortgages in detail.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

BUTTER—Receipts yesterday, 7,153 packages. Market momentarily steady, demand slightly better for the day and the fine fresh goods were cleaned up moderately well. Secondary grades were easy. Ladles and packing stock lower. Creamery, higher than extras, pound, 62½@63c; extras, 92 score, 62c; firsts, 90 to 91 score, 60@61½c; firsts, 88 to 89 score, 57½@59½c; seconds, 83 to 87 score, 54@57c; lower grades, 51@53c; held, higher than extras, 62½@63c; extras, 61½@62c; firsts, 58@61c; seconds, 54@57c; unsalted, higher than extras, 63@63½c; extras, 64@64½c; firsts, 60@63c; seconds, 55@59c; State dairy tubs, finest, 60½@61c; good to prime, 57@60c; common to fair, 50@56c; renovated, extras, 56@56½c; firsts, 55@55½c; imitation creamery, firsts, 51@52c; ladles, current make, firsts, 48@49c; seconds, 45½@46c; lower grades, 44@45c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 45c; No. 2, 44c; lower grades, 40@43c.

EGGS—Receipts yesterday, 11,061 cases. Fresh arrivals continue liberal. There was a fair demand for strictly prime to choice qualities and prices were sustained at the moment, partly because some of the surplus had been taken off the market under shippers' limits. But sales of fresh gathered stock for near future delivery at materially lower prices gave the outlook an uncertain tone. Storage eggs of high quality were in steady, fair demand and prices fully sustained. Medium and lower grades were perhaps less active and more freely offered, but the range of values was without quotable change. White eggs fairly steady at unchanged prices. Fresh gathered, extras, dozen, 76c; extra firsts, 74@75c; firsts, 72@73c; seconds and poorer, 65@71c; refrigerator, special marks, fancy, charges paid, 55@56c; firsts, 52½@54c; seconds, 48@52c; under grades, 30@47c; sterilized, 54@60c; dirties, 35@42c; checks, 35@38c; whites, 50@60c State, Pennsylvania and nearby Western, henpery whites, extras, 85@86c; firsts to extra firsts, 78@84c; undergrades, 75@77c; gathered whites, firsts to extra firsts, 78@84c; pullets, 68@72c; Pacific Coast, whites, express, extra firsts to extras, 84@86c; firsts to extra firsts, 78@82c; pullets, 67@69c; other Western and Southern, gathered whites, 74@82c; State, Pennsylvania and nearby henpery browns, fancy, 78@80c; gathered brown and mixed colors, graded, fancy, 76c; fair to choice, 72@75c.

Railroad Securities

RAILROAD investments are coming into their own again. The railroad return bill will shortly be enacted and the outlook for the companies will be more definitely fixed.

THIS development makes very timely the recently issued edition of the Standard Railroad Reference and Rating Book,

"Moody's Analyses Of Railroad Investments"
by John Moody

THE volume not only contains full comparative operating figures of all the railroads, but also separate statements showing the actual income as based on the Standard Return, or government guarantee. Many ratings have been revised since 1918, and the present volume is therefore unusually valuable.

THE edition is being rapidly exhausted and we urge everybody to place their orders without delay where they have not already done so. Price, $15 per copy, net.

The Story of
BRINKLEY PRODUCING & REFINING CO.
Oil Tabloid No. 7

The next important activity of the Brinkley Producing and Refining Company, besides the regular and unceasing efforts directed towards oil, was the culmination of a contract with the water company furnishing water power to power plants on the Wagner Extention whereby we have been assured of our water supply free of charge.

Just another step, amending our former efforts which have produced 3 producing wells, a fourth and fifth being drilled in, the acquisition of our own pipe line and storage tank, casinghead gas contracts, and contracts to drill 6 more wells on part of our holdings comprising approximately 33,000 acres.

Surely this makes presentable history.

In succeeding issues of this newspaper will appear further information concerning the history of Brinkley Producing and Refining Company. Can you wait for it or will you send us your name and address immediately for our literature so that you can have it all at one reading.

BRINKLEY PRODUCING AND REFINING CO.,

No Income Tax Worries
A firm of prominent lawyers has simplified the making out of income tax returns to an astonishing degree.
Accounting and the Law are combined in three non-technical "Made Easy" Questionnaires.
No. 1, individual; No. 2, corporation (income tax); No. 3, corporation (excess profit tax).
Don't worry over your returns. You, your auditor, or your lawyer will find that the Made-Easy Questionnaire save time, temper and money. Price $1.00 each. Order by number.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

That realty market conditions have undergone a radical change in the last few months and that it is no longer necessary for an owner to "peddle" his property was shown yesterday by the fact that an investing client of Pease & Elliman made an offer of $800,000 cash for the Hotel Martha, at 27 to 31 East Twenty-ninth Street, running through the block to 30 East Thirtieth Street.

The property is owned by the Woman's Hotel Company, Arthur Coppell, President, and a meeting of the stockholders to accept the offer is to be held on Jan. 26. The hotel is twelve stories and measures 75 by 200. Adjoining parcels, making the site 98 by 200, are also included in the sale.

The hotel is exclusively for women, and is operated by the Northern Hotel Company, which holds a lease on the premises until February, 1927, so that a change in the ownership will result in no change of management.

Cedar Street Site for New Office Structure.

William A. White & Sons sold for Charles C. Nadal to an investor 131 and 133 Cedar Street, a three-story building on a plot 56 by 55 feet. The buyer will utilise the site for an office building.

SALESMEN.

The Industrial Extension Institute is enlarging its selling organization. We want men of right ideas who will join us now, who will assimilate the Institute ideals, and grow with us.

This Institute provides the only way out of our great industrial disturbances by helping owners, managers, superintendents and foremen to install sound principles in their Factory Management. Sixty leading business men and Industrial Engineers have combined in providing this service, which has already been adopted by many of our leading manufacturers.

We are now training new salesmen into high-grade district and division managers to co-ordinate the territory and take up the matter with the biggest men in the country. We are developing our field training in conjunction with our financial campaign, so that our new men make good commissions by the sale of our securities to finance the nation-wide introduction of the Institute service.

The opportunity is unusually large for high-grade men. Call to see Mr. Brockaway, between 10 and 4.

Instruction.

THE BUSINESS OF THE FUTURE IS TO BE DONE LARGELY BY MAIL.

So, the increasing and necessary dependence of business upon letter-writing, coupled with the increasing respect for letter-writing ability, makes the career of the letter supervisor, correspondence critic, or house correspondent a decidedly promising one.

More positions are open for expert business letter writers than there are trained men and women to fill them at $1,800 TO $10,000 A YEAR.

Business letter-writing is a specialized modern profession, off the beaten track and out of the press of competitive overcrowding. It has splendid opportunities for advancement, and contact with all departments and all sides of business.

The career of the letter supervisor is one of close relationship with every element of business, every type of executive and every phase of technical work, with an ever-present variety and a constant and unusual opportunity to demonstrate special worth and value to those higher in authority. It demands familiarity with the determinative policies and strategic plans of a business concern and close association with its heads.

This consideration alone is worth a great deal to those wisely searching for business careers of promise.

LA SALLE EXTENSION UNIVERSITY,

LA SALLE PROBLEM METHOD TRAINS YOU FOR JUNIOR ACCOUNTING IN 5 MONTHS. SENIOR ACCOUNTING IN 12 MONTHS.

If you are making less than $50 a week and would like to earn this amount or more in a high grade accounting position, real opportunity is open if you are willing to undergo at least several months of intensive training. The time of spare time evenings a week for 5 to 8 months has been sufficient to qualify for the $50 positions—12 to 18 months for positions paying $60 to $100 a week.

The rate of advancement depends upon your general qualifications, determination and ambition. You will be under the direction of William B. Castenholz, the best known accountant teacher in America, and a large staff of expert accountants, including several members of the American Institute of Accountants.

A knowledge of bookkeeping is not necessary as La Salle trains from the ground up, but an aptitude for accounting work will be an advantage in shortening the term of preparation for the bigger positions.

The records of thousands of ambitious men and women on file at our office show what has been accomplished by them and can be done by you.

POINDEXTER AGAINST MEDDLING IN EUROPE

Senator Says We Should Follow Washington's Advice on Entangling Alliances.

DISAPPROVES CLOSED SHOP

Favors Re-establishment of Government on American Basis as Part of Republican Platform.

Speaking last night at a meeting of the Republican County Committee of New York at Bryant Hall, Forty-second Street and Sixth Avenue, on "The Issue of Americanism on Which the Republican Party Stands," United States Senator Poindexter of Washington declared that America must be kept from entangling alliances with Europe. To settle international questions he advocated the establishment of an international court, and said that the final decision must be that of the American people, speaking through their representatives. Regarding the duty of America not to meddle in the affairs of Europe, Senator Poindexter said:

"The principles of Americanism are imbedded in the great unwritten policies of our foreign relations, such as the Monroe Doctrine and the Farewell Address of George Washington. These documents have become a part of our constitution of government, not in a technical sense but because of their long acceptance by our people. Under these policies genuine Americanism excludes Europe from participating in the control of American affairs, and America from entanglements in European politics.

"In a great emergency as in the German war, it may be necessary for the United States, in self-defense, to interpose its power against European aggression, but this not for the purpose, properly speaking, of participating in the politics of Europe, or in the disposition or control of purely European questions. It is for the purpose, as in the case cited, of resisting the aggression of European power which has invaded American rights."

The Senator declared that the Democratic Administration had been one of extravagance, and said that of the $20,000,000,000 which had been spent for the conduct of the war, and not including the $10,000,000,000 which had been loaned to the Allies, $5,000,000,000 had been wasted and no accounting of it would ever be made.

The Republican Party during the coming campaign, he said, would stand for the following doctrines:

"The re-establishment of the Government on an American basis and the preservation of American independence against the proposed union with Europe.

"Immediate peace with the world and the restoration of full commercial relations with all countries.

"The elimination of European racial and domestic politics from American domestic affairs and the concentration of the attention and resources of the American Government upon the interests of the American people in preference to the concerns of Europe.

"The re-establishment of orderly government and of international obligations in Mexico.

"The emancipation of American labor and industry from the tyranny of the closed shop, and the settlement of industrial disputes by law instead of by violence and intimidation."

The County Committee fixed Feb. 10 as the time for holding the unofficial primaries to elect delegates to the unofficial State convention.

LEADERS BACK TRAVIS BOOM

Sign Petition Urging Him to Become Candidate for Governor.

The candidacy of State Controller Eugene M. Travis for the Republican nomination for Governor received a boost yesterday when nineteen of the twenty-three Republican district leaders in Kings County signed a petition requesting the Controller to enter the Gubernatorial race. The petition was the result, it was said, of the activities of Jacob A. Livingston, county leader, who was one of the first promoters of the Travis boom. A serious split in the Republican organization of the country is threatened because of the lineup of the leaders.

The four leaders who did not sign the petition are Senator Charles C. Lockwood of the Fifth Assembly District, John T. Rafferty of the Twelfth, Richard Wright of the Fifteenth, and Walter H. Ludden of the Twenty-third. Rafferty represents the district of United States Senator Calder, who is opposed to Travis, while Ludden is said to be for Reuben L. Haskell for Governor. Haskell was elected a County Judge last Fall on a straight "wet" platform, and is said to be anxious to run on the same kind of a platform for Governor or Mayor.

Order to Question Banker Vacated.

The Appellate Term of the Supreme Court yesterday vacated an order for the examination of George W. Young, banker, in supplementary proceedings on a claim by James D. Hughes, formerly the banker's personal attendant, on the ground that a default judgment for $2,028 obtained by Hughes has been opened and the suit is now being heard before Charles D. Donohue, as referee. Hughes claimed $1,605 as a balance due for services as attendant from 1914 to 1917. Mr. Young contends that the suit should have been brought against a corporation instead of against him individually.

PLEDGE TAKEN TO CURB WASTE OF NATURAL GAS

Lack of Conservation Means Federal Control, Secretary Lane Tells Conference.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—Plans for an intensive educational campaign in the economic use of natural gas by industries and domestic consumers as a means of curtailing waste were formulated at a conference here today of public utility commissioners, geologists, operators of gas properties and gas appliance manufacturers.

Co-operation of natural gas operators in curtailing waste in the fields, estimated at 50 per cent. of the gas used, and of appliance manufacturers in producing and seeking the greater use of improved gas-burning appliances was pledged.

The conference appointed a committee of ten, representing all interests involved, to co-operate with the Interior Department in carrying on an educational campaign through State and local agencies.

Secretary Lane, who called the conference, warned that unless a concerted effort was made to check the present waste the Government would be forced to take control of the distribution. This would be regrettable, he thought.

Van H. Manning, Director of the Bureau of Mines, told the conference that the chief effort at conservation should be centred on improvement in the utilization of natural gas in industry and in the homes.

It was asserted by George Otis Smith, Director of the Geological Survey, that although the United States possessed about 95 per cent. of the natural gas deposits of the world, it had "squandered this natural gift" by wasting more than half of the gas produced.

Caleb Van Hamm's Will Not Found.

Miss Rebecca Von Hamm applied in the Surrogates' Court yesterday for letters of administration on the estate of her father, Caleb M. Van Hamm, managing editor of The New York American, who died Dec. 2 last at Miami, Fla. Miss Van Hamm stated that she has been unable to find a will. She says that his estate consists of personal property worth $50,000.

SWEET PUT IN HARNESS WITH POINDEXTER BOOM

Senator's Letter Congratulating Speaker on Ousting Socialists Arouses Gossip.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 15.—Speaker Thaddeus C. Sweet of the Assembly was today mentioned as running mate for Senator Miles Poindexter, Republican Presidential candidate, in political gossip at the Capitol.

The gossip was based on the fact that Senator Poindexter wrote the Speaker a letter congratulating him and the Assembly on the suspension of the Socialists after William A. Orr, who was private secretary to Governor Whitman, had visited the Speaker and, presumably, had been assured that the Assembly's procedure would be sustained.

Orr saw the Speaker about Monday and then hastily left town. Yesterday Speaker Sweet made public the congratulatory letter from Senator Poindexter. Orr is managing Poindexter's campaign.

Mothers— and Boys!

read this, please

YOUNG fellows and little boys, listen to me. Mary Jane made the most wonderful "find" the other day. I know you all spend a large part of your time wishing you were grown-up men. So you could look like men, do like men and verily be men.

At the Raleigh Haberdasher, where Hart Schaffner & Marx Clothes are sold exclusively, I discovered that Hart Schaffner & Marx had taken some very decisive steps to make your dreams come true. They decided there was no reason why a young chap couldn't look as well groomed as his grown-up buddy. This year they have tailored suits for boys out of the same materials used for men's and young men's suits. They are cut along the same lines, too—high waist line, pleated and belted backs. They have silk and mohair linings, too. Just like the very best men's suits. The materials are classy—gabardines, oxfords, serges, cheviots and unfinished worsteds—all wool, every one of them. Just the suit that would stand the rough and tumble wear every real live fellow gives his clothes. Hart Schaffner & Marx guarantee the wear of every one of them. I know you fellows get tired of wearing those old stereotyped boys' clothes, with not a bit of individuality about them. Half the time they aren't even well made; they lack the finish of men's clothes and the linings aren't nice. There is nothing about them that is attractive. Any chap would feel like a prince in one of these suits, I know. There is not a thing left out of the tailoring that would be found in dad's suit.

Oh, and say, fellows, I saw some of the niftiest topcoats, too. One style was made in waist-line model, with a pleat in the center of the back. Another was an ulster model, with a belted waist-line. They were made of Shetlands, kerseys, meltons and brown mixtures.

Cheer up, boys; if you can't be men right away, at least you can dress just as well as they can now.
